Easter Bunny Is Scared By Cupid At White House

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Cupid has trumped the Easter bunny at the White House this week-end.

Because of two family weddings, Mrs. Roosevelt limited her capital Easter schedule to attendance at a runrise service tomorrow in Arlington cemetery and, with the president, at the mid-morning service at St. Thomas' Episcopal church.

For the first time since she has been first lady, she will miss the annual White House children's fete and egg-rolling on Monday.

Mrs. Roosevelt saw her niece and name-sake, Eleanor Roosevelt, married in Dedham, Mass., today to a young English architect, Edward P. Elliott. After going to church tomorrow with the president, she will leave by plane for Los Angeles, Calif., to see the Roosevelts' oldest son, Captain James Roosevelt, 33, married on Monday to Miss Romelle Schneider, 25, his nurse when he underwent an operation in a Minnesota hospital in 1938.

Young Roosevelt was divorced in March, 1940, from Betsy Cushing Roosevelt, whom he married in 1930.

The Easter outfit Mrs. Roosevelt selected is in tones of purple, a departure from her usual blue. The purple crepe frock with rounded shoulders is accented in violet. Her wool coat and straw hat are in shades of purple.

In Mrs. Roosevelt's absence, Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the vice-president, will be hostess on Monday to the tens of thousands of children who come to roll eggs and frolic on the president's lawn.

President Roosevelt will greet the egg-rollers sometime during the day from the south portico of the White House.

STATE TROOPER HURT IN CRASH

R. C. McGuffe Suffers Broken Arm When Motorcycle Hits Truck

State Trooper R. C. McGuffe, about 30, of West Monroe, suffered a broken right arm when he was thrown from his motorcycle after crashing into the rear of a truck on Louisville avenue early Saturday morning, state police reported.

The accident occurred when McGuffe, who was traveling west, was thrown into the ditch after he hit the rear of a truck attempting to turn left into the driveway leading to the Rendezvous restaurant, state police said. McGuffe was removed to St. Francis Sanitarium, where he is said also to have suffered a slight abdominal injury.

Captain Rex Ensminger of state police asserted that the truck driver failed to signal he was turning, adding that he would appreciate hearing from the driver of the automobile immediately behind the truck and motorcycle in order to complete the investigation.

Attaches at Vaughan-Wright-Bendel Clinic reported that W. M. Caldwell, 36, Route 1, West Monroe, lost half of his left index finger when it caught in the draw line of an elevator during drilling operations south of Monroe early Saturday morning.

L. V. Johnson, 20, of 2710 Gordon avenue, delivery boy for a local ice cream company, who received severe lacerations on both legs Friday afternoon when his motorbike collided with a truck in the Frances Hotel alley, was reported improving at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel Clinic.

Frances Baldwin, 17-year-old senior at the Ouachita Parish High School, is still in the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel Clinic as the result of a severely injured back suffered last Saturday night when the school bus overturned eight miles from here on the Ruston highway. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Baldwin of 120 Bell avenue.

WHEELER SAYS RED SEA MOVE ASININE

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, today called President Roosevelt's action in opening the Red sea and the Gulf of Aden to American shipping "an asinine policy" that might force the United States to fight single-handedly "in all parts of the world."

"The warmongers in France have destroyed the French republic and the warmongers in England have all but destroyed the British empire," he said in a statement. "The same type of warmonger will destroy the United States if we keep on letting our sentiments rather than our judgment control our policies."

Meanwhile Sir Arthur Salter, chief of the British shipping mission in this country, paid his first call on Secretary Hull today. He told newspapermen the president's action in opening the sea lane for American ships to Suez would give very valuable aid to Great Britain.

In Berlin, authorized sources called Mr. Roosevelt's opening of the Red sea and the Gulf of Aden the first open American intervention in European affairs and a violation of the European Monroe doctrine.

POLICE JURORS' ASSOCIATION TO MEET MONDAY

Meeting Expected To Be Largest In Monroe This Year

JONES AND OTHER NOTED SPEAKERS WILL BE HEARD

Barbecue And Rodeo Will Be Included In Varied Entertainment

The 1941 annual session of the Police Jury association of Louisiana will be opened at Hotel Frances on April 14, concluding on April 16. Registration and a meeting of the resolutions committee is slated for this hotel on Monday afternoon, the delegates registering from 2:30 p.m. and the resolutions committee meeting at 7:30 p. m. It is expected that this convention will prove the largest in attendance and in general interest of any to be held here this year.

The call to order will take place Tuesday at 9 a. m. on Hotel Frances roof with President J. H. Mercer, of the association, presiding. Invocation will be by Dr. A. E. Prince, pastor of the First Baptist church in West Monroe. Mayors H. H. Benoit of Monroe and H. M. Williams, Jr., of West Monroe will extend greetings, as will President George D. Pipes of the Ouachita parish police jury.

The response to the addresses of welcome will be given by C. A. Aycock, president of St. Mary parish police jury. Thereafter will follow roll call of the parishes by L. F. Clawson, secretary of the association.

The president, J. H. Mercer, will then deliver the annual address. He will be followed by W. P. Foster, director of the department of highways; and by Eugene Stanley, attorney general. A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer, will conclude the program of the early morning.

Preceding the noon recess, Harry A. Aspinwall will address the assemblage.

A barbecue will be held at 12:30 p. m. at the Louisiana Tractor company's plant on Louisville avenue.

SEPARATE COAL CONTRACT ASKED

Southern Producers Want To Break Away From Appalachian Group

(By Associated Press)

Southern soft coal producers asked the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.) yesterday to negotiate separately with them for a new wage agreement, saying that they were through with the eight-state Appalachian Conference of Operators for "all eternity."

This development added new complications to a situtaion which evolved April 1 when the U. M. W. contract with the Appalachian conference expired without a new one being agreed upon and production of fuel essential to defense industry came to a halt in some of the nation's biggest fields.

The southern operators bolted the wage conference at New York on Friday. They said they would not agree to a $7 a day wage scale asked by the union for all operators in the Appalachian region, but proposed a wage increase of about 11 per cent over the previous southern scale of $5.60 a day.

Up to a late hour yesterday, the southern operators had received no formal acknowledgement from U. M. W. President John L. Lewis, but he had asserted previously that the union would sign no contract unless it was with all Appalachian operators.

At Pittsburgh, wage negotiations between the United States Steel corporation and the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (C. I. O.) were recessed until Monday amid reports—neither confirmed nor denied—that an agreement on a contract had been reached.

Originally, the union fixed April 1 as the deadline past which its members would not work without a new

TRIP TO HAITI IS DROPPED BY JONES

NEW ORLEANS, April 12.—(AP)—Governor Sam Jones, conferring with his political leaders here, checked out of his hotel today and left for a week-end Easter visit before returning to Baton Rouge on Monday.

The governor cancelled his projected trip by airplane today to Port Au Prince, Haiti, to attend the conference of the Association of Caribbean Nations after being advised that the conference which was to open Monday had been postponed until April 22.

Governor Jones said he would be unable to attend the meeting on the advanced date because of previous engagements.

War-Scarred World Finds America Almost Alone In Observing Easter

Sunrise Services To Be Held At Many Places In United States

(By Associated Press)

Easter in a world at war finds America — almost alone — observing Christendom's most joyful festival in traditional fashion.

Sunrise services at Arlington cemetery in Washington, in Hollywood, and many other places, church services with the ancient hymns customary to the day and sermons on the risen Christ and the usual fashion parades, with bright colors gleaming in the bright spring sunshine predicted for much of the country, filled the day's schedule.

Tens of thousands of Easter visitors jammed the national capital. To its day was added the opening of the annual cherry blossom festival.

Connecticut avenue in Washington, Fifth avenue in New York, the boardwalk at Atlantic City were as usual the focal points of the fashion world, with their promenades of new spring styles, top hats and walking sticks.

In Rome, capital of the Catholic world, as well as capital of a belligerent nation, the bells of the city's 420 churches proclaimed the end of Lent yesterday. But because of wartime conditions, the Easter mass, customarily celebrated by the pope was cancelled. Pope Pius XII planned to make a world wide peace appeal by radio at 5 a.m. (CST).

In Pittsburgh, Dr. Bernard Clausen, pastor of the First Baptist church, announced he would conduct a sunrise service 15,000 feet above the earth in a transport plane, with a choir, an organ, and a few guests. It was traditional, he said, for Christians to seek "higher" places on Easter.

At Tempe, Ariz., Yaqui Indians presented their annual passion play. The climax was the blowing to bits of a

LOUISIANA PLAN FOR DEFENSE IN WAR COMPLETED

71-Page Document Provides Role For Every Parish And Town

BOMBING OF SEAPORTS IN STATE 'NOT IMPOSSIBLE'

One Problem Would Be Evacuation Of Cities If Levees Are Shelled

NEW ORLEANS, April 12.—(AP)—A detailed civilian defense plan for Louisiana in case of war, contained in a 71-page document providing a role for every parish, city and town and every civilian, was announced as complete today by Governor Sam H. Jones.

The plan was drawn by Major Val Irion, Shreveport attorney and infantry reserve officer, now on duty at Jackson Barracks on the staff of Adjutant General Raymond H. Fleming.

It is designed to meet emergencies of war to minimize the damage "after the lightning has struck, although in preventing sabotage and in similar work, the state and community can do able preventive work."

Major Irion's report declares "the people of Louisiana should take time out to face the fact that there need not be a declaration of war, or even a desire for war on their part, before the ports of New Orleans and Lake Charles, the industrial centers of Baton Rouge and Shreveport, the military areas around Alexandria and Leesville, may be cruelly and fiendishly bombed.

"Such an occurrence is not probable, perhaps, but possible."

Listed as "a few of the possible problems," are evacuation of cities should levees be destroyed by sabotage or bombing, providing substitutes for damaged waterworks, gas or electric plants, camouflage and air raid warnings, public and private air raid shelters, reinforcement of bridges for movement of heavier traffic; repair of damaged roads and bridges, prisons for "traitors called fifth columnists,"

FLYING CADETS INCREASE FAST

Strength To Gain Six-Fold In Southeast Within Six Months

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 12.—(AP)—Today 1,866 flying cadets roar a symphony of defense and defiance through Dixie skies, but by June 30 there'll be three times that number—and within six months the strength of the southeast air corps training center may be increased six-fold.

But that's only part of the story as this, one of the nation's three major centers, speeds its production toward a goal of 10,000 fighter-pilots a year. With the beginning of July, its personnel will number 5,653 cadets, 1,350 officers, and 13,685 enlisted men, including mechanics and other technicians.

Now 12 fields—teaching everything from primary flying to specialized tactics—are operating under the southeast center's jurisdiction. Six more are under construction or have been authorized, and still others are to come.

More replacement centers, where navigators and bombardiers are taught, are coming up too, but as on everything else not already bearing an official war department o. k. the Maxwell field command headquarters simply says: "There's nothing to give

Girl's Romance Is Shattered By Aviator's Death

ALEXANDRIA, La., April 12.—(AP)—An attractive 20-year-old Detroit girl was grief-stricken here today, her romance with a young army aviator shattered by death.

Miss Shirley Briggs, daughter of M. L. Briggs, vice-president of the Briggs Manufacturing company of Detroit, tried to reconcile herself to the fact that she will never be the bride of Second Lieutenant Wilmer Esler, the 26-year-old army flier whom she met early last fall in Detroit. He was fatally injured at 9:30 a.m. Friday when the plane he was piloting crashed during a takeoff at the Camp Beauregard airport.

Miss Briggs, who is in Alexandria with her mother, had her plans of almost a year wrecked within 30 minutes. She had planned to announce her engagement to young Esler upon her return to Detroit next week and the marriage was to take place next fall.

At 9 o'clock Friday morning, Lieutenant Esler, a member of Detroit's 107 observation squadron, telephoned Miss Briggs from the airport. He had already been in the air, having taken off at 7:30 a.m. but was forced down by weather conditions. He just wanted to talk to her again before going back up to carry out a routine training mission.

At 9:30 a.m. the 0-47 all-metal, observation monoplane he was piloting nose-dived to the earth, its engine having failed during the second takeoff. At 10:17 a.m. he was dead.

First Lieutenant Paul R. Smith, 40, observer, and Private Charles G. Yesalones, Jr., 26, gunner, both of Detroit, who were accompanying Lieutenant Esler, were described as resting well today in the Camp Livingston hospital, where they are expected to recover from serious injuries.

CHURCHES WILL OBSERVE EASTER

Music And Sermons Will Be Suited To Happy Occasion Today

Easter will be observed in the churches of the Twin Cities with especially elaborate sermons suited to the gladsome occasion. Music will be particularly suited to the day, the most important in all the year as the Risen Lord is made the universal keynote. Beautiful flowers of early springtime will add to the setting as pulpits will be made resplendent for the day.

Bishop A. Frank Smith, who has conducted special Lenten services at the Monroe First Methodist church twice daily through Holy Week, will preach twice today in that church, at 11 a. m. and at 5:30 p. m. the evening service being held at this earlier hour. The services will be broadcast over station KMLB.

At the First Methodist church in West Monroe, the pastor, Dr. C. Karlos Smith, will preach at 11 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. His morning theme will be: "The Christ of the Empty Tomb." The evening theme will be: "The Christ of Today."

An Easter sermon will be delivered by Dr. A. E. Prince at the First Baptist church in West Monroe at the morning worship hour, and at 7:45 p. m. there will be an Easter cantata,

PLEASANT EASTER WEATHER FORECAST

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Forecasters predicted today the "most pleasant" Easter weather in perhaps ten years for the eastern third of the country.

They said weather made to order for fashion paraders—fair skies and temperatures ranging from 15 to 20 degrees above normal—was indicated for an area extending from the Atlantic seaboard into the midwest.

Further west, prospects were not quite favorable. Although no general bad weather was indicated, showers were forecast for sections of the central west, the southwest and Rocky Mountain regions.

From the Rockies west, cooler, but normal, temperatures were indicated.

The weather bureau said light snow fall was reported today in higher elevations of the Rockies.

HENDERSON DEPENDS MUCH ON PUBLICITY

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Leon Henderson, chief of the newly created office of price administration and civilian supply, indicated today that he was counting chiefly on publicity to prevent unwarranted price increases.

He told a press conference that his agency's biggest weapon of enforcement would be "the moral support of the community," presumably gained by calling public attention to price hikes which appeared to be without adequate reason.

Beyond that, Henderson was vague about what means would be used to hold down prices. He said, however, that the agency was clothed with sufficient power to curb inflationary rises.

Hitler's Army Declared Locked In Battle With British In Greece

BERN, Switzerland, April 13.—(Sunday)—(AP)—British and German armored columns were reported early today to have met in a "violent" battle on the plain between Bitolj (Monastir) and Phlorina.

Fast moving columns, supported by dive bombers and fighter planes, said dispatches reaching here from Sofia, engaged in a fierce struggle—one of the first of its kind in this war between completely armored forces maneuvering on a flat plain.

The battle came as Great Britain's Balkan army tested its strength by patrol activities and other maneuvers.

(By Associated Press)

The battle of Greece appeared to be reaching major proportions this Easter morning as reports reaching Bern, Switzerland, from Sofia, Bulgaria, told of a "violent" engagement between British and German armored columns on the plain between Bitolj (Monastir), Yugoslavia, and Phlorina, the western anchor of a Greek-British defense line.

These reports followed an announcement by a Greek spokesman that Germans, complete with tanks, armored cars, motorcycle machine-gunners and motorized infantry had slashed against the northwest flank of the defense line between Phlorina and Vanitsa Friday only to be repulsed on a 12-mile front.

The Sofia reports said fast moving columns of Germans and British, supported by dive bombers and fighter planes, had clashed in a fierce struggle. Such a battle is one of the first of its kind to be reported in this war

5,000 CHILDREN WILL HUNT EGGS

Annual Easter Egg Hunt To Be Held Today At Forsythe Park

Five thousand children from all over north Louisiana are expected to participate in the annual Easter egg hunt at Forsythe park, this afternoon at 2 p. m. The affair, staged annually by the Monroe Fire department, headed by Captain H. E. Roberts, will make provision for the hiding of thousands of gaily-colored eggs throughout the grounds. Many of the eggs will contain numbers which will correspond with those on prizes that have been donated by Twin City merchants.

All, young and old, will first assemble in front of the Swayze natatorium, and the children, ages 15 and under, will be assigned to one section of the park. Adults will be instructed as to where they will go in order that all may have opportunity to compete for coveted awards.

It is further stated that every child attending will receive a gift. Also there will be grand prizes for boys and girls which range from diamond rings to a Shetland pony, specially contributed to delight the heart of some small boy.

The cooperation of local merchants has been excellent, stated Captain Roberts, and with good weather seemingly assured, a big day for young and old is in anticipation.

LOUISIANA BANKERS TO CONVENE MONDAY

BATON ROUGE, La., April 12.—(AP)—The forty-first annual convention of the Louisiana Bankers association will bring about 300 delegates to Baton Rouge Monday and Tuesday.

Louisiana members of the American Bankers association will meet simultaneously to elect a successor to E. E. Soulier, president of the First National banks, Lafayette, as a member of the national association's executive council.

Also to be chosen are a member of the A. B. A.'s nominating committee, an alternate member, and state vice-presidents for the National bank, Savings, State bank and trust divisions of the association.

Speakers at the Louisiana association convention include William Powers, director of customers relations for the A. B. A., J. T. Brown, president of the Capital National bank, Jackson, Miss., and Dr. Stephen A. Caldwell, professor of economics at Louisiana State university.

Interpreting The War News:

British And German Showdown At Hand

By Kirke L. Simpson

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

The first "contact" between British empire armies and axis legions has come and whether in Greece and Yugoslavia or in North Africa, the odds in manpower, in mechanized battle equipment, even in the advantage of initiative are with the Germans.

It was theirs to attack, the task of the British to defend.

But the odds of terrain are with the British in North Africa and with the British-Greek allies on the main Balkan war front. That could prove all important.

Just where the Greek-British defense line runs west of the Vardar is not certain. Obviously, it is keyed to mountain peaks, narrow valleys and precipitous gorges from its sea flank on the east coast of the Gulf of Salonika to the great mountain lake system through which run the frontiers of Albania and Yugoslavia. Just as obviously, the actual Greek-British front line of defense must be geared also to the road and rail communications at the rear, over which come supplies.

It is 100 miles or so, crow flight, from end to end of the sea, mountain and lake bastioned front. There is no certain estimate of the British-Greek forces or possible Yugoslavian aid available to hold it. Its topography necessarily canalizes any attack upon it to relatively few roads and passes. Indications are that the vital Balkan front was picked and to some extent prepared well in advance by the allies.

The test of their wisdom in selecting the front has come. The Germans, crashing through Monastir pass, locked in a mighty battle with the allies in the Phlorina area yesterday and, said the axis, Italian and German troops joined forces on the shore of Lake Ohrid, near the central bastion of the allied line.

Down in North Africa the British announced "contact" with Italo-German units which have been marching eastward across Italian Libya toward Tobruk. Reports of British troops pouring through Egypt from recent successful battlefields in East Africa suggest that the British may have chosen the Tobruk area as the North African front, although another excellent defense line guarding approaches to the vital Suez canal lies many miles east of Tobruk.

Whatever the actual strength of the Nazi-Fascist armored force in Libya, it is already under heavy strain, testing the endurance of men and machines. Its only supply line stretches hundreds of miles behind it to Tripoli. And still far ahead of it lies the British main western defense system for the Suez canal region, the Matruh railhead 150 miles east of Alexandria.

An Italian army of much greater numerical strength never got within sight of Matruh. It is still far from certain that the Nazi-Fascist thrust even hopes to get that far. It may still be merely a Nazi diversion operation keyed to the Balkan war.

REPORT PANZER FORCES BEATEN

on the Balkan peninsula. No details of the meeting were included in the reports.

An earlier British report reaching Bern said armored car patrols, scouting in the Bitolj region, had destroyed a motorized German infantry unit without losses to themselves.

Yusoslav resistance was reported stiffening, especially north of Zagreb, south of Nis, near the Rumanian frontier and in the mountains northwest of Tetovo.

The German radio, however, said 14 Yugoslav divisions have been "completely annihilated." Germans declared the Yugoslav campaign was about completed, but said nothing of the fighting in Greece and southern Yugoslavia.

The Athens radio declared a strong Yugoslav force was hastening southward from central Yugoslav and "breaking" all German efforts to check the drive.

Hungary, which plunged her army into north Yugoslavia in the wake of the German attack, announced penetrations of the Yugoslav line between the Danube and Tisa rivers and capture of the cities of Subotica and Sombor.

But the Hungarians got a rude shock in Moscow.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the Hungarian minister announced the invasion and expressed hope that Russia would recognize it as a just one.

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet deputy foreign commissar, replied in effect:

"We don't like it at all."

Vishinsky noted that Hungary made a "particularly bad impression" by warring on Yugoslavia just four months after pledging eternal friendship for her, and remarked:

"It is not difficult to realize what would be the position of Hungary should she herself get into trouble and be torn to bits, since it is known that there are national minorities in Hungary, too."

This was a scarcely-veiled reference to Hungary's acquisition of the Carpatho-Ukraine from the remains of Czechoslovakia and part of Transylvania from Rumania. The former is particularly fraught with possibilities because Russia regards Ukrainians as her own. Coincidentally, Yugoslavia's premier, General Dusan Simovic, was reported to have left on a mission, presumably heading for Moscow.

It was recalled that Red Star, organ of the Soviet army, said three days ago that the recently-signed Soviet-Yugoslav friendship pact was "all the more valuable under the new conditions because the Soviet Union always fulfills its international pledges."

With these overtones of possible sensational developments in the future, there was this additional news of the fighting fronts yesterday:

The British radio, heard in New York, reported a fierce battle was being fought in the Phlorina area between the defenders and the Germans who crossed the Greek frontier at Bitolj (Monastir) gap, 16 miles away on the Yugoslav border. Details were missing, but it apparently was the same action which the Greek spokesman proudly announced.

The R. A. F. was reported to be bombing and machine-gunning bridges, roads and tunnels along the Nazi line of advance. British dispatches also said armored car patrols scouting the Bitolj region had destroyed a motorized Nazi infantry unit without losses to itself.

The German radio, in a broadcast heard in New York by CBS, said Yugoslav troop transports and concentrations near Belgrade were dispersed and badly smashed by Nazi bombers. Other bombing attacks were reported on an airdrome in northern Bosnia and on the southeastern Balkan front.

The Germans also were reported in a Hungarian news agency dispatch to have occupied Osijek, Pozega and Gradiska in the eastern part of Croatia, and Bjelovar and Sisak in the western part. Sisak is about 30 miles southeast of Zagreb, and Gradiska, deepest point of penetration, is about 40 miles from the Hungarian frontier.

On the north African front, British and axis armored patrols clashed in a wide area west and southwest of Tobruk and the R. A. F. announced it had destroyed nearly 100 axis tanks and motor vehicles in a swoop on Ain El Gazala to Tobruk.

In Berlin German military observers termed Yugoslavia a closed chapter and reported gradual encirclement of Belgrade.

German spokesmen indicated they would be pleased whether the British and Greeks made a stand or withdrew.

British had a quiet day after the Friday night raids which concentrated on Bristol and Portsmouth.

Could Cleopatra Drink a Pearl with Stomach Ulcer Pains?

An intriguing story of Cleopatra is the one where an admirer praised the beauty of two of her pearls, whereupon she dropped one into a glass of wine and drank it. She would hardly have done this had she suffered after-eating pains. Those who are distressed with stomach or ulcer pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid should try a 25c box of Udga Tablets. out, except on those already authorized."

It was a scant seven months ago today that this "below-the-snow-line" region started training its first cadets —on the then seemingly large scale of around 2,000 a year. Then the nation's quota was 7,000; later it was upped to 12,000, and within the last fortnight President Roosevelt hiked it again, this time to 30,000.

Other major training centers fan out from Randolph field, Texas, for the gulf area, and from Moffett field, Calif., for the Pacific region.

Primary schools, teaching rudiments and usually operated by a private contractor, which are funneling fledgling war-birds along in the southeast are located at: Albany, Ga.; Lakeland, Fla.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Jackson, Miss.; Arcadia, Fla.; Coral Gables, Fla.; Americus, Ga., and Camden, S. which will be directed by Dallas Goss, choir director.

Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the Monroe First Baptist church, will preach an Eastern morning sermon on: "The Christ of the Empty Tomb."

"The Meaning of Easter," will form the sermon topic, at the morning worship hour at the First Presbyterian church, of the pastor, Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway. At 6:45 p. m. there will be baptisms of children and infants and at 7:45 p. m. the pastor will discuss: "Two Characters in Contrast."

St. Matthew's Catholic church will conduct low masses for Easter at 6:30 and 9 a. m. and a high mass at 10 a. m. Holy Baptism will take place at 4 p. m. and rosary, sermon, and benediction will be held at 7:30 p. m. Confessions are held each Sunday from 4 to 6 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m.

Grace Episcopal church will have its Holy Eucharist at 7 a. m.; choral Eucharist and sermon at 10:45 a. m., when the rector, Rev. Edward Farren Hayward, will preach. The choir will sing the musical parts of the Eucharist: The Kyrie Eleison from West; Gloria and Gratias Tibi, Sursum Carda, Sanctus and Benedictus, and Agnus Dei from Eyre.

Roger C. Frisbie will preside at the organ, and Mrs. Frisbie will present violin selections.

All other churches of the Twin Cities will have special music and sermons for Easter.

PUBLIC DEBT NOW $480 PER CAPITA

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Public debt amounted to $480 per capita or $1,813 for the average family in the United States at the start of the current fiscal year last July 1.

Reporting this today, the census bureau said the states owed $3,505,000,000; smaller divisions of government, $16,720,000,000, and the federal government, $42,971,000,000.

State and local government debts accounted for a per capita obligation of nearly $154, a decline of $3 since 1932.

The federal debt July 1 was equal to $326 per capita. However, it now stands at $47,167,000,000, or about $365 per capita, and defense expenditures will add billions to the total.

Obligations of state and local governments increased only $663,000,000 or 3.4 per cent between 1932 and 1940, the bureau said, compared with an increase of $9,307,000,000 or 91 per cent between 1922 and 1932.

The per capita burden of such debt thus decreased 2.2 per cent in the last eight years. The ratio of debt to income per capita declined 44 per cent.

State and local governments collected $70 per capita in taxes last year, the bureau said, compared with $39 paid to the federal government.

FALLS IN TRAIN'S PATH

MERIDIAN, Miss., April 12.—(AP)—Lee Bynum, 66, dropped with a heart attack today on a railroad crossing as a train approached. An unidentified spectator rushed up the track and flagged the train to a halt 75 feet away. An ambulance took Bynum to an infirmary, where his condition was serious.

Informed quarters said the British had been dislodged from defense positions built between Derna and Tobruk, in Libya, and the high command asserted the Axis forces "continued the pursuit of the defeated enemy."

Victorious German troops in northern Greece, operating on the well-established German military adage that the army must swiftly follow up and exploit its gains to the fullest, can be depended on to harry any British withdrawal with the greatest measure possible, Germans said.

Germans awoke today to hear their radios blaring the Deutschland hymn and the "England Song," following the high command announcement that German and Italian forces had joined their lines in southern Yugoslavia north of Lake Ohrid.

The high command account of the campaign in Yugoslavia said furthermore that Nazi units were advancing from several sides on Belgrade, Yugoslav capital, while in the south Yugoslav resistance was declared "broken in hard fighting."

DNB reported renewed dive-bomb assaults on the Greek ports of Salamis and Piraeus, saying that a 5,000-ton ship was sunk and others possibly destroyed. Warehouses also were declared set aflame. Other air raids were reported on the airport at La Venezia, island of Malta.

Other scheduled Easter observances included:

Camp Bowie, Tex.—An Easter service attended by most of the 36th division, with music by a choir of 300 soldiers.

Colorado Springs—Sunrise service in the "Garden of the Gods," with 20,000 attending.

Seattle—Three sunrise services, with some 40,000 attending.

Fort Devens, Mass.—Sunrise service with music by the massed bands of four regiments and a choir of 100 negroes from the 336th infantry.

Minneapolis—15,000 to 20,000 were expected at services at Sunrise Lake and Pilot Knob, both nearby.

Lawton, Okla.—A cast of 3,000 was scheduled to present 50 tableaux in ceremonies beginning at 3:00 a. m., in the "Holy City," a native rock reproduction of Jerusalem.

Portland, Ore.—Two sunrise services with an indicated attendance of about 6,000.

Spokane, Wash. — Services were planned at Manito park under the joint auspices of the Prttestant churches of the city.

Philadelphia—More than 400,000 expected at sunrise service at Temple stadium.

Reno, Nev.—Residents of several Nevada sections will participate in the Easter parade on snowshoes and skis.

Goldfield, scene of early century mining booms, was blanketed with fifteen inches. Town residents on side streets were faced with shovelling their way to Easter morning church services.

Ouray, Colo.—Snow swirled through southeastern Colorado golf camps of Ouray and Silverton tonight.

Snowslides blocked off an eight-mile section of the highway running south across 11,018-foot high Red Mountain pass from Ouray to Silverton.

The snowfall since Friday in the Savage basin measured 18 inches.

SOLDIERS WILL LAY ARMS DOWN ON EASTER

CAMP LIVINGSTON, La., April 12. —(AP)—Soldiers learning the arts of war will lay down their arms tomorrow and blend voices in Easter tribute to the king of peace.

Bugles will blow the call to worship and the audience—visitors and soldiers alike—will join in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" in an amphitheatre carved from the pine-woods and sloped down to a level hollow where an altar has been set.

A soldier chorus of 300 voices, picked from the 32nd divisions' 12,000 troops, has practiced for weeks after military duties on hymns for the unique Easter religious service.

Division chaplains, responsible for the occasion, have invited the public to attend and scores of townspeople from nearby Alexandria and the surrounding countryside are expected to attend.

Accompanied by the division's concert band, composed of musicians selected from the various regimental bands, the skilled chorus will blend voices in "Holy City," "O Morn of Beauty" and the "Lost Chord."

There will be a scripture reading, a sermon and then benediction, Catholic mass closing the impr outdoor service.

....Too Rich for whose Blood?"

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD anyone say about Pontiac, "Yes, it's a fine car, all right. Big, good-looking, easy to handle. But it's too rich for my blood"?

If and when you hear such a statement, you can be sure of one thing. The man who's talking has never owned a Pontiac.

As a matter of fact, both buying and driving a Pontiac are much less expensive than most people realize.

Pontiac prices are so close to the lowest that the difference in monthly payments is almost unbelievably small.

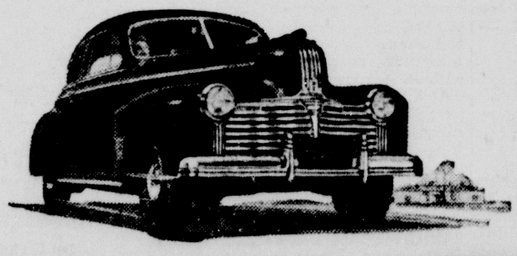

And many owners claim that they operate their Pontiacs for less than they formerly spent on much smaller cars.

Before you decide that a new Pontiac "Torpedo" is too rich for your blood, we suggest that you talk to a Pontiac owner who formerly drove a lowest-priced car. Then see your Pontiac dealer and ride in one, drive it— and get all the facts and figures which prove that, if you can afford any new car you can afford a Pontiac!

*PONTIAC PRICES BEGIN AT $828 FOR THE DE LUXE "TORPEDO" SIX BUSINESS COUPE

SHOP SMITH GOES TO TEXAS

ficiates At Funeral Of Senator Morris Sheppard

Bishop A. Frank Smith, Houston, ., who has been conducting Len- services twice daily in Monroe the t week, left early yesterday for tarkana, Tex., to participate in the eral services held there yesterday United States Senator Morris ppard, dean of the senate in point ervice, who died in the capital city Wednesday.

Bishop Smith was a lifetime friend the late senator and was asked by family to take part in the funeral ices.

The bishop returned to Monroe im- diately after the funeral was held order to preach at the First Meth- st church of Monroe twice today. ging by the large throngs that have nded all the weekly services, it is bable that the local church will be too small to accommodate all who l desire to hear the final sermons the bishop.

SAFETY INSURANCE . . .

The 'Hams' Of Ouachita Valley Again Were Active Last Night

"Power failure . . . all transportation stopped . . . Winnsboro, La., completely cut off from normal communication with the outside world . . . we need medical suplies badly and immediate means of transporting injured to hospitals. . . ."

Fantastic? Not at all.

It CAN happen right here in northeast Louisiana, just as last winter's catastrophe cut off normal communications with Amarillo, Tex., for several days. Such a message could come from Winnsboro, Monroe, Lake Providence, Ruston—any northeast Louisiana town whose residents last night slept peacefully, few of them aware how much their well-being and, in some cases, their lives depended upon an intricate and at best, delicate instrument when subjected to the forces of fire, flood, and storm, system of communication with the rest of the world.

But none of these places would be completely cut off. Last night men sat in their homes in northeast Louisiana and talked over long distances without benefit of wires. Many of them talked with persons in Hawaii and Costa Rica, and all could have talked with half a hundred other amateur radio operators in this section.

The "hams" of the Ouachita Valley Amateur Radio club again were active last night.

In Winnsboro, for instance, at their stations during an emergency would be Charlie Graves, Hershall J. Fowler, William Baker, and 17-year-old N. D. Paola. They operate stations W5HUY, W5JEY, Y5HPW, and W5JMK, respectively. Although in normal operations they use the regular sources of electrical power, their emergency outfits are equipped to use auxiliary power, enabling them to carry on uninterrupted operation.

Graves was the first "ham" in Winnsboro to be licensed by the Federal Communications Commission. He recently was appointed emergency coordinator for Winnsboro and vicinity and is now working to organize an efficient emergency communication unit. He and Fowler, who received his license in September of last year, are active members of the army amateur radio network.

Baker, who recently moved to Winnsboro from Crowville, is the newest addition to the Winnsboro Radio club, which is affiliated with the Ouachita Valley club. He is a graduate of Louisiana Tech, where he was a member of the Tech Radio club.

Paola, at 17 years the youngest Ouachita Valley amateur and in line for recognition as the youngest operator in the entire Delta division at the meeting of "hams" from this four-state district here next month, just last January finished a course at Port Arthur Radio college. While there, he took his amateur examination. He holds a class C license, can't take the class A examination until he has been licensed for a year. Class A license holders are unrestricted, while class C permits allow restricted work on the theory that beginners haven't the experience to operate properly within the narrow 20 and 75-meter phone bands used by class A stations.

The Winnsboro "hams" are part of the safety insurance of northeast Louisiana towns. Along with amateurs in the Twin Cities and Hodge, they are equipped with auxiliary power equipment, while amateurs in Bastrop, Lake Providence, St. Joseph, Holly Ridge, Jonesboro, Sterlington, and Ruston insure constant communication of their towns with the outside world by means of power supplied by batteries.

NOTED ARTIST WILL BE GUEST

Fine Arts Club To Present W. F. Lockwood Here Wednesday

The Fine Arts club will hold its April meeting in Room 200, of the Northeast Junior college library, Wednesday, at 8 p.m. It will be an open meeting and a speaker of note will be on the program. William F. Lockwood, visiting professor of Louisiana State university from Columbia university, will speak on the subject: "Why Sculpture and Painting?" This will be an open meeting and the public is invited.

Following the lecture by Mr. Lockwood, a tea will be given so that members and guests will have opportunity to meet Mr. Lockwood personally.

Roy B. Henderson, of the art department of Northeast Junior college, will be chairman of the evening and will be assisted by Mrs. Henry Mayo. The host and hostesses of the occasion will be Dr. Leslie Murry Norton, Mrs. Audie B. Moffett, and Mrs. B. L. Mulhern.

Mr. Lockwood is a native of Missouri and has studied at the University of Florida, and privately in New York and Chicago. He is a well-known American artist, and is teacher as well as painter. For this reason he was brought to Louisiana State university by the fine arts department headed by Duncan Ferguson.

Works of Mr. Lockwood have been exhibited in New York and Chicago galleries, in several Florida shows, in New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

In 1937 he won first place in the second annual exhibition of American art with a painting representing the state of Florida. A mural which he painted in the library at Gainesville, Fla., is Mr. Lockwood's favorite of all his work.

He was commissioned to paint a mural at the medical center in New York City, which he was unable to complete due to the fact that he accepted the position at Louisiana State university. However, he will leave for New York when the summer session ends in August to complete the mural.

WEDS EX-HUSBAND DAY AFTER DIVORCE

ELKO, Nev., April 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Joan Kaufman Biddle Wintersteen Polk, 32, socially prominent in Philadelphia and New York, today remarried Frank F. Polk, 32, cowboy wood carver, whom she divorced in Reno yesterday.

The couple was married by Justice of the Peace Alvin McFarlane. Chris Sheerin, editor of the Elko Free Press, and Jack Walsh, state police officer, were witnesses.

Mrs. Polk and the artistic wood carver previously were married in Reno last January 31, the day she divorced Joseph M. Wintersteen of Philadelphia. Before that she had been married to and divorced from George Drexel Biddle, also of Philadelphia.

THINKS 'FOREIGN AGENTS' ARE 'SABOTAGING LABOR'

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., April 12.—(AP)—Vice-President Wallace charged tonight that "foreign agents" are "sabotaging our labor organizations to the great disadvantage of labor itself."

Calling for national unity to demonstrate the full productive capacity of this country, Wallace said in a prepared address that "the public cannot hold guiltless those who seize the current situation to settle ancient, regional, personal and jurisdictional grudges and in so doing put sand into the bearings of our industrial machines."

The vice-president's address was before the stockholders' meeting of the Federal Home Loan bank of Winston-Salem.

DRIVER CARELESS WITH COPS' CARS

Motorists who cause small traffic accidents are often the target of verbal attacks from the offended—nothing more—but Charles Perot of Monroe got the works Saturday afternoon when he aroused the ire of one patrolman, then bumped the fender of a police captain, and kept on going.

When caught he was booked at Monroe police headquarters by Sergeant C. H. Sisson with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and hit-and-run driving.

The story police told was that Patrolman Bob Dartez was proceeding east on Layton avenue when Perot drove north across Layton on South Seecnd street. Patrolman Dartez avoided a crash when he stopped just short of Perot's car. Perot stopped too but immediately started again, turning left on Layton.

He then bumped into the rear fender of Captain J. D. Busby's patrol car going west on Layton and kept going. Patrolman Dartez finally forced Perot to the curb after he had driven about a block. Perot's car caught fire, and Dartez extinguished the blaze with a bucket of water.

GROUPS GIVE FAREWELL PARTY FOR SELECTEES

BASTROP, La., April 12.—(Special)—The combined veteran and service clubs of Bastrop gave a farewell party Wednesday night at the American Legion hut for the selectees from Morehouse parish who left Thursday for the Camp Livingston induction station of the army.

Short talks were made by Luther Cox, Ray Green, Dr. Smith I. Sims, Dr. W. A. Rodgers, J. T. Halley, Don Quinn, R. C. Hauser, and C. L. Eldridge. Glen Wilson acted as toastmaster. Following the remarks made by the hosts, Tony Parreno, Don Quinn, Jr., and Max Dollar responded for the selectees.

On Easter Morning

Hardly ever in the time of living men has there been greater need for the message renewed on every Easter morning.

Prophetic was the legend of Pandora's box, which released all evils on the world, but also the saving hope that they may be survived and overcome. Hope has sustained the modern world through a long time of trial and without hope life would be all but unendurable by now. Hope still lives, though clouds hang low and threatening over the destinies of nations.

Miraculously the spark of faith has been kept burning, though tides of ignorance and doubt have many times swept the world since the first Easter Morning. Faith in the ultimate triumph of good over evil, faith in a better future, faith in resurrection have lost none of their power over the souls and lives of men.

What goes on in the world today seems to deny the validity of the Easter message. It seemed a shameful mockery that cities should be bombed on Good Friday, a day of sacred remembrance for all Christian peoples. Yet it has happened so before.

Many times violence and cruelty have seemed to drown out the Easter message. But it has not been silenced. Still it judges and accuses all men of violence and men of little faith.

Nearly 20 centuries it has endured, while kings and conquerors have come and gone. An emperor ruled in Rome and a king in Jerusalem when a few women and simple disciples heard the first Easter message: "He is not here, He is risen." Hardly are these rulers' names remembered, but a host without number will greet Easter's morning with the joyful cry, "He is risen indeed."

So will pass the greed and pride and lust of power which afflict the world today. There will be peace again, though no man knows when. There will be quiet again, when Easter bells will not be mocked by the roar of guns and the tramp of marching feet.

Little of this promise appears in the news of the day. Yet men believe it, or there would be no world-wide festival of Easter morning.

Easter 1941 finds armies of conquest engaged in war and weary men trying to halt death and destruction. But many more will face the sunrise with hope and faith and gladness, rejoicing again in the eternal miracle of Easter morning.

RAILROAD MEN

Life has been one continuous vacation for him ever since he got his first job as an engine wiper with the Lehigh and Hudson railroad when he was 17. There's no job that can compare with railroading. Thus, at least, asserts a man who has been stationmaster at Grand Central terminal, New York, for 32 years.

Few mortals ever find such perfect satisfaction in their jobs as to regard them as a vacation, but railroad men seem to be among the world's happiest. What lad or adult, who has felt the romance of railroads, can fail to understand their feeling?

The retiring stationmaster at Grand Central is 70. He has spent 53 years working for railroads. If he ever gets around to building a home, asserts W. A. Cramer, he's going to use soft coal in the furnace for the sake of the familiar aroma. One can understand that, too. It's like a retired master having a ship's clock in his house to strike the passing hours.

There was another retirement at Grand Central. Frederick F. Slater, oldest engineer in the district, quit at 65. He had brought in 100,000 trains from the Mott Haven and other yards without an accident. The other afternoon he slid the Commodore Vanderbilt into the station on his last run. The locomotive bore streamers proclaiming "Fred Slater's last trip after 50 years." As the locomotive stopped Mr. Slater leaned from the cab and clasped his wife's hands, for she was waiting on the platform.

To read of such ceremonies is thrilling. In each terminal there is a stationmaster, in each locomotive an engineer or driver. Trains do not run themselves. The great terminal needs an executive, the throttle a human hand.

CHANCE FOR ROMANCE

It is about time that some wild-eyed author advanced to this book-reading people with a romance in his hand based on that gold hoard at Fort Knox. In toto the United States now has $22,200,000,000 monetary gold. Of this $14,000,000,000 is stored in underground vaults in Kentucky.

There isn't a Chinaman's chance that any circumstance could occur which would enable anybody to get into this cache and come away with enough of it to fill a hollow tooth.

But that should not baffle the boys who concoct blood-and-thunder tales. It certainly would not have bluffed the writing craft 60 years ago. They never found any fancy too fantastic for their dime novel. They long since would have had Dare Devil Dick digging his way to the treasure down in Old Kentucky and coming away with a couple of handsful of the yellow stuff at least.

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, April 12.—There's a change (as well as delay) in the Barbara Hutton-Cary Grant elopement plans; Ricardo Cortez will be best man, instead of Noel Coward, called by England. . . . The players, one of NY's better actors clubs, is branching to Hollywood. . . . Vicki Lester and Writer Eddie Cherkose have patched their torn love.

Those $3,000 earrings "lost" by Simone Simon back east were found by detectives in possession of a "friend," but Simone refuses to prosecute. . . . I hear editing of "Ziegfeld Girl" has "murdered" Tony Martin's role. . . . Dorothy Peterson is replacing Hedda Hopper in the "Aldrich Family" series.

A rich Floridian is heaping diamonds on ex-star Claire Windsor and it looks like marriage. . . . Stepin Fetchit, negro comedy star a few seasons back, is stranded in the midwest and begging local pals for help. . . . Marriage must agree with Sonja Henie—she's down to 108 pounds and her figure is gasp producing.

Roger (Mr. Ann Sothern) Pryor gets his instructor's license any day and will promptly volunteer for Uncle Sam's air dept. . . . Esquire (the magazine) will soon put a two-bit "little brother" for golfers on the stands. . . . Julie Bishop, Warner stock actress, weds David Bruce, actor, in June. . . . Don Ameche is taking flying lessons.

Both Leslie Fenton and Ann Dvorak (married) are now "in service" in England, he in the navy and she with an ambulance corps. . . . End of an era note: Marlene Dietrich has given her entire masculine wardrobe to a local charity. . . . Actress Marguerite Chapman and Attorney Bentley Ryan may beat Ryan's partner, Greg Bautzer, and Dorothy Lamour to the altar.

Laugh of the Week: Arthur Murray's story about the dog trainer who, after trying fruitlessly to interest an agent in a prize mutt via telephone, at last cornered the Big Shot in his private office. Quickly, he made the dog go through its act. It did an "Off to Buffalo" shuffle, recited the Gettysburg address and sang "God Bless America." "What do you think now?" asked the animal's owner. "The answer," roared the agent, "is still no! I don't like his material!"

Mutterings: Judging from the Hollywood parade, it must be impossible for a man to be a good actor and still wear well-dressed pants. . . . Ode to mayhem: "Frankly, Mr. Zanuck, the answer is no!" . . . Growl: It's high time some courageous exhibitor published a new "box office poison" list. . . . Nervous itch: To give Anita Louise a hot-foot and shout, "Now let's see some animation!" . . . Odd how rapidly Bob Burns faded from screen prominence after one of his films offended union labor. . . . Imaginable hilarious evening: Refereeing an apple-bobbing contest between Martha Raye and Joe E. Brown.

It Could Happen Only in Hollywood: At 20th Century-Fox, a set dresser was arranging an outdoor street scene for "Man Hunt." Theatrical posters being plastered on the alley walls were authentic, but of course several years old. One of them advertised Queenie Leonard in "Wake Up and Dream," a London stage hit of the early thirties. Listed in constantly diminishing type as their roles dwindled in importance were names of the supporting cast, and next to the bottom was a now-familiar one—Anna Neagle. Adding to this irony, Queenie Leonard, too, is in Hollywood. Unable to get an acting job, she's coaching Joan Bennett in a cockney accent for "Man Hunt"!

Eight Years Ago in Hollywood: The Richard Arlens (Jobyna Ralston) were anticipating an heir-rival. . . . Billie Dove and Ranchman Robert Kenaston eloped. . . . Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard were denying a secret marriage. . . . Hollywood mourned the death of Ernest Torrence. . . . Columnists were speculating about possible wedding plans of Myrna Loy and Ramon Novarro. . . . Marlene Dietrich was booed when she wore her much publicized male attire in Paris. . . . Zeppo Marx was robbed twice in a month for a total of $65,000 in valuables. . . . Lupe Velez, called "finished," made a sensational stage comeback in New York.

Odd-Formation: Technically, every actor who assumes a character for a picture is a law-breaker—an ancient city statute makes it a misdemeanor to wear a disguise. . . . To Gary Cooper's own knowledge, 94 families have named sons in his honor, including one named Cohen. . . . The sound of an airplane motor is faked for the screen by massaging a kettle drum with an electric vibrator. . . . A consensus of cameramen listed Marlene Dietrich as the most easily photographed star, Norma Shearer as the most difficult. . . . When the Technicolor director shouts for a "lily" he wants a color test of the players' make-ups.

It's Tito Guizar's tale of the actor who was in court, accused of tossing his wife out a window. The judge deliberated momentarily, then addressed the defendant. "It's dangerous to throw your wife out a window," he scolded. "You might hit a passer-by!"

OUR CHILDREN

DON'T TAKE AWAY CHILD'S RECESS

We all know what recess time meant to us when we were in grade school. The tension of the classroom had become wellnigh unbearable by ten-thirty and when the teacher struck the bell that said, "Recess," and the class filed out decorously as far as the door, and then broke and scattered in madly-yelling, wildly-running rejoicing children, relief was almost as keen as the oppression had been the moment before.

It is not natural for children to sit still in quiet for any length of time. By natural I mean more than inclination. Children need to move about, to keep in action, to work actively and play the same way. Their healthy growth demands it.

The kind of school that holds throughout most of our country today does not permit this. The teacher has to work within the schedule set for her and she is obliged by that to keep the children in silence, in passive attitudes, to get the work done. To most boards of education and most of the fathers and mothers, getting the work done comes before the effect of getting it done in this high-pressure manner may have on the children.

Grown people like to see children sitting in even rows, feet flat on the floor, eyes front, hands folded on the desk in an attitude of prayer. "Good discipline in that room," they say. If they could take a peak at what is going on behind those still eyes and motionless bodies, they would not feel so good about it. The children are suffering under the tension and recess is their one hope of salvation.

Unfortunately, there are still teachers who punish children by depriving them of this recess. Maybe the child turned his head and broke the even line; maybe he did worse—whispered in class; maybe, (horrible thought), he chewed gum, or maybe blotted his spelling paper. "Stay in at recess!" is the penalty.

That is cruelty. It is inflicting inhuman punishment upon a child who is already enduring torture no grown-up person would or could stand. Any grown person is glad to sit still for a time, and do nothing, but no child who attends school ever feels that way. He must get out; he must get hard exercise; he must find relief in shouts and yells and mad gallopings. To deprive him of recess is to impose suffering.

It is a mistake not only from the child's side but from the teacher's. The child who was not paying attention and lost the place, who wiggled and squirmed, who picked up papers to carry them to the basket, was suffering from tension and inactivity, and was obliged to protect himself. Making him sit still to cure the ills sitting still had brought upon him is very bad practice.

That particular child should be given an extra recess, extra work, more activity. Keep him moving. If the whole class is flushed, restless, hard to control and to teach, take them out of the room. Take them into the fresh air, give them a run and a few minutes of complete freedom. When they go back to the room they will make up the time and do better work in better spirit. Tension and inactivity are at the root of most of the classroom difficulties.

Special problems concerning the adjustment of youngsters to their surroundings, from babyhood to adolescence, are considered in Angelo Patri's helpful booklet, "Your Child and Other People." Sunday School Lesson

Sunday School Lesson For April 20
Text: Acts 2:1-4; 4:8-20
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
(Editor of Advance)

The birth of the Christian church is usually dated from the day of Pentecost. Perhaps this was what Jesus meant when, in giving the disciples His commission to make disciples of all nations, He nevertheless instructed them to tarry at Jerusalem until they should receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

Hitherto, Christianity had its growth in the fellowship of a teacher and His disciples moving about from place to place, but now with their Master ascended, the disciples became organized into a more definite fellowship. The church, in its various forms, has continued as an organization until today.

Pentecost was a festival held 50 days after the Passover. A Jewish festival, it became a symbol in the Christian church of the outpouring of spiritual power. We speak today of a "Pentecost of grace," a "Pentecost of blessing," a "Pentecost of power."

What did it mean to receive the Holy Spirit? What do we mean by the Holy Spirit? There have been various forms of definition and interpretation, even among those who had accepted the belief in three persons in the Godhead—Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Some have thought of them as three manifestations of the one God.

It is obvious that in considering the Trinity we are in a realm of mystery, where definitions and explanations are exceedingly difficult and where any one man's human conception may fall far short of reality. Might it not be sufficient to say that the Holy Spirit represented to the disciples the same Presence that Jesus had represented when He was among them? The baptism of the Holy Spirit is the baptism of God; the power of the Holy Spirit is the power of God manifest in the hearts and lives of men.

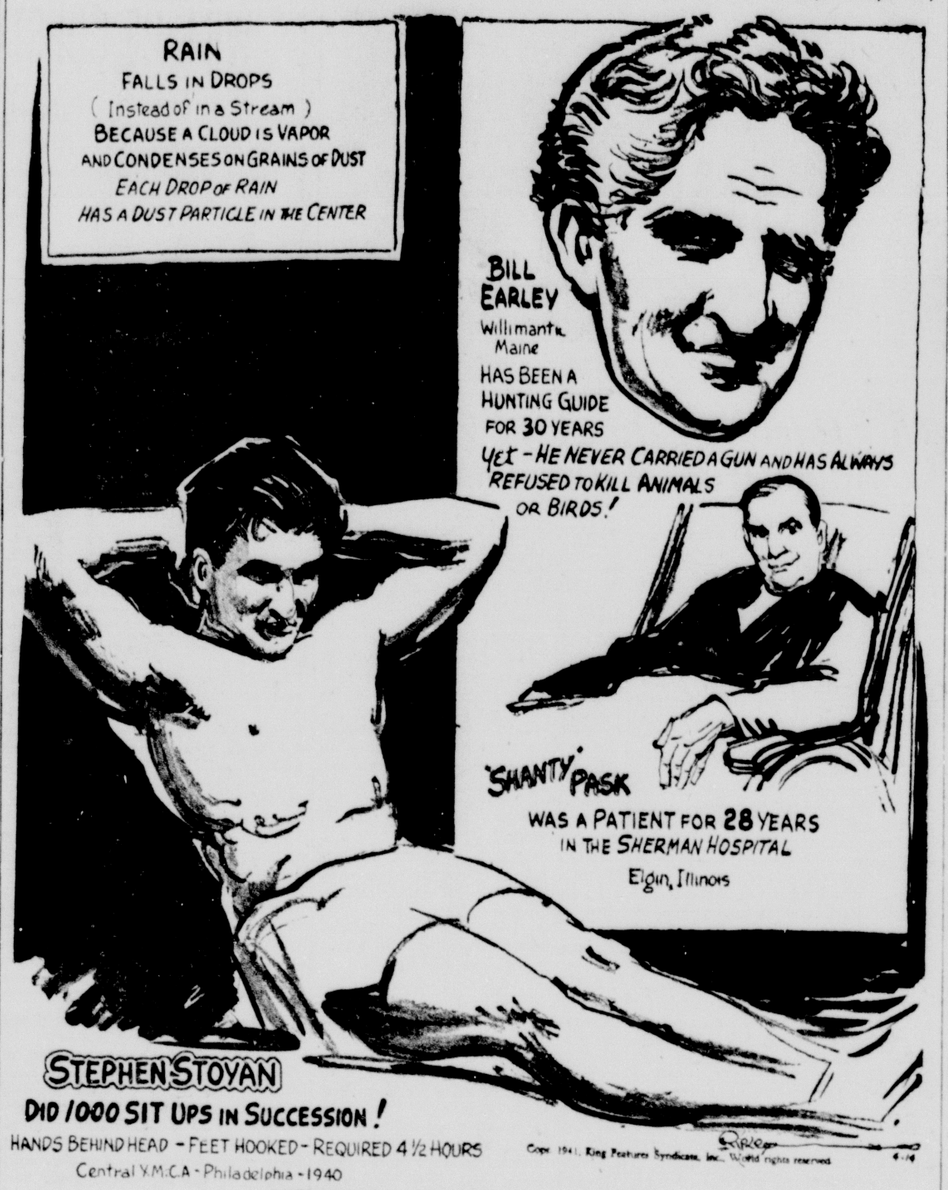

What, then, was the distinct outpouring of the spirit on the Day of Pentecost? Was it not that manifestation of power that comes when Christians are in fellowship, of one mind in one place, seeking with all the earnestness and power of co-operative action the same experience and the same equipmnt for service? Much the same experience has resulted wherever Christians have met together, fulfilling the conditions of Pentecost.

We can easily make too much of the physical manifestations that accompanied the spiritual experience. These, even "speaking with tongues," are phenomena that have frequently been manifested in various forms. They offer no problem of belief.

Neither do such manifestations add anything to the spiritual experience which was all-important. It might be said, in fact, that too great interest in the physical manifestations has not been altogether wholesome, for we have been again and again physical manifestations of emotion and excitemen leading to inexplainabie actions that have after all little to do with vital religious experience.

The great thing is that we should emulate Pentecost in the seeking of power to fulfill the commission that Jesus gave His disciples, that is a commission to us also.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—Oh, the life of a member of the new national defense mediation board is not a merry one, as the 11 men and most of their 11 alternates have discovered.

When the board first met, a week after it was appointed, it conducted routine organization and then optimistically adjourned for two weeks and two days, waiting for the first case to be certified to it by the labor department.

Then the members scattered to their regular jobs, and since the president's order specified that they were to get $25 a day plus expenses while actually on the job, they thought they were off the payroll. Instead, they've all worked every day including Sundays and at such hours as would bring the blush of shame to any advocate of the eight-hour day, or even the 12- or 16-hour day.

On the week-end that they tackled the Allis-Chalmers case, their first session ran through to 1 a.m. Sunday morning and except for scrub women and janitors, they were practically the only occupants of the big Social Security building which is O. P. M.-Ordnance headquarters.

The negotiators nearly caved in, though the negotiations fortunately didn't, and the basis for agreement was reached in 22 hours of dickering. Then, after the terms were announced Sunday night, the employe representatives were flown back to Milwaukee by a navy transport plane, so that the agreement could be ratified without delay.

The small staff includes Ernest P. Marsh, loaned by the conciliation service as temporary executive secretary, the good Mrs. Abbott, who is Chairman Dykstra's secretary, a press relations man and a few stenographers recruited from O. P. M.

As the full board met April 10 for its first regular session attended by the entire membership it therefore had behind it two weeks of strenuous experience in which three and four-member panels had tackled half a dozen important cases, but it still had no policy. To adopt that policy and formulate its rules of procedure were the two things the board hoped would come out of this meeting—if it could just find time off from its practice long enough to establish principles. Its two rules now are: (1) Go back to work. (2) Come to Washington and talk it over.

In the last war, in addition to a national war labor board, paralleling the present national defense mediation board, there was a war labor policies board. This board set up standards of working conditions, like the 8-hour day, many of which are now accepted provisions of existing labor law. In return for these guarantees in the last war, organized labor agreed that there should be no strikes during the war, and did not extend organizational activities to plants where there were no unions.

Leaders Divided

Whether concessions such as these could be obtained from labor today is extremely doubtful. If it came to a showdown, official Washington would probably split right down the middle.

Congress apparently would be in decided favor of limiting the powers of unions for the duration of the emergency. The administrative side of government, insofar as it has shown its hand, favors riding on labor law and labor administration as now constituted. In other words, keep the so-called Wagner act, the fair labor standards law, wages and hours guarantees, N. L. R. B. and the existing machinery of the labor department, including conciliation service backed up by the national defense mediation board.

In the last war, there were only three real challenges of the old war labor board's powers. Western Union, declining to comply with a board order that it cease discrimination against union men, was ordered taken over by the postoffice department for the duration, through a presidential decree. The Bridgeport case and Smith & Wesson case, in which employes in the former and employers in the latter refused to abide by board decisions, were likewise threatened with government seizure and operation. All three complied with the board before the orders could be put into effect.

HONORS IN VOLLEY BALL TO BE SOUGHT

The annual volley ball tournament to be held on the campus of the Crosley school, April 26, will be participated in by all elementary schools of the Ouachita parish school system.

Present possessors of the loving cups awarded last year are: Crosley, class A boys, and Drew, class A, girls; Millsaps, class B boys, and Lenwil, class B, girls. Cups for runners-up teams are held by Swartz, class A boys, and Crosley, class A girls. In class B, the runners-up cups for both boys and girls are held by the Lapine school.

GOLD GOING

In the next 15 years, the gold supply of South Africa, which has furnished more than half of the world's output, is expected to become almost exhausted.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

France May Get Food From African Colonies

WHILE hunger stalks unoccupied France, officials of the Vichy government eye abundant supplies in French North Africa, consider armed convoys to bring food 400 miles across the British-patroled Mediterranean. Record crops have given Morocco, Tunis and Algeria ample surpluses of wheat, wine, fruits, vegetables. Getting them past the blockade is France's problem.

Typical of many Moroccan cities is Sefrou, pictured on the stamp above. Sefrou's people are not worrying about ration cards.

French North Africa has long been an important source of food for the mother country. During World War I, with the Allies in control of the Mediterranean, a bridge of ships carried vast quantities of supplies from Africa to Europe. Besides grains, fish and fruits, the three colonies also sent pre-war France hides, wool, cotton, phosphates and metals.

ORPHANGE GIFTS WILL BE RECEIVED

A special offering will be received in all Methodist churches of Louisiana today for the support of the Louisiana Methodist orphanage at Ruston.

The orphanage relies solely on Easter and Thanksgiving offerings for support, it being the only orphanage in the state of this denomination.

It is stated that the need for payment of building repairs as well as for running expenses is great and it is urged that all offerings be as large as possible.

Offerings in the Twin Cities will be received at teh First Methodist churches of Monroe and West Monroe, at Stone Avenue church and Gordon Avenue Methodist church.

DRAFT BOARD NO. 2 NAMES 12 FOR CAMP

Twelve men have been selected for induction by Ouachita draft board No. 2, and will be required to report at the board office in the city hall in that city, Monday at 9:30 a.m. They are to be sent by bus to Camp Livingston. The men are: Elbert Mitchell Parks, Leandrew Gray, Horace Wilson, Jr., George William Head, Grover Potts, George Turner Sumler, Clarence Jones, John Arthur Jones, Joe Britton, John Johnson, Kenneth Marion Henry and Percy James Jackson.

Substitutes, should any be needed, are the following: Samuel Shaw, Jewel Thomas, John Cornelius Johnson, and Marion Smith.

PAPEETE, Tahiti—(AP)—The idea that demoralized shipping in war-time might enforce something akin to prohibition on bibulous Tahiti seems ill-founded. Bri coe, Wewahitchka, Fla., points ou that such bridges, long ago, were pu together with pins and pegs of woo and that it was essential to prote these many little details of construc tion from decay. . . . Ivan Gentr San Bernardino, Calif., sends me picture of a fine old covered brid in Oregon . . . and a lot of us ha supposed that covered bridges wer to be found only in the East! Harry M. Woods, Ellsworth, Me thinks protection of the woode trusses was justification enough fo covering the bridges. . . . S. J. Ma thews, Kansas City, points out tha wooden truss railroad bridges alway had joints and pins protected by ti cowling, which was kept painted. So, turning from this interesting pil of letters about covered bridges, delve into "Kabloona," a fascinatin story of Arctic life by a man wit the difficult name of Gontran d Poncins. That author would be justi fied in taking an American pen name . . . He makes me want to go to th deep Arctic, where there are no bu strikes, subway strikes, or soapbo orators.

TECH STUDENTS OFFER PENNIES

Ruston Offering Today To Include Coppers Dropped In Fish Pool

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—Part of the Easter Sunday offering to the Louisiana Methodist orphanage at Ruston will be 510 pennies and a 25-cent piece retrieved from a fish pool around an ornamental fountain on the campus at Louisiana Tech.

Sam Linder, the campus gardener, found the $5.35 in coins, weighing four pounds, when he cleaned out the pool the other day. The only thing "fishy" about it, however, was the smell of the coins; and they have been cleaned and made ready for use again.

The money was placed on deposit in the pool in response to an editorial written several weeks ago by Dennis Shell, Winnfield, then editor of the Tech Talk and now employed by the Bienville Democrat of Arcadia. His editorial in the Tech paper said, in part:

"Up at Annapolis, Md., the midshipmen are accustomed to tossing loose pennies at a bronze Indian statue for good luck during athletic contests and for help with individual problems . . . Here at Tech, with 'The Lady of the Mist' fountain, we are able to build a tradition as sacred as that made by the Annapolis midshipmen, and the causes to which the money could be donated are plentiful. Within the city limits of Ruston there is an orphanage, for example, which undoubtedly could find numerous uses for such offerings . . . So if you have bought your postage stamps and still have loose pennies confusing your large change, why not throw them away? Toss them in the fish pond."

The suggestion promptly caught hold. But some of the students, or others, not at first familiar with the budding tradition, could not resist the temptation to reach into the water and get the coins they saw shining from the bottom of the pool. Lately, however, the coppers have been allowed to remain unmolested.

In carrying out the suggestion of his predecessor, the present student editor-in-chief of the Tech Talk, E. W. Carswell of Ringgold, said he would take the coins Sunday morning to the Ruston Methodist church to be added to the annual Easter offerings made to the orphanage here.

In the money bag will be a clipping of Shell's editorial and a letter from Kenneth F. Hewins, director of publications at Tech, explaining the manner in which the students "pooled" their pennies for the orphans.

If the tradition continues, it is likely that another collection of pennies from the pond will be available for the annual October contributions to the orphanage here, it was state.

VIEWS OF MODERN NORTHEAST JUNIOR COLLEGE LIBRARY

Entrance to the college library, above left, which was erected and equipped in 1939 at a cost of approximately $125,000. This building ranks as one of the most modern junior college libraries in the United States. Above right, the spacious reading room of the library affords seats for a large group. Draperies, indirect lighting, and paneled walls of Louisiana gum add to the beauty of the room. The informal browsing room, shown at lower left, was designed to encourage general reading. An up-to-date collection of new fiction and readable non-fiction is shelved here to develop broad reading interests. An open fireplace, circular tables, draperies and fireside chairs provide a homelike atmosphere in this popular room, while lower right is pictured a section of the open-shelf library stacks with Juanita Lippmin getting a bound magazine and Carolyn Royce selecting a reserve book. The student in the background is seated at one of the cubicles provided on both stack levels for individual study.

OLD AGE INSURANCE CREDITS OBTAINABLE

The Monroe Social Security Board field office has on hand a supply of post cards, already addressed to the Social Security board, bearing a printed request on the opposite side with space provided for the sender's signature, his social security account number, and postoffice address. This card, when signed and mailed, will bring to the individual signing the card a statement of all wages credited to his old-age and survivors insurance account, P. L. Dark, manager, said yesterday.

"Every worker should be interested in knowing the status of his old-age and survivors insurance account," Mr. Dark said, "since the amount of his insurance benefits are based on wages credited to his account. To obtain a statement as to his wage credits, a wage earner must only secure one of these post cards, fill in the blanks as indicated, attach a one-cent stamp, and place it in a mail box. Within the time necessary for the card to go to Baltimore and come back to his mailing address, he will be in possession of the information requested."

Mr. Dark emphasized the importance of securing wage statements in cases where workers have been or expect to be inducted into the military service and persons change from covered to non-covered employment. "It's just like a savings account," he said, "and anyone possessing a savings account wants to know how much he has put away for a rainy day."

The Monroe Social Security board field office will be glad to furnish these cards to individuals or employe groups in such quantities as desired, upon request by mail or in person, Mr. Dark concluded.

HOMER GIRL IS ELECTED HEAD OF TECH SORORITY

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—Janice Tarpley of Homer has been elected president of the Louisiana Tech chapter of Theta Upsilon, national social sorority. She will succeed Amy Sue Furlow of Elizabeth, who will graduate in June.

Having taken an active part in the events of the sorority since she entered the college, Miss Tarpley has held several offices in the organization, includes the vice-presidency in 1940-41.

Other officers elected by the sorority include Margaret Mae Saunders, Shreveport, vice-president; Mary Catherine McGinty, Alexandria, secretary; Charlotte Hollis, Marion, treasurer; Virginia Pearce, Bunkie, editor; Madeline Maddox, Ruston, ex-collegio officer; Josephine Wilson, Alexandria, social chairman, and Mary Walker, Shreveport, chaplain.

The date for the installation of the new officers was not announced, but it is expected that the heads will take charge of the organization soon.

FAY GILBERT WILL HEAD TECH WOMEN'S LEAGUE

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—Fay Gilbert, Tallulah, unopposed candidate for president of the Women's League at Louisiana Tech, will head that organization during the ensuing year, it has been announced.

Other officers recently elected are: Roberta Dillon, Athens, vice-president; Beverly Jane Broadwell, Alexandria, secretary, and Elizabeth Orr, Bastrop, treasurer.

Representatives to serve on the board of directors of the Women's League will be elected by the following groups: Aswell hall, Harper hall, drive-in, town and boarding students.

Officers serving the organization during the past year were: Evelyn McGee, Bernice, president; Fay Gilbert, vice-president; Lucy Nell Wainwright, Farmerville, secretary, and Roberta Dillon, treasurer.

TO GIVE PLAY

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—The senior class of Ruston High school will present a play, "Don't Take My Penny," Thursday afternoon and night. Dual casting was necessary, and one group will present the afternoon and another, the night performance, Miss Martha Clingan, director, stated.

STATE WILL GET 9 AIR PROJECTS

$3,201,805 To Be Spent In Louisiana In Federal, Sponsors' Funds

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Nine projects to cost $3,201,805 in federal and sponsors funds in Louisiana and projects costing $2,369,063 in Mississippi were included by the Work Projects administration in a $15,000,000 airport construction program that will extend to 350 defense sites.

Howard O. Hunter, acting WPA commissioner, in announcing the program today, said it included military and naval fields and civilian fields which have been specifically designated by the war and navy department as important to the country's expanding air forces.

The program, he said, probably would extend to a total of 400 sites by next July 1.

Already $250,000,000 in WPA and sponsor funds have been expended on avaition projects, Hunter said, during the past 5 1-2 years.

The projects now under way range from grading of fields and paving of runways to construction of buildings and installation of utilities and lighting equipment.

A month ago, Hunter said, 60,000 WPA workers were employed on the airport projects included in the $150,000,000 program. Workers' weeks are being increased from 30 to 40 hours, when necessary, to 48 hours, he added.

WPA projects and the estimated cost in WPA funds follow:

Louisiana:

Projects approved for operation by WPA:

Shreveport municipal airport, $277,115; East Baton Rouge parish airport $324,264; East Baton Rouge parish airport $348,647; New Orleans air squadron observation base $260,269; New Orleans Naval air training base $308,206; Alexandria, Camp Beauregard, $192,525; Camp Beauregard, $179,568; Camp Beauregard, $95,865.

Projects approved for operation by the war department, with WPA funds:

Shreveport, Barksdale Field, $200,000.

Mississippi:

Projects approved for operation by WPA:

Hattiesburg municipal airport, $221,000; Jackson municipal airport, $829,252; Greenwood, Leflore county airport, $101,961; Meridian, Key Field airport $40,169; Meridian, Key Field airport, $527,313.

Gasoline tax revenue of the states in 1940 exceeded the total pay rolls for the year of all the automobile body and parts factories in the United States.

Federal gasoline taxes reached a estimated total of $286,000,000 in 194 equivalent to $645 for each perso gainfully employed in the automobi industry.

Kauffman Will Continue To Act 'In Best Interests Of Denmark'

ASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—The ish foreign office in Copenhagen y recalled Henrik de Kauffman inister to the United States but envoy, who signed the Greenland the ship sale agreements with country, has determined to disre- the order.

The instructions obviously were by the foreign office under ess," said a spokesman at the lega- and the minister feels it his duty emain here.

e Kauffman did not advise his gov- ment of the action until after the nal announcement was made here noon Thursday. Then he sent a thy cable which included the text he agreement and his exchange of s with Secretary Hull.

e received a bare acknowledgment the receipt of his report from penhagen only today and this was owed immediately by the order his recall. The legation spokesman ted out that all communications and from Copenhagen go by way Berlin.

e Kauffman plans to notify Hull he recall order "as a matter of n," the spokesman said, but it ected that the United States will tinue to recognize him as the offi- representative of his country.

he minister issued a statement mediately after the German occupa- n of his homeland explaining that e the Danish government was er Nazi duress, he would act inde- dently of Copenhagen in the best erests of Denmark.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA STARS

Meet the percussion section of the Houston Symphony orchestra. Philmore Gilbert, left, is the Houston Symphony orchestra's typanist. The outstanding quality of his work was recognized last summer by the award of a scholarship for advanced study at the famous Berkshire Music Festival school, headed by Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony. E. E. Stokes, center, who has been a member of the Houston Symphony orchestra since its first concert in 1913. He is considered one of the best routined men of this country in his field. This, coupled with his rhythm and reading ability, makes him most outstanding. Too much stress cannot be placed on the importance of the key man of the percussion section. Alexandrovitch Nikiforoff, right, Houston Symphony percussionist, was born in Russia, became a United States citizen, and fought for this country in the last World war. He has been a member of the symphony for ten years. In the photograph he is holding the cymbals. Other instruments played by him are the triangle, the bass drum, the gong, the tom-tom, and the tambourin. This orchestra will appear at Neville High school auditorium, April 17 at 8 p.m., under the auspices of the Monroe Civic Music association.

HONEST 36 YEARS

BEATRICE, Nebr., April 12.—(AP)—Gage County Treasurer Earl Mudge found a taxpayer with elastic honesty stretching over 36 years. The taxpayer asked for a 1905 tax receipt. Records showed the assessment never had been paid, so Mudge sent a bill for $4.30. Today Mudge had the $4.30—plus interest of $14.35 for 36 years.

Unless defense production interferes, car deliveries in 1941 should exceed by 250,000 the 3,365,000 cars sold last year to establish a 12-year record.

STEELE WILL BE TRIED THIS WEEK

Fugitive Orchestra Leader Accused Of Assaulting Federal Officer

Scheduled to face trial here this week in federal court to reconvene Monday is Robert E. (Blue) Steele, well-known orchestra leader, who is charged with assaulting a federal officer, it was announced Saturday by Malcolm Lafargue, assistant United States district attorney.

An Associated Press report said that Steele, apprehended last Wednesday at Laredo, Texas, was put under $3,000 bond for removal to Monroe after he was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Frank Y. Hill Saturday.

After an altercation in Lake Providence last summer with Sidney H. Pratt, Monroe, internal revenue officer, Steele fled to Mexico City, where he has been a fugitive since, Mr. Lafargue said. Apprehended Wednesday in Laredo, Tex., by federal officers, the orchestra leader will be returned here for trial, the attorney said.

Steele failed to appear for arraignment in federal court here last October and surety was ordered forfeited on his $2,000 bond.

Previously federal agents had levied a distraint on his musical instruments on internal revenue charges. Pratt, who has charge of the case, was allegedly assaulted by the orchestra leader in a hotel cafe in Lake Providence when he attempted to collect taxes allegedly due the government.

GENERAL MARSHALL INSPECTS CLAIBORNE

CAMP CLAIBORNE, La., April 12.—(AP)—General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, after his inspection of the 34th division here today, declared he was "very much pleased" with progress made by the troops from Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

The general arrived at the camp during the regular Saturday morning inspection of the eleven regiments and stopped frequently to talk with enlisted men and their officers who were carrying out the inspection.

The most frequent question he asked concerned the length of service of the enlisted men in the 34th which has been in camp only two months.

After the whirlwind visit General Marshall left by airplane for Texarkana, Tex., to attend the funeral of the late Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas.

'FREEZING' OF OIL PRICES IS FEARED

NEW ORLEANS, April 12.—(AP)—Officers of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, meeting here preparatory to Monday's sessions of the Interstate Oil Compact commission and the Cole congressional committee, expressed concern today over possible "freezing" of the price of crude oil at an unfair level.

Frank Buttream of Oklahoma City, Okla., president of the association and for 26 years an oil producer, declared that federal pegging of prices on most other basic commodities would not be as harmful to their producers as in the case of oil. The price of petroleum, he said, has not followed recent rises in other lines.

Buttream said the government's Venezuelan trade agreement, which went into effect last year, had increased oil imports into the United States.

PEPPER 'FED UP' ON OBSTRUCTION

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., April 12.—(AP)—Senator Claude Pepper, Florida Democrat, said today that the nation "is about fed up with obstruction to the national effort—whatever source it comes from."

"The nation," he declared in a speech prepared for delivery at the convention of the Florida Bankers' Association, "is beginning to inquire what is the motive behind those who throw monkey wrenches in the defense machinery."

Pepper asserted that there "is no place in America today for a profit war between capital and labor, employer and employe."

"Every man is due justice," he added, "but he who takes advantage of the national peril to gain undue advantage is giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

ATTORNEY GENERAL SUES EDWARD WOODS

BATON ROUGE, La., April 12.—(AP)—R. H. Lee, attorney for the state crime commission, announced today that suit had been filed in Pointe Coupee parish district court claiming $1,520.43 from Edward F. Woods, former assistant enforcement director of the fisheries, fur and wildlife division of the conservation department.

The suit was filed in behalf of the conservation department, the attorney general and the crime commission.

Lee made available a copy of the petition, which declared the sum sought for represented extra expense funds obtained from the conservation department "through the use of false and fraudulently altered receipts and supporting documents and vouchers and through fraudulent submission of claims or expenses not actually incurred in the service of said department."

ONE PERSON INDICTED IS RELEASED ON BOND

Bond for three persons who were indicted last Thursday by the Ouachita parish grand jury was fixed Saturday and one was released after making bond, while the other two were remanded to jail for failure to make bond, Sheriff Milton Coverdale announced.

Isaac Head, 30, negro, charged with

VICTIM OF HARLAN LABOR STRIFE

Charlie Ruth, 30, a member of the United Mine Workers, lies dead on the floor of the commissary at the Crummies Creek Coal company, near Harlan, Ky., after an outburst of gun fire that killed four men and wounded five others. Men are removing his body shortly after the shooting which took place as C. I. O. members were picketing the 43 coal mines in Harlan county pending the completion of negotiations for a new Appalachian area working contract.

assault with intent to kill, made bond for $500.

Luther Bingham, 22, charged with failure to stop a motor vehicle at the scene of an accident, and also charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was remanded to parish jail when he failed to make $250 bond.

Charged with assault with intent to rape, John Lacara was also remanded to jail when he failed to make bond for $1,500 bond.

Others indicted are Arnold Turner, charged with breaking and entering a store in the night time, free on bond, and Hura Lee Hill, 15, negro, charged with murder, who is in jail.

HE FINDS THREE WIVES TOO MANY

Minneapolis Man Finally Decides To Plead Guilty Of Bigamy

MINNEAPOLIS, April 12.—(AP)—"Why," asked Detective William Loring, investigating prowlers, "do you keep irregular hours?"

Raymand A. Harmon, 33, hesitated, then blurted out:

"You'd keep irregular hours, too, if you had three wives!"

"You got three wives?" blurted back Loring.

"I'm a busy man," continued Harmon. "I got worries with three women and four kids."

"Let's," suggested Loring, "go down to the station."

There, Loring reported, Harmon told of marrying Rachael Nordquist in 1931 and having two children; marrying Mary LeBlanc in 1935 and having two more children, and lastly, Helen Daniels, 19, three months ago, each without a divorce.

Wives Nos. 1 and 2 knew about each other, Loring said, but wife No. 2 thought Harmon was Anton LeGuerre and to wife No. 3 he was Ray A. LeJere.

Most of the time, Loring said, Harmon lived with wife No. 2 but had given up living with wife No. 1. As for wife No. 3, she said Harmon explained his absences by telling her he was looking for work or working out of town as a painter.

Lieutenant Blanche Jones, policewoman, said Harmon would buy clothes for one wife, then take them away and give them to another wife to wear.

All this wasn't his only trouble. He gave two names to draft boards; then wife No. 2 sued him for non-support.

"But he won't have to worry about any of it now," said Lieutenant Jones. "We're going to charge him with bigamy and he says he's ready to plead guilty. Those wives are plenty mad."

Expecting a Baby?

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER XII

Beatrice felt her heart thump, astonishingly. A date with Mr. Bradley! "The idea is ridiculous!" she snapped.

Yet, the next morning she found herself watching him. He listened with courteous attention as an indignant customer poured out her wrath. He listened with the same politeness while Miss Dane waved her blood-red nails under his nose, laying down the law.

He was different with Miss Getz, though. Not quite deferential, but not merely polite, either. Gentle, that was it. The old silly, why did she shake as he surveyed the department? It was his job to keep everything up to scratch. He certainly wasn't spying on her, or even thinking about the fact that she wasn't as fast and busy as the other girls.

This morning, under the usual gardenia in his buttonhole, he wore a black and white badge with a crimson ribbon.

"SCOTCH SALE" proclaimed the letters on the badge.

Beatrice's lips quirked. There were banners all over the basement in celebration of Scotch Sales, but this badge was too much.

"Miss Davis," he called.

"Yes, sir?"

"You're not wearing a Scotch Sale badge."

"Oh, was I supposed to?"

His throat, above his immaculate white collar, grew brick red. As if he guessed she'd been laughing at him.

"You will find a badge at the wrapping deck." He added, coldly, "Perhaps the badge will help customers to distinguish you as a salesperson. I saw two customers walk right past you with dresses over their arms."

"I—I thought Miss Getz was taking care of them,' 'she said softly. She had deliberately turned them over to Getzie, that's what she'd done.

Mr. Bradley had the grace to look less severe. A salesgirl at the other end of the department raised an arm, signaling for him, and he left her.

A harried, perspiring matron, herding a sulky, 16-year-old girl before her, claimed Beatrice's attention. "Have you something suitable for a formal dance, miss? She wants an evening gown, but I think some kind of dress she might be able to wear on Sundays afterwards—"

Beatrice had written seven more sales slips, and waited on two women who had promised to come back after they looked about some more, when Mr. Bradley stopped her as she started for lunch. "I see you never bothered about the badge, Miss Davis."

"Oh!" she had genuinely forgotten the stupid badge. "I've been so busy. Anyway, it can't mean much, one way or the other. The customers seem to know there's a sale on, and I've done very well without a badge."

Mr. Bradley's brown eyes snapped, and his big hand gripped the edge of the wrapping desk. "Are you trying to make a fool of me?" he asked angrily.

"Well, really, Mr. Bradley!" She was honestly astonished. "I don't understand you. Just because I forgot to get one of those silly badges . . ."

She was suddenly angry. Everyone around her with the slightest scrap of authority seemed positively determined to exercise it, insultingly, on her! "As for trying to make a fool of you . . . don't you manage rather well by yourself?"

Painful red flooded into the man's lean face. He opened his mouth. The brown eyes took in the heightened color of Beatrice's cheeks, the snapping eyes, and suddenly Mr. Bradley closed his mouth again, without saying anything.

"You're all riding me!" Beatrice cried. "Just because I don't talk the way the other girls do! Just because I know something about style and fashion and try to help these blundering idiots who come in here rigged up like caricatures!"

Mr. Bradley's expression changed.

Beatrice said quickly, "Excuse me for saying that about being a fool . . . I didn't mean it. It's just that I've taken so many gratuitous insults from so many people around here lately, and haven't been allowed to retort even once. I'm not accustomed to this Spartan self-control." Her smile flashed. "Will you forgive me?"

Mr. Bradley said quietly, "Forget it. I couldn't fire you if I wanted to, if that's what you're thinking. My authority is extremely limited. So limited it is non-existent. And like you, Miss Davis, I'm not accustomed to Spartan self-control either."

Miss Dane's rheumy eye spied them. She hurried over, her tight black dress straining at the seams, her blood-red nails startling against the pearls she pulled on nervously. "Aren't you going to lunch, Miss Davis? Don't hold us up!"

Beatrice looked at Mr. Bradley and he looked back at her. Then she went to get her handbag.

At the elevator, he was waiting. "It's my time to eat, too. Do you mind if I—if I lunch with you?"

"I'd love it."

All at once, the feud was over. Yet, in the cafeteria, he leaned across the table and said, "I've had the feeling, ever since you came, that you've been laughing at me. Why?"

"I haven't been." But she had been amused.

"I know I look a clown in that department full of women! I'm starting a career. If they told me to sweep up the floor, I'd grit my teeth and do it."

"I didn't know that was the way department store executives started."

"It's supposed to be the best way. The man I room with rides me about it. He kids the gardenia, and every time someone calls at our place he bows, 'This way, moddom.' If I even start hunting for a shirt, he's right there with, 'Underwear in the second aisle to your left'."

"You shouldn't pay any attention to him. It makes you self-conscious. That's probably why you thought I was laughing at you, too. But I wasn't. I've been busy learning my job. It's all new to me. I've concentrated on making that quota. And I thought I was doing fine when you bawled me out for advising the customers. . . ."

He played with a fork. "Miss Dane's orders."

"She doesn't know as much as she thinks she does! Times have changed since she started. I'm sure what I was trying to do is much better than selling a customer any dress, just to sell it. And it's my dream to prove I'm right."

"It's my dream to get out from under her thumb," he said. "In a couple of months, I ought to be way out. I—I'm studying merchandising at night, in a school of business administration."

"How wonderful! But aren't you dog tired at the end of the day?"

He grinned. "I almost explode with stifled yawns." Then he asked, "How did you ever get into Huntington's? You're so different from the other girls. I mean—just as you said when you were angry with me—you talk differently, you've been—well, differently educated . . ."

"So have you, haven't you?"

"I used to think I'd be an architect," he admitted. "An old friend of the family wanted to see me through, but I couldn't let him support me indefinitely until I established myself. And an architect doesn't become established overnight.

"Besides, I figured it out that store merchandising and management has structure and form to it, too. I—I can't explain exactly. But it takes the same kind of mind. You plan for effects, results. You're building. Of course it's not so tangible, and maybe I'm crazy. . . ."

"You're not crazy!" She looked around the crowded room where salesgirls, wrappers, stock girls, shipping clerks, markers, and alteration hands were eating their lunches.

"Most of the people who work for a store like this seem to have drifted into it. They're not career people, they don't bring superior minds and any enthusiasm or even interest to the job. Oh, I'm not blaming them most of them never had a chance. But, Mr. Bradley, if you see this store differently—if you see it the way an architect sees the vision of a house that hasn't even been started yet—if you're really so absorbed and sincere that you're going to school at night after a hard day here—why, I think nothing can stop you from coming out on top!" She was breathless, carried away. "You could be general superintendent, some day!"

"I don't think Mr. Sheldrake need do any overtime worrying," he smiled. "But if you think I'm a ball of fire, you're the first girl who ever did. And that's heartening."

Lots of girls must have l-liked you. . . ." She dropped her eyes. Suddenly she caught sight of her wristwatch. "Mercy, I've got to run!"

"There's not much time for mutual understanding in Huntington's, is there?" he asked ruefully. "I haven't a class tonight. Could I come around and call for you after dinner? We could go into this ball of fire stuff more thoroughly."

HERE'S STORY THAT REALLY IS 'CORKER'

SHREVEPORT, La., April 12—(AP)—Here's a story that may well be termed a "corker":

Two weeks ago Robert E. Adams mourned the disappearance of $40—his whole week's pay. He considered himself a "hard-luck guy."

A happy ending came today, however, when he found the money—in his cork leg. Adams said he apparently had put the money in his trousers pocket in which there was a hole, and the money fell through into the artificial limb.

1,479,359 IN U. S. MILITARY FORCES

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Expanding American land, sea and air forces attained today a combined strength approaching a million and one half men.

Official muster rolls showed a grand total of 1,479,359 officers and men on active service with the army, navy and marine corps. Inclusion of more than 25,000 coast guardsmen, who in wartime operate under navy orders, would swell the figure past a million and a half.

HORNED TOAD CAPTURED BY SMALL BOYS HERE

Three small boys, Dick Darden of 104 Jonesboro road, Vance Ingram, of 110 Lindbergh street, and Herman DeLoach, Jonesboro road, all attending Ransom school in West Monroe, discovered and captured a good-sized horned toad when returning home from school on Friday afternoon.

They proceeded to place it in a bottle and will take it to their teacher Monday, they said, as they exhibited the trophy at the offices of the Morning World Saturday.

Horned toads are rather rare in this vicinity but are often found in west Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

Sales of house trailers dropped 35 per cent in 1939 from the 1937 mark, and it is estimated that the 1940 total showed even a further decline.

A group of 26 men has been named by Ouachita service board No. 1. They reported Saturday morning at the board's office and will leave by bus, Monday at 8 a.m., for Camp Livingston. The men are as follows:

Leroy Anding, Lonnie Bowman, Tommy Campbell, Lafayette Vergen Dobbins, Matthew Frison, Ovlin Hollingsworth, Adam Joe McGuire, Robert Reed, Frank Barton, Richard R. Grossley, Lee Andrew Lowe, Adolph Arthur Crossley, Franz Clarence Dunn, Eddie Hilley, Lynn Washington, Anderson Cheffin, Morris Johnson, Milton Williams, Henry Stewart, James Smith, Frank Pullen, Andrew Jones, Percy Gill, Joseph Dorsey, Ulysses Jones, and Eleazor Wagner.

Replacements, if required, were named as follows: Cleveland Candler, Otis McGlother, and Herman Barfield.

MRS. COX'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Hattie Cox, 66, who died of a heart attack Friday night, will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday at her residence, 613 Grammont street, with Rev. R. T. Watson of the First Christian church officiating. Assisting him will be Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church. Interment will follow in the Old City cemetery under direction of the Mulhearn Funeral home.

Pallbearers will be Dr. W. L. Bendel, D. K. Litton, Frank Cline, Sam Simpson, E. B. Johnson, W. E. Lawson, and Louis Pinehart.

She is survived by the following children: Miss Hazel Cox, Miss Myrtle Cox, both of Monroe; Mrs. C. L. Blanks, Shreveport; Mrs. Henry Elliot, Alexandria; a son, Robert Cox, Monroe, and three grandchildren, Thelma Carolyn Blanks and Merilyn Blanks, both of Shreveport; and Willis H. Anders, III, of Alexandria.

Surviving her are also two half-brothers, W. J. Vinson, Swartz; Grover W. Vinson, Chicago, Ill.; two half-sisters, Mrs. J. L. Madden, New Orleans, and Mrs. Milton Wright, Del Rio, Tex.

Mrs. Cox suffered a stroke shortly after she had been removed Friday from a local hospital where she was confined for six weeks. She had suffered fractures of both legs six weeks ago when she fell from her front steps while attempting to locate a neighborhood fire.

SINGING CONVENTION OF PARISH SLATED

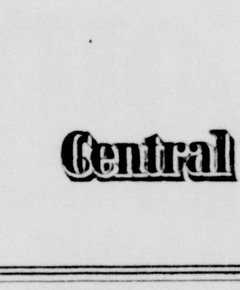

The regular semi-annual meeting of the Ouachita Parish Singing convention will be held Sunday, April 27, at the New Chapel Hill Baptist church, located eight miles west of Monroe on the Arkansas road.

The convention will be directed by Luther L. Kilpatrick, who has been president of the group for 11 years. Doris Avant is secretary.

The public is invited to attend.

SATTERFIELD DIES

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—The reconstruction finance corporation announced today William R. Satterfield, 67, its assistant general counsel and a former Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee attorney, died in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, last night.

"and on earth---"

In Europe, this Easter day there is no land of the free—no freedom in the air—no freedom of the sea—no freedom of speech, of the press—of worship.

In Europe, today, friend, there is nothing free—nothing safe—nothing good—nothing worth while—and everything is headed toward nothing.

In America the war clouds may threaten—but all is still well—and there is a just and merciful God in heaven!

Sing loud your praises today, friend, and bend those knees in grateful prayer—for verily you have much to be thankful for—indeed much "as time goes on."

Capital Column

By Norman Walker

BATON ROUGE, La., April 12.—(AP)—April 12.—(AP)—The state may run into a snag in efforts to procure a portable electric chair by June 1, when electrocution replaces hanging as means for carrying out the death penalty in Louisiana.

Industries piled high with defense orders running into millions of dollars are hard pressed to fill minor orders and it may be that the steel or iron fabricators or whatever metal an electric chair is made of won't get around to making Louisiana's death chair for a while.

Bids have been asked to be submitted April 16 but the delay may come in filling the contract.

Quite an increasing number of state contracts have been delayed in fulfillment by concerns busy with more imoprtant defense work. It took months to get iron fire-escapes fabricated and delivered to a state school for the deaf here.

Then the institutions department reports it is having difficulty procuring surgical instruments, due to the heavy demand on the instrument industry in furnishing hospitals at the new army camps. Many such instruments are made in foreign countries and their delivery over troubled seaplanes is an uncertain business.

This is not to say there is a dearth of surgical instruments at the state hospitals. Institutions director J. E. Snee has explained that the hospitals always keep an extra suppiy on hand. Thus in case certain instruments don't get delivered on time for the opening of the new Monroe Charity hospital June 1, similar instruments can be borrowed temporarily from other state institutions.

Incidentally, the portable electric chair will be stationed at the penitentiary at Angola, and moved about from parish to parish where and when needed.

The lawmakers saw fit to provide that where electricity is unavailable in a parish prison where an execution is to take place, the sheriff, with the consent of the governor, may change the place of execution to an adjacent parish.

Major Val K. Irion of Shreveport, reserve officer now in the regular army and stationed on the selective service staff of Adjutant-General Raymond H. Fleming at New Orleans, marched into the governor's office a few days ago.

"Tell Captain Jones," Major Irion said, "that the major wants to see him."

The captain (for Governor Jones is a captain in the reserve) was out, it developed, but the grinning major didn't reprimand him.

A worker has written the employment security division office saying he wanted to dedicate some of his accrued jobless insurance benefits to start a fund to buy a bombing plane to make a "good will" tour over Rome and Berlin. . . . Speaking of the war, an intensely interested observer of the situation in newspaper columns is Attorney-General Eugene Stanley. He has tacked up two large-sized maps on his office wall in the capitol so he can follow every move.

More and more oil leases are reverting back to the state in the drive to require lessees to live up to contractual agreements including drilling requirements or give up their leases. The state takes the stand that unless its mineral lands is developed it makes nothing other than nominal rentals.

Lands on which leases are being forfeited may be leased out again for mineral exploitation but oilmen say it is obvious that land on which lessees are willing to let go probably has little prospect for development.

At any rate, the attorney-general's office is continuing work quietly on its lease investigations. But the word leaks out from time to time that some big recovery suits will be forthcoming. The $925,000 claim filed against Mayor Maestri in New Orleans this week was one.

The Louisiana Federation of Labor convention here this week went on record as opposing appointment of a state enforcement officer for the Shreveport area "who has no connection with organized labor" and sent copies of their resolution to State Labor Director A. P. Harvey and Governor Jones. . . . The state employment security division voted this week to change working hours effective Monday from 8:00 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. instead of the 8:30 a. m. to 5 p.m., hours worked during the winter.

The Week In Washington

By Richard L. Turner

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(The Morning World Special News Service)—Washington has a distinct and troubled feeling this Easter weekend that American naval vessels—perhaps manned by American blue jackets—may soon be thrown into the battle of the Atlantic.

For the week brought with it a train of events which emphasized the gravity of the British shipping crisis and raised with new force the old and uneasy controversy over giving more destroyers to England or assigning them to convoy duty. It afforded, as well, an insight into administration thinking on that question.

President Roosevelt arranged to transfer ten coast guard cutters, valuable as U-boat chasers, to the British. He asked congress for legislation which would permit him to take title to foreign ships lying idle in American ports. Some of these ships are generally expected to be put to work carrying materials to Great Britain. Mr. Roosevelt spoke of American goods piling up on American docks for lack of ships, and saw harmful consequences for both the national defense and the national economy.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, the chairman of the maritime commission, made a remarkable radio address, a speech of such importance, that, as things go in Washington, that it could hardly have been delivered on his own responsibility alone. It may turn out, he said, that American and British shipbuilding combined are insufficient to keep up with the present rate of shipping losses. A much wiser and more effective course, he thought, would be to help stamp out the Nazi submarines.

Admiral Land spoke with a frankness unusual in the statements of public officials. American shipbuilding facilities, he said, had already been expanded to the farthest feasible point. A total of 950 merchant ships, 913 naval vessels, and more than 1,000 small craft for naval use are under contract or authorized.

More could be laid down, but there are not enough men with the brains, skill and experience in shipbuilding to handle them and available materials are limited. The result of any further expansion would be an inefficiency and confusion which would seriously delay the completion of the ships now on the ways. There might be more numerous deliveries later, but the important thing was to get the ships into service as quickly as possible.

He foresaw America's peak production as 3,500,000 to 4,500,000 dead weight tons annually and this, he added, "may be insufficient to meet the full extent of British losses, but it is all that can be done effectively without serious changes in priorities."

He asked that in considering the demand for ships, the cause of that demand be also taken into account. The cause was, of course, he said, the submarine menace. By basing our shipping aid to England "solely on supplying her with more and more and more ships," he added, "we are merely adding more fuel to the fire." And then he asked:

"Are there not a number of ways of solving this problem by attempting to put out the fire?"

He suggested the bombing of the submarine shipbuilding plants and the U-boat rest and relief stations, together with an increased number of British combat ships with each covey of merchant vessels and these working much farther to the westward on each trip.

He was careful to speak only of British combat ships, but the British lack of naval vessels suited for convoy duty is one of the widely discussed and most thoroughly understood aspects of the present situation.

"There can be no question," Admiral Land said, "but that we all want to give the greatest and most effective assistance possible to the British, but we might as well ask ourselves in our all-out aid to Britain if we could not give greater help by aiding the British to put out the fire rather than by concentrating most of our efforts on feeding it with fuel."

The meaning of his speech was inescapable, and the transfer of the coast guard cutters — which some called "breaking the ice"—merely added emphasis to it.

GERALD MANN SEEKS SHEPPARD'S SEAT

AUSTIN, Tex., April 12.—(AP)—Opening what may be an epochal political race in Texas, Attorney General Gerald C. Mann today announced his candidacy for the United States Senate seat vacated Wednesday by the death of Morris Sheppard.

The announcement by the 34-year-old attorney general was made after the funeral services for Sheppard at Texarkana and as the state capital seethed with rumors that Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, Representative Martin Dies of Orange and others would soon toss their hats into the ring.

In a statement, Mann—only a few years ago one of the nation's ranking football stars at Southern Methodist University—said he thought he could be of more service to Texas as senator than as attorney general.

"I am going to be a candidate for the United States Senate," Mann said. "Our nation's loss of Senator Sheppard cannot soon be repaired but I shall do my best to live up to the standard set by all the illustrious men who have served Texas in that great deliberative body. . . .

"With the help of able and devoted assistants, I have given my best in the attorney general's office. We have performed our duty without fear of political consequences."

The Film Scene

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD, April 12.—(The Morning World Special News Service)—Ciro's is a night club where some movie people go to be seen for sundry reasons.

It is very ornate, done in chartreuse and old rose silks, like a du Barrian boudoir in the De Mille manner. Drinks are a dollar a throw, dinner is $3.50—unless you order a la carte, which everyone does to be different—and the cover is $2.

Before Ciro's, it was the Trocadero and before that, the Vendome, and before that, the Montemarte. They say too many tourists ruined those places.

Lately, many tourists have been seen in Ciro's, but the regulars continue, come who may. The same faces are there nearly every Sunday night. That is the big night because usually some of the proceeds go to a charity.

The regulars include George Raft and Betty Grable, the Jack Bennys (after the broadcast), Burns and Allen, Stu Erwin and his wife, June Collyer, Tony Martin and Lana Turner, Dorothy Lamour, escorted by Greg Bautzer, who used to take Turner, Simone Simon, countless Ritz brothers, innumerable agents, directors, producers, men-about-town, social aspirants and non-working actors.

Ciro's is owned by Billy Wilkerson, who also runs a movie trade paper which features a column of gossip written by Herb Stein. People who go to Ciro's Sunday can always tell whether they were really there by reading Wilkerson's paper Monday.

Ciro's serves a very useful purpose in Hollywood life. If a gal like Turner or Grable or Lamour acquires a new romantic affiliation, she shows him off in Ciro's. Everybody knows about it via Stein's column in 12 hours.

Everybody stares at everybody in Ciro's. The hawk-like glances at the new arrivals would embarrass ordinary people. But, if you go to see, you must expect to be seen. Incidentally, the chairs are very well padded, a thoughtful concession.

Ciro's is unlike any other night club because the entertainment is not on the stage but at the tables. The Hollywooders who make it their social headquarters seem to derive considerable pleasure and profit from it.

No one looks sloppier, because you expect so much, than a sloppily dressed acrtess. Slacks, hair unkempt, unmatched accessories and no make-up add up to a big mess of unglammer. Carole Lombard used to go around that way, but she has reformed.

Somebody at Paramount put in a rule, and is making it stick, that actresses must not come to the lot unless they have a proper coiffure and are dressed neatly. This went into effect after a director, needing a girl for a smart role, was told to look at a certain miss in the studio cafe. What he saw, he said, exaggerating but slightly, caused his stomach to do nip ups.

That certain miss lost a role and, eventually, her contract. She's dressing better these days.

American motion pictures and the stage, opined Joe Pasternak the other day, produce only two kinds of actors:

Those who can act anything and those who can be anything.

Pasternak is a successful movie producer (nine Deanna Durbin hits in a row) and he generally knows what he's talking about. He knows act and actresses.

"Tracy can be it, but Muni acts Pasternak said.

"Myrna Loy can be it, but Ir Dúnne acts it.

"Some are actors who convince y by being themselves, some convi you by acting like somebody else.

Pasternak put Durbin in the "Be class. You agree?

ALEXANDRIA NINE TURNS BACK MONROE, 7-5

ACES SPOT SOX 3 RUNS BEFORE HITTING STRIDE

Tom Martin, New Hurler, Turns In Fine Pitching Job For Invaders

ALEXANDRIA, La., April 12.—(Special)—Manager Conrad Flippen's Alexandria Aces turned back the Monroe White Sox, Cotton States champions of 1940, in the first game of a two-game series here this afternoon, 7 to 5. They meet in the second battle here Sunday afternoon.

After spotting the Sox three runs in the first inning, Pitcher Brown settled down to hold the Cotton States club for the remainder of the game while his teammates piled up enough runs off Ed Langood, Sox hurler, in the first four frames to win.

The Aces, getting revenge for defeats handed Lake Charles and Natchez, other members of their Evangeline league loop, jumped on Langood for eight of their ten hits and scored six runs off the young twirler.

Tom Martin, coming to Langood's aid, turned in the best mound performance of the day. He pitched only three innings for the invaders but looked plenty impressive in fanning three and holding the Aces without a hit or run. Larry Knight pitched the eighth for the Sox, allowing two hits and one run.

The Sox offensive, led by Pete Medak with three singles in four times at bat, accounted for nine hits off Brown. Russ also with three singles, paced the Aces' batting attack.

Monroe errors were a contributing factor in the Alexandria victory. The Sox miscused six times. The Aces were charged with three errors.

Dale Englehorn, outfielder with the White Sox last year, and Ernest Kenneth Potocar, a young catcher, were sent to Monroe yesterday by the Shreveport Sports and will report to Manager Doug Taitt when the Sox return from Alexandria to continue spring training at Casino park tomorrow.

The return of Englehorn and the addition of Potocar should change the Sox outlook considerably, and the race for outfield positions can be expected to tighten. Englehorn will find the competition keen in the garden patrol with Dave Philley, Ed Knight, Frank Scott and Jim Keith battling for places. Then, if Potocar, a native of Los Angeles, Calif., makes the grade as catcher the outfield will have to reckon with Bob Hill, regular outfielder last year, who has been handling the backstop duties during training.

Potocar, a 23-year-old prospect with three years experience in professional baseball, had a batting average of .361 with Midland, Tex., of the West Texas-New Mexico league in 1937. He did not play in 1938, but performed for Abilene and Borger, Tex., in 1939, compiling an average of .318, and he hit .331 with Borger last year. He has been trying out with the Sports, along with Englehorn who was sold to Shreveport at the close of the 1940 season.

TIDE TRACKMEN WALLOP TENNESSEE VOLUNTEERS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 12.—(AP)—Capturing 11 of 14 first places, Alabama's Crimson Tide rolled over Tennessee's track team today, scoring a 77 to 48 victory.

The Vols' Dave Romine, sophomore, broke a Tennessee record by heaving the shot 45 feet 11 inches. The previous record, set 10 years ago by All-America Guard Herman Hickman, was 45 feet, 6 1-2 inches.

Romine's heave, however, was not good enough for a first, with Hal Johnson of Alabama taking the lead with a distance of 48 feet 3 1-2 inches.

CUBS DOWN CHISOX

CHICAGO, April 12.—(AP)—Scoring five runs in the opening inning, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 4, today to clinch their spring city series with eight wins against five for the American league club. The teams play their final series game tomorrow.

PLAINSMEN BEAT STATE SPIKEMEN

Strong Auburn Team Sweeps 11 First Places To Win 81-3-4 To 44 1-4

AUBURN, Ala., April 12.—(AP)—Mississippi State fell easy victim to Auburn's powerful track team here today 81 3-4 to 44 1-4.

The Plainsmen swept 11 first places out of 14 events, with a pair of sophomores sharing in two firsts apiece.

Dydley Tyler took the 880-yard and mile runs, while Burton won the javelin throw and the high jump. John Ball, another soph, walked away with the two-mile run.

The summaries:

100-yard dash: Won by Black, Mississippi State; second, Wendling, Auburn; third, Brush, Auburn. Time: 9.9 seconds.

220-yard dash: Won by Black, Mississippi; second, Reed, Auburn; third, Brush, Auburn. Time: 22.1 seconds.

SOUTHERN

LOOKOUTS BEAT VOLS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 12.—(AP)—Chattanooga's Lookouts produced the power today to defeat Nashville, 7 to 2, for their second victory in the four-game series which ends tomorrow with a twin bill.

The Lookouts collected 12 hits off two Nashville hurlers. Earl Bolyard homered inside the park for one of the six extra base hits. The Lookouts executed four double plays.

Score by innings:

Nashville .....001 010 000—2 7 2
Chattanooga ....012 221 00x—7 12 0

Drake, Tubes and Felderman; Burrows and Garlis.

PELS EDGE ROCKS

NEW ORLEANS, April 12.—(AP)—Little Rock's defense fell apart in the third inning today and allowed New Orleans to score all its runs for a 4-3 victory before 909 cash customers and 707 members of "knothole gangs."

A base on balls, a passed ball, and bad throws by Fred Hancock and Leroy Schalk mingled with two solid singles, a scratch hit, a sacrifice and a stolen base for the Pels, scoring.

Singles by Hancock and Art Mahan, with Grover Resinger's double sandwiched between, gave Little Rock a short-lived two-run lead in the first inning. Lamont Duncan's single scored Willie Duke with the other Traveler tally.

The teams meet here again tomorrow.

CRAX NOSE OUT SMOKIES

ATLANTA, April 12.—(AP)—The Atlanta Crackers defeated the Knoxville Smokes 4 to 3 in their second start of the newly opened baseball season here today.

Herb Anderson, graduate of the Three-I league, pitching for Knoxville, lost an otherwise well pitched game on two pitches in the sixth inning. At that point Knoxville was leading 3 to 1.

First of all Anderson in the sixth walked Connie Ryan. Willard Marshall then blasted a homer over the second tier, and Lester Burge followed with another against the third tier sign. Three men scored, and the Crackers were in front to stay.

Score by innings:

Knoxville .....000 030 000—3 6 1
Atlanta .....000 103 00x—4 4 0

Anderson and Epps; Kerksieck, Heussler and Richards.

EX-DUKE GOLFER TAKES NORTH-SOUTH GOLF CUP

PINEHURST, N. C., April 12.—(AP)—Skip Alexander of Durham, former Duke university golfer, won the North and South amateur championship here today by defeating Frank Strafaci of New York, winner in 1938 and 1939, by 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final.

EXHIBITION RESULTS

PIRATES NIP A'S

WICHITA, Kans., April 12.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates won their fourth straight game from the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-3 today, and thereby evened the exhibition series between the two at six all.

Behind 3-2 in the seventh, the Pirates staged a smart offensive to get the two needed runs. The fielding of both clubs was greatly improved over the loose play of their tour heretofore.

TRIBE BLASTS GIANTS

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians landed on Bob Bowman, former Cardinal pitcher, for nine hits and all their runs today to beat the New York Giants, 7 to 1, for the Tribe's ninth victory in a dozen exhibition games with the National leaguers.

The Indians scored four runs in the first on a walk and four singles, and got three more runs in the fifth.

RED SOX WHIP BEES

BOSTON, April 12.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox, belting a former mate, Wes Ferrell, for five runs in the third, defeated the Boston Bees 11 to 6 today in the first game of the inter-city series.

YANKS NUDGE DODGERS

BROOKLYN, April 12.—(AP)—The New York Yankees nudged out the Brooklyn Dodgers 3 to 2 in the ninth inning today when Tom Henrich walked and Joe DiMaggio smacked a double after two were out.

Rookie Ed Head was the victim. Van Mungo returned from his exile to pitch the first four innings and yielded one run, but fanned six.

BROWNS WHIP CARDS

ST. LOUIS, April 12.—(AP)—Displaying mid-season hitting and pitching form, the St. Louis Browns easily defeated the Cardinals, 8 to 2, today in the opening contest of the annual two-game city spring series.

Walter Judnich pounded out a home run for the Browns with two men on base.

NATS BLASTS ORIOLES

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—The Washington Senators clubbed out 15 hits, our of them by Outfielder Roger Cramer, to defeat Baltimore of the International league today, 11-4. Cramer hit a home run and three singles.

The Orioles got to Walter Masterson and Danny MacFayden for 13 blows, but three Washington double plays stopped Baltimore rallies.

TIGERS DOWN REDS

CINCINNATI, April 12.—(AP)—A home run in the first inning by Hank Greenberg with a mate aboard accomplished for the Detroit Tigers today what the whole team couldn't do in the 1940 World Series—win two games in a row from the Cincinnati Reds. The final score of today's exhibition game was Detroit 3, Cincinnati 1.

The lone Red run came in the sixth.

PHILS POUND LYNCHBURG

LYNCHBURG, Va., April 12.—(AP)—The Phillies drilled out five more home runs, shelled four pitchers mercifully while Roy Bruner pitched the full nine frames today to down the Lynchburg team 23 to 4.

Not only that—but Manager Doc Prothro undertook the role of pinch-hitter and played in centerfield in the ninth inning.

KING COLE WINNER OF PAUMONOK 'CAP

Gets Flying Start For Kentucky Derby Spot

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Steering a flying course for a Kentucky Derby starter's spot, handsome King Cole made a tremendous three-year-old debut today before a record-smashing crowd which jammed Jamaica race track to welcome the gallopers back to New York.

Cheered on by 37,284 opening-day customers who packed even the aisles of the grandstand, swarmed over the infield and hung from everything except the light bulbs of this rebuilt racing plant, the big nursery-rhyme colt from Ogden Phipps' stable romped home with the featured Paumonok Handicap in such easy style you could almost hear the blue grass calling him.

He was just about the whole show of a first-day program which broke all records for attendance and betting and which saw two other Kentucky Derby eligibles, William Woodward's Perisphere and Lou Tufano's Market Wise, take a beating from F. J. Buchanan's Zacatine in the Cedar Manor sprint, secondary feature on the card.

STELLA WALSH BETTERS RECORD FOR 200 METERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 12.—(AP)—Stella Walsh, noted sprinter of the Polish Olympic club of Cleveland, bettered her own world's indoor record for women in the 200-meter run today.

Racing in the A. A. U.-sponsored national track and field tournament, she covered the distance in 25.7 seconds.

That was four-tenths of a second less than the previous standard she set at the women's national A. A. U. meet in 1934.

ENTRY DEADLINE SET

BALTIMORE, April 12.—(AP)—The Maryland Jockey club today set Tuesday midnight as the dealine for supplementary nominations to the Preakness May 10, and said half a dozen more leading three-year-olds migh be named for the spring special.

JUNIOR COLLEGE ACE 'CRACKS UP' UNDER PRESSURE

Duke Sharpshooter Proves Experience Counts In Final Round

By Romney Wheeler

ATHENS, Ga., April 12.—(AP)—Angular Charley Harper, the guy they said had ice water in his veins, got steamed up today like any other 18-year-old—and booted the Southern Intercollegiate golf championship to Bob Brownell of Duke.

The gangling Georgia Military college freshman, who broke tournament favorite Cary Middlecoff yesterday with nine straight pars and outstayed National Intercollegiate Champion Dixon Brooke in the semi-finals, was just another hacker when he came up against 22-year-old Brownell.

His drives were wide, his approaches uncertain and his putts short. Before the unhurried strokes of Brownell he lagged three-down at the turn, made up two holes on the 10th and 11th, then dropped the 12th, 14th and 16th for the match.

Brownell, a Washington (D. C.) veteran who won the Maryland state amateur in 1939 and thrice has played in the United States amateur, grooved his shots for a par 36 on the front nine—four strokes better than Harper—and was two over par for the seven holes played on the back nine. He took eight holes to Harper's four.

Harper, who graduated from Valdosta (Ga.) High school only last February, was the sensation of the seventh annual tournament. As a junior college student, he wasn't supposed to be competing in the first place—a technicality which was only discovered after he qualified.

Johnny Broadnax, assistant director of athletics at the University of Georgia, explained that junior college men were not considered eligible, although no written rule prohibits them. Harper thus was granted belated approval for the championship flight.

He promptly proceeded to upset the collegiate applecart. He ousted Georgia's Jimmy Nelson in the first round, then finished off Middlecoff, of Mississippi, who was considered No. 1 contender for the championship. Nothing ruffled him, not even going up against National Intercollegiate Champion Brooke of Virginia, but he wilted under pressure of the final, when the little Duke freshman began banging them at the pin.

Brownell won his way to the final with a first-round victory over Will Battle of Virginia, 7 and 5, then Granville Sharp of Davidson, 2 and 1. Today's semi-final saw him eliminate Arnold Blum of Georgia, runner-up in the 1940 Georgia state amateur, 3 and 2.

ATHENS, Ga., April 12.—(AP)—Here are winners of lower flights in the Southern Intercollegiate Golf tournament.

Consolation—Waddell (Georgia) beat Mason (Georgia) 1 up on 19th.

Second—Deas (Tulane) beat Wilhoit (Florida) 2 and 1.

Third—Gardner (Mississippi) beat Huff (Georgia) 1 up.

Fourth—Jenkins (Citadel) beat Frackelton (Virginia) 4 and 3.

Fifth—Frazier (Georgia) beat Tonkin (Miami) 2 and 1.

CHICAGO KEGLERS TAKE DOUBLES LEAD AT MEET

ST. PAUL, April 12.—(AP)—Rolling games of 454, 422 and 462 for a 1,338 total, Bill Flesch and Harry Ledene, Jr., members of the Chicago Monarchs, took the doubles lead at the American Bowling Congress today. Elmer Goch and Ned Day of Milwaukee, had led with 1,307.

Flesch hung up the third high series in any event of the tournament when he scored games of 258-220-244 for 722. Ledene, who toured the country six years ago on an exhibition trip when only 12 years old, totaled 616 on games of 196-202-218.

The Monarchs relinquished their title in the main event last night when they hit 2,855 after their 3,047 top score of last year.

BASEBALL RALLY WON BY DUBACH

Plungers Blank Clarks Lumberjacks In Final Contest, 5 To 0

DUBACH, La., April 12.—(Special)—The Dubach High school Plungers won the fourth annual Class B baseball rally conducted here today by Dubach High school when they blanked the Clarks High school Lumberjacks, 5 to 0, in the final game.

The Plungers drew a bye past the first round and went to the finals with a 15-to-8 triumph over Hico. Clarks advanced by trouncing Lisbon, 15 to 4, and Downsville, 6 to 3.

L. Hanna, hurling for Dubach in the championship game, limited the 'Jacks to three scattered hits, while his teammates backed him with errorless play and reached Byrd. Clarks hurler, for eight hits, including a home run by R. Hanna.

Results of other first round games were Hico 9, Spearsville 0 (forfeit), and Downsville 11, Choudrant 2.

Score by innings:

Dubach ..... 021 110 0—5 8 0
Clarks ..... 000 000 0—0 3 4

L. Hanna and R. Hanna; Boyd and DePriest. Umpire, George Grafton (La. Tech).

HOME OF BLUE-GRAY TILT WILL BE ENLARGED SOON

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 12.—(AP)—Work on a $160,000 enlargement program at Cramton Bowl, home of the Montgomery Rebels of the Southeastern league and scene of the annual Blue and Gray football game, is expected to start within a few days.

Mayor Cy Brown said deeds to adjoining property, needed for the expansion, had been obtained and that the WPA had notified him work would begin upon release of funds in Washington, expected "within four or five days."

Negro Major League Clubs Play At Casino Park Today

Chicago American Giants And New Orleans-St. Louis Stars Clash

Negro major league baseball returns to Casino Park today when the Chicago American Giants and the New Orleans-St. Louis Stars clash at 3 p.m. Both teams are members of the Negro American League and are winding up their spring training.

The Giants leave for Shreveport and Texas for games with the Kansas City Monarchs after today's tilt while the Stars return to New Orleans for a game with the Baltimore Elites at Pelican Stadium.

Boasting two of the strongest teams in the negro loop, the Giants and Stars display two varied attacks.

The Giants have a heavy slugging, devastating attack while the Stars rely on a stellar hurling staff and tight defense. However, with Eldridge Mayweathers, former Monroe Monarchs first baseman, and Dan Wilson, hero of the East-West negro classic in Chicago, the team provides plenty of excitement.

Included in the Stars' lineup is Andrew Buford, local Monroe high school football star who has been in training camp with the team. Buford has come through with .500 batting average and his catching has been nigh perfect. Manager George Mitchell of the Stars stated that Buford is a ready and willing worker and should develop into a real star behind the plate. Buford will catch the first three innings.

Candy Jim Taylor, rated besides Rube Foster as a negro baseball master-mind, is the present manager of the 1941 edition of the famed Chicago Giants. Taylor has just returned from a three-week training session in Florida and has one of the finest teams on the diamond.

Six additional players were scheduled to join the Stars club today. The players are late arrivals from Missouri and Illinois and the winter league of Mexico.

Probable lineups:

Chicago: Crutchfield, cf; Henderson, ss; Reeves, rf; Young, c; Gipson, 3b; Pennington, lf; Ware, 1b; Harris, 2b; Hudson, Merchant, W. Ferrell, T. Ferrell, p.

St. Louis: Warren, ss; Bennett, 3b; Barnhill, cf; Mayweathers, rf; McAllister, cf; Fields, 2b; Buford, c; Scott, 1b; Calhoun, Washington, Berkley or Sutton, p.

WARMERDAM BREAKS OWN RECORD IN POLE VAULT

PALO ALTO, Calif., April 12.—(AP)—Cornelius Warmerdam, former Fresno State track star, pole vaulted 15 feet, 2 5-8 inches today, bettering his own unofficial world record.

Warmerdam, competing for the San Francisco Olympic club against Stanford university, hit the new high mark on his third attempt. His previous record of 15 feet, 1 1-8 inches was set last year at Fresno.

SWEET WILLOW WINS

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 12.—(AP)—R. W. Collins' filly Sweet Willow broke on top today and never lost the lead in capturing the $5,000 added Spring Handicap at Narragansett park in opening New England's seven-month horse racing season before a crowd of more than 30,000.

(*Night game.)

GATOR TRACKMEN BEATEN BY GEORGIA TECH TEAM

GAINESVILLE, Fla., April 12.—(AP)—Faltering down the stretch in the late track events, Florida's 'Gators were defeated by Georgia Tech 74-52 this afternoon in an intercollegiate dual meet that gave both teams a .500 average for the season.

Florida won the first four events today to take a 27-9 lead early in the meet. The Tech boys proceeded to finish 1-2-3 in the 100-yard dash and the high hurdles to tie the score and then win going away, limiting the 'Gators to only one more first. That came in a clean sweep of the broad jump.

'BAMA WHIPS NORTHWESTERN

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., April 12.—(AP)—Alabama walloped Northwestern 10-6 here in the second game of a series with the Wildcats. The Tide also won yesterday.

Eddie Owcar, sophomore hurler, was nicked for 10 hits by the midwesterners, but he kept them scattered while his mates bunched nine knocks off three Northwestern flingers.

American League President Sees New Attendance Mark

Will Harridge Says All Signs Point To Highly Successful Season

By Will Harridge
(President of the American League)

CHICAGO, April 12.—(AP)—Given a close pennant race such as we had last year, the American league likely will establish a second straight attendance record this season—one which I believe will be the best we ever have enjoyed.

I think all signs point toward an unusually successful campaign for the players and club owners and a tremendously interesting one for the spectators.

Last year the American league set an all-time attendance mark of 5,433,791 fans, a showing which surpassed by 1,163,189 the number of persons attracted to our games during the 1939 season. That 1940 drawing power was a fine tribute paid us by baseball enthusiasts who showed they enjoyed the championship race between Detroit, the eventual winner, and Cleveland and New York.

One reason I think a new attendance figure may be set this season is based on the makeup of the various clubs. Cleveland figures to be in the thick of the battle. New York's rookie infield stars, Phil Rizutto and Gerry Priddy, plus the experiment of shifting Joe Gordon from second to first base, will make the Yankees a closely watched team.

Detroit has the power to be dangerous all the way and I have heard many predictions that Charley Gehringer, the Tiger's fine veteran second baseman, is headed for a great season. Improved pitching could put Boston in the fight, while Chicago and St. Louis should have better clubs. The St. Louis team may be one of the surprises of the year. Washington and Philadelphia have been showing strength in their exhibition games.

The national defense program, giving employment to thousands of persons, will help the game, for I think more persons than ever will turn to baseball as a recreation outlet.

AL BLOZIS TO GO AFTER OUTDOOR SHOT-PUT MARK

DES MOINES, Ia., April 12.—(AP)—Al Blozis, the big fellow from Georgetown who shattered the world indoor shot-put record last month, will go after the outdoor record at the Drake relays April 25 and 26.

Director Bill Easton tonight announced Blozis' official entry for the Drake carnival at which Blozis hopes to better the outdoor mark of 57 feet, 1 5-8 inches by Jack Torrance of Louisiana State, at Olso, Norway, in 1934.

Torrance also holds the Drake mark of 55 feet, 1 1-2 inches, another 1934 performance.

Corral, Schultz To Meet At Monroe Arena Tuesday

2 Roughsters Expected To Give Wrestling Fans Plenty To Watch

The rough, spectacular Mexican heavyweight wrestling champion, Alberto Corral, who gave Monroe mat fans a rousing performance last week, will face Dutch Schultz, the Wisconsin rowdy, in the main event on Tuesday night's wrestling card at the Monroe arena.

The Mexican, who came near creating a riot last week when fans became angered by his methods in trying to subdue Cecil McGill, said he would meet the Flying Dutchman if Promoter Gus Kallio would furnish him police protection.

In reply to Corral's demand, Promoter Kallio said there was no need for him to become alarmed.

"Police officers are always in attendance," Promoter Kallio stated, "and they haven't let anybody get hurt yet. My customers are a pretty sensible lot. They do become excited at times when their favorite isn't getting along so well, but that's nothing unusual—at least not to wrestlers. I can't see any necessity of providing Corral with a bodyguard when the usual police attendance is sufficient to maintain order.

"The only protection Corral will need will be against Schultz who claims he'll take the Mexican apart."

The Flying Dutchman, a ring villian himself, appeared on the semi-final last week with Al Lovelock. After witnessing the Corral-McGill scrap, Schultz challenged the Mexican to meet him.

"He's my kind of wrestler," Schultz said. "I like 'em rough, and the rougher the better. I'm supposed to be mean, and Corral is mean. I always like to wrestle villains just to show them a few tricks I have picked up in this game."

Both Schultz and Corral were disqualified in their matches last week because of the use of foul tactics. They both wrestle in the role of villains, and mat fans should get a treat watching two such rowdies manhandle each other.

The supporting cast will include Al Lovelock, 215, and Ray "Cowboy" Clements, 218, a newcomer here, who will meet in the semi-final attraction which begins at 8:30 o'clock.

The Texas cow-puncher, who still herds cattle around Lubbock, Tex., when not busy wrestling, is reputedly a colorful grappler and is expected to give the Canadian all he can handle.

The usual 90-minute time limit will be on the main event, and an hour time limit on the semi-final. Two falls will be needed to win in both bouts.

Aldin "Butch" Martin will referee the semi-final, but the official for the main event will not be determined until Tuesday night. Schultz and Corral have not been able to agree on whom they want for a referee, Promoter Kallio said, so Dave Silverstein, state boxing and wrestling commissioner for this area, will appoint a referee for the final.

Sports Trail

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, April 13.—(The Special News Service)—The 1941 major league baseball season opens with a sideshow tomorrow and the main performance Tuesday, and the debut isn't a bit too soon, as a few more days of spring conditioning would just about wreck some of the clubs.

Pee-Wee Reese has a bad ankle, Pete Reiser has a pulled muscle in his side, Ted Williams has a broken bone, Red Rolfe has a game leg, Ival Goodman has a bad arm, Bobby Doerr has an injured thumb, Mel Ott has a pulled muscle—the list of casualties seems endless, and for some reason or other the more serious injuries seem to involve the more prominent players.

Scarcely a team will be presented to home town fans that is in top condition. There might be some way of delivering these new models without dented fenders and burned-out bearings, but it's something of a problem, as the only way to get ready to play baseball is to play baseball.

The Brooklyn Dodgers seem to be getting an early start on their injuries this year, with two of their fair-haired young men out at the same time. The injuries to Reese and Reiser are comparatively slight, but they likewise are ominous.

Reese is a rather slight youngster, and there still is doubt as to whether the ankle broken last year has regained its full strength. Reiser is well-knit, muscular—almost too muscular. We recall that two years ago when he was making his big splurge at the Dodgers' training camp it was a pulled leg muscle which forced him out of action. Another pulled muscle forced him from the lineup the other day. His muscles stretch just so far, then bingo they snap.

At any rate, the injuries show the hopelessness of trying to forecast a team's future with any degree of accuracy. A spike catching the corner of a bag, a quick throw from an awkward position, a pitched ball denting the skull, a ground ball taking an unexpected hop—all these conspire to upset predictions, to make a pennant contender just another ball club.

And so many of these misfortunes occur before a season starts. Just three years ago Skeeter Newsome had his skull fractured in an exhibition game at Portsmouth. Luke Appling suffered a broken leg in a spring game. Lou Gehrig was beaned by a pitched ball shortly before a season opened. Lou Boudreau cracked an ankle bone down South last year. Pinky Higgins was spiked severely two years ago while accommodating the cameramen. Joe DiMaggio suffered a knee injury a day or so before the first game, and the pin still is wobbly.

They are all part of the risks of the game, and there doesn't seem to be any way of escaping them unless the players are trained through brisk setting-up exercises.

The danger might be curtailed by cutting down the length of spring practice. The ball clubs are fooling nobody when they pretend it takes two full months for supposedly healthy young men to get into condition to play a game of baseball.

Two weeks would be more like it, unless the player worked out on bock beer during the winter. Sometime we'd like to see a team get away to a scratch start, without benefit of a prolonged trip to a milder clime, just to see how much difference all the preliminaries really mean.

BROWN GARNERS 16 POINTS, BUT LONGHORNS WIN

Tigers Second In Track Classic Held At Houston Saturday

HOUSTON, Tex., April 12.—(AP)—Supplied by a kick by Harry Hafernick, crane-legged distance runner, the University of Texas copped its triangular track and field meet with Rice institute and Louisiana State university today after trailing through 11 events.

The Longhorns had been pulling up their point total gradually and were half a point behind Rice when Hafernick churned two miles in 10 minutes, 27 1-2 seconds to shoot his team ahead.

Through the remaining events, Texas increased its margin. The final score was Texas 68, L. S. U. 52 1-2 and Rice 49 1-2.

Hafernick also won the mile run, but the day's outstanding contributions were those of Jack Hughes, burly Longhorn discus artist, and Billy Brown, the one-man gang of Louisiana State.

Hughes threw the platter 167 feet 2 1-2 ilnches, almost four feet better than his own Southwest conference record of 163 feet, 3 1-2 inches.

Brown tied the conference record of 9.5 in the 100 yard dash, held by Fred Wolcott of Rice, and collected a total of 16 points to be high man for the day. He also won the 220-yard dash and the broad jump, and finished fourth in the high jump.

Sports Roundup

By Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, April 12.—(The Special News Service)—Our army and our navy threaten to break up Georgia Tech's football squad by June—too many reservists. . . . Official lawn tennis guide omits pictures of Frankie Kovacs, La Marble and Bobby Riggs. Of course, Miss Marble is a pro, but how come about Riggs and Kovacs? . . . When Charlie Root hit the second homer of his career the other day, the other Cubs raised bats to form a military arch through which Charlie paraded on his return to the bench. . . . Dodger fans are berling over the 1941 passes. They not only call for a service charge of 40 cents, plus the usual ten cent tax, but are not good on opening days, night games, holidays or Sundays. Of course, you still can visit Ebbets field for a nominal sum when the Dodgers are on the road.

THEN AND NOW

That 76 Bobby Jones took in the masters' the other day inspired Jack Troy of the Atlanta Constitution, to sing:

A 76 from the hands of him
Who once was a 60's dream,
A 76 just to make more sharp
The change in the golfing scene.

BASEBALL PREVIEW

Says the Baltimore Evening Sun: "Brooklyn looked and played the part of an aggressive, confident, well-balanced ball club. The Yankees were listless and sloppy. . . . Draft numbers of Willie Turnesa and Frankie Strafaci, former amateur and publinx golf champs, expected to go up in June. . . . What do you know about Minneapolis mat fans booing their old favorite, Bronko Nagurski, the other night. . . . Only three days until the bell rings and still the Giants and Yanks haven't signed to broadcast their games. . . . Twenty-eight Kentucky Derby nominees now are on Kentucky tracks with others arriving daily. . . . Watch for little Furman of South Carolina to get a spot on Boston college's football schedule.

FOR SALE DEPT.

The Yankees now are being offered for sale via the form letter route . . . An individual named Henry Eyre, who says he represents the estate of Jacob Ruppert, signs the letters now going out to individuals and groups.

PERSONALS

The Baer entourage has lit out for California. . . . Shoot Ed Danforth, sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, a wire on the unfortunate loss of his father. . . . Catcher Frankie Pytlak says Jimmy Foxx throws the best screwball in the majors—and smacks 'em, too, if you ask us. . . . Wes Fesler, Wesleyan's new football coach, has become so popular up there, he has been asked to take charge of baseball, also. . . . Artist Fred Conway has immortalized Pepper Martin with an oil painting in the St. Louis art museum. . . . Syracuse alumni will toss a big dinner here April 24 for Tom Keane, track coach up there for 35 years. . . . Those baths at Hot Springs boiled all the flu out of Coach Frank Thomas' system. . . . St. Louis papers are calling Mike Jacobs the "Little Napoleon."

TOO BAD, BUT—

Too bad Jimmy Braddock has arthritis, but it is high time something put a stop to that comeback campaign.

'Iffing' Reaches New High In National League Camps

Frick Asks No More Than A Carbon Copy Of Last Year For His Circuit

By Ford Frick

(President, the National League)

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Ordinarily, to ask nothing more from a baseball season than a carbon copy of last year's results would be a weak position to take as opening day approaches.

This year, however, the National League could hardly ask more than a repeat of 1940's triumphs in the All-Star game against the American League and a world championship in October to top off a great pennant race.

The Cincinnati Reds today are stronger than last fall. Our prospects for a close flag fight depend on the merits of the moves made by Brooklyn, St. Louis, Chicago and the other clubs in strengthening their lineups.

Somebody called April baseball's "if month." It's been going on all over the baseball map, baseball writers, fans, the players themselves. If it weren't for the little word "if," baseball might still be the national game but the season opening wouldn't be half as exciting.

A lot of smoke usually means fire. The more "ifs" there are in April, the hotter the pennant race. The plenitude of "ifs" this spring may mean for the National League its most interesting pennant race in many years.

Experts' consensus picks the Reds to repeat with the Dodgers and Cardinals their most serious challengers. But the "iffing" game goes further than these three clubs. Just try attaching an "if" to the Cubs' Lou Novikoff or the Pirates' new pitchers or the hitting prowess in exhibition games shown by the Giants and Bees and you get an array of potential contenders.

Against the background of world events, it's a pretty healthy index of national life that the April national game hasn't dwindled into nothingness this year. On the contrary, I think the "iffing" this spring hits a new high.

NAT INFIELD LESS COSTLY THAN 1940 MODEL USED AUTO

(Associated Press Feature Service)

WASHINGTON — The Washington Senators infield cost exactly $455.

That represents what owner Clark Griffith paid to get First Baseman Jimmy Vernon, Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth, Shortstop Cecil Travis and Third Baseman Buddy Lewis.

As they say around here, when better bargains are made, Griff will make them. His whole team cost less than some clubs pay for a flashy, unproved rookie.

Vernon, who may play more at first base than George Archie from Seattle, cost $250. The Nats bought him four years ago from Easton, Md., in the Eastern Shore league. Washington reportedly turned down a $30,000 offer for him from the Giants when Vernon was hitting .350 for Jersey City last season.

Cecil Travis set the Washingtons back $205. That is what Joe Engel paid when Travis came to Chattanooga, then a Washington farm. Detroit among other teams, would gladly pay around $75,000 for him now.

Buddy Lewis and Jimmy Bloodworth together cost $0.00. Kid Elberfield, who ran a baseball school in Atlanta, gave Lewis to Chattanooga. (Engel had to pay $18.20 train fare, though.) Bloodworth was an uninvited rookie who tried out with Chattanooga five years ago and has been in the Washington system ever since.

Bloodworth was an uninvited rookie who tried out with Chattanooga five years ago and has been in the Washington system ever since.

Digging further into Griff's lavish expenditures, it is found that his outfield of Roger Cramer, Ben Chapman and George Case cost $7,500.

Case didn't cost anything. Scout Joe Cambria picked him up after Case had unsuccessfully tried out with the A's as a pitcher. He quickly made the grade as an outfielder and is perhaps the fastest runner in the American league.

Chapman came from Cleveland in a straight swap for Pitcher Joe Krakupkas, who was signed some years ago by Cambria and cost nothing.

Cramer represents the $7,500. He was obtained in exchange for Outfielder Gerald Walker. Walker had come to Washington from Chicago in a swap for Pete Appleton and Taft Wright. Wright had cost Griffith nothing but the Senators had paid $7,500, International league draft price, for Appleton.

Another ace who didn't cost anything is Pitcher Ken Chase. He just walked into the park one day and asked for a trial.

Maybe the Senators aren't going to be a menace in the pennant race but anyway Griffith isn't going to have to worry about gate admissions to pay for high priced talent.

HAWKEYES EDGE BENGALS, 3 TO 2

Ninth Inning Rally Brings Victory To Slugging Iowa Nine

BATON ROUGE, La., April 12.—(AP)—A ninth inning rally brought victory today for the University of Iowa baseball team in a close 3-2 game with Louisiana State, which had won 4-3 from Iowa in their first game yesterday.

L. S. U. led 2-1 going into the ninth despite the fine hurling of six-foot-six Dick Hein, pitching for the Hawkeyes. Clarence Dunagan, Iowa shortstop, led off with a homer to tie the score and, with two out and two runners on base, Joe Moock of L. S. U. tossed an easy infield ball wild to first, allowing the winning run to go over.

Walter Gorinski, L. S. U. footballer, made his mound debut for the Tigers and gave up only three scattered hits for six innings.

Score by innings:

Iowa	000 010 002	3	6 3
L. S. U.	000 100 010	2	5 3

VANDY TRACKMEN NUDGE OLE MISS

Squeeze Out 59-58 Victory By Taking Last Event On Program

NASHVILLE, April 12.—(AP)—The Vanderbilt university track team squeezed out a 59-58 victory over the University of Mississippi cinder squad today by winning the mile relay, last event on the program.

The Vandy athletes took a lead in the early events, then fell behind as the Ole Miss crew, led by dash-man Bowman, forged ahead. The Mississippians gathered firsts in eight events, while Vandy took seven first places.

Poyner Thweatt, Vanderbilt speedster, finished first in the high jump and both hurdle races, while Bowman captured the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the broadjump.

The Commodores took the meet when the relay combination of Mullican, Cornelius, Hall and Thweatt outdistanced the Ole Miss quartet.

Summaries (only two places counted):

Mile run—Hall (V), first; Hawthorn (M), second; time: 4:42.04.

100-yard dash—Bowman (M), first; Herrington (V), second; time: 9.9.

Shot put—Walton (V), first; Ellis (V), second; distance: 40 feet, 4 inches.

440-yard dash—Shackleford (M), first; Mullican (V), second; time: 50.1.

High jump — Thweatt (V), first; Dunn (V), second; height, 6 feet.

Pole vault—Hamilton (M), first; Hutton (V), second; height, 11 feet, six inches.

120-yard high hurdles—Thweatt (V), first; North (M), second; time: 16 seconds.

220-yard dash—Bowman (M), first; Shackleford (M), second; time 22.6 seconds.

880-yard run—Hall (V), first; Cunningham (M), second; time: 2:03.0.

Discus—Eubanks (M), first; Castle (M), second; distance 118 feet, one inch.

220-yard low hurdles—Thweatt (V), first; North (M), second; time: 25.3.

Broadjump — Bowman (M), first; Dunn (V), second; distance: 23 feet.

Two-mile run — Hawthorne (M), first; Batt, (V), second; time: 10:28.04.

Mile relay—Vanderbilt (Mullican, Cornelius, Hall and Thweatt); time 3:24.07.

Javelin—Eubank (M), first; Corlew (V), second; distance: 180 feet.

BIG LEAGUES SET FOR FIRST GAMES

pitchers who will help tremendously and Charley Gehringer is rid of his backache. But the infield is older and slower, with a threatening hole at shortstop, and the opposition will be tougher.

Chicago—the White Sox are the same as last year—still a phantom motor. On paper they never look especially bright, but they have good pitching, good defense and a manager, Jimmy Dykes, who gets every ounce out of what he has to work with.

Boston—The Red Sox look like a fading ball club. But any team with Jimmie Foxx, Ted Williams and Joe Cronin in the lineup will score a lot of runs. Catching is improved but pitching as weak as ever.

St. Louis—The Browns caused a lot of commotion last year among their betters and are stronger now. They had good punch and good defense and have added pitching strength. But they are woefully weak in catching and over-all, finished 16 games out of first place last year. That's too much ground to make up.

Philadelphia—The Athletics are hitting better and Connie Mack is building well with young blood. But like the Browns, the A's also have too much ground to cover to get far out of their cellar finish of last year.

Washington—The Senators' plight is pitiful. They have only three starting pitchers worthy of the name, the catching is doubtful and the infield porous. The last straw was the announcement that Third Baseman Buddy Lewis, one of the three or four first rate regulars available to Manager Bucky Harris, probably would be inducted into the army in May.

National League

Cincinnati—The Reds are essentially the same club that has won the senior circuit championship the last two years. Catcher Ernie Lombardi, who is vital to their success, still is limping on the ankle he hurt at the end of last season. But their already amazing pitching staff has been bolstered by the addition of Monte Pearson from the Yanks and possibly by the return of John Vander Meer to something resembling his former form. Also Jim Gleeson, a .313 hitter for Chicago, has been added to the outfield corps.

They won by 12 games a year ago and certainly aren't any weaker.

Brooklyn—The Dodgers spent real money during the winter to get a fine pitcher, Kirby Higbe, and a smooth catcher, Mickey Owen. Since they finished second last year, the Dodgers figured this was all they needed to win the pennant.

Now they have found that they must also add a second baseman because Pete Coscarart has lost the faculty of hitting—even occasionally. Owen may not be able to hit enough to stay in the lineup either. The club admits another trade will be necessary, probably, to make it a pennant-winner. Maybe it can get Billy Herman from the Cubs. Maybe it can't.

The pitching staff is surpassed only by the Reds' and Joe Medwick looks like the firecracker he was four and five years ago.

St. Louis—The Cardinals are depending heavily on rookies. This usually is hazardous for a team with its eye on a pennant. Also Manager Billy Southworth who took the reins in mid-season last year, hasn't been able to make up his mind on his infield. The club has finished like a whirlwind the last two seasons and quite possibly will again this year. But it can't afford to spend half a season tuning up.

Chicago—The Cubs were plagued by injuries last year and by a generally slipshod management from the front office right out to the diamond. They have refurbished themselves with a new general manager, Jim Gallagher, a new field manager, Jim Wilson, one of the smartest in the business, and with new material, notably Outfielder Lou Novikoff and Infielders Lou Stringer and Billy Myers. They still are short on pitching and catching.

Pittsburgh—The Pirates have everything except pitching and stability, which means they lack a lot. They barely beat out the Cubs for the first division last year and while Chicago has improved, Pittsburgh has not.

Boston—The Bees are a young team, weak in catching, but well fixed otherwise and full of fire. Their pitching and the kids are a year older.

New York—The Giants are a proud ship that is sinking. They added Pitcher Bob Bowman and Third Baseman Joe Orengo during the winter, but still are depending on veterans like Mel Ott, Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher and other heroes of a by-gone day. Shortstop Bill Jurges, seriously beaned last June, still is a question mark.

Philadelphia—The Phillies finished in the cellar by 15 1-2 games last year. Since then they have sold Higbe and lost Pitcher Hugh Mulcahy in the army draft. It's a good thing this is the last stop.

An animal that is gregarious, polygamous, and omnivorous, is one that lives in herds, or flocks; has more than one mate at a time, and eats both animal and vegetable matter.

RED SOX LOOK TO JOHNSON

One of the late-comers to earn a spot on last year's rookie honor roll was youthful Earl Johnson, a 6-foot-3 southpaw who came up in mid-season from Rocky Mount and posted a 6 and 2 record for the Red Sox. Joe Cronin expects him to be a real sensation.

Fertilized Ponds Produce Plenty Of Grown-Up Fish

Young Fishermen Find That There Are No Big Ones To Get Away

By A. F. Mahan

AUBURN, Ala., April 12.—(AP)—(The Morning World Special News Service)—Tired of catching nothing but little fish, two young fishermen-college teachers found out "why the big ones got away."

They discovered that mostly the big fish didn't really get away.

There just weren't enough big ones, although many of the little ones sters at all but adults dwarfed by lack of food.

Now—in ponds under scientific care—there are plenty of big ones, they grow up in record time and they don't get away.

Furthermore these two young men of the faculty of Alabama Polytechnic institute (Auburn) are prepared to show you that:

Fish can be fertilized and cultivated like any crop; that weeds are as much a nuisance in a pond as in a field; and that an acre of Alabama water will produce more pounds of meat each year than an acre of Alabama grass turned to beef.

H. S. Swingle, and E. V. Smith started experimenting in their club's pond in 1932. Their odd-hour research project, one of the largest scale undertakings of its kind in the nation.

Ponting up the value of fertilizing are ponds with large-mouthed black bass that have reached a fighting weight of one pound in seven months. In non-fertilized ponds it takes the bass two years to make this weight.

Fertilizing ponds are producing 200 pounds of black bass a year where 20 to 50 grew before the bluegill production has been raised from around 100 pounds to the acre to as much as 600.

Swingle and Smith like to explain that the fertilizer they are talking about isn't fancy, esoteric or expensive substance developed especially for piscatorial farming—it's just ordinary commercial fertilizer of the type spread on millions of acres of cotton fields each year.

They explain that the nitrogen, phosphorus and potash that nourish field crops also nourish the microscopic growths on which the small fish feed.

Cost of the fertilization is estimated at $10 to $20 annually per acre, including ten pounds of nitrate of soda used along with ten to 14 applications of the commercial fertilizer. This sum can be gotten back, the experimenters feel, either in increased private enjoyment or in increased business in the case of owners who sell fishing rights on their ponds.

Stocking fertilized ponds with 1,500 fingerling bluegills and 100 bass fingerlings to the acre produces good results, Swingle says, adding that having the bass or crappie to feed on the smaller fish is necessary to keep the population in balance.

Weeds don't do any good in southern ponds, the experts say they found, except give small fish a good hiding place—depriving bass of their food and leading to overstocking—and protect mosquito larvae from the smaller fish.

Ex-'Sweater-Girl' Is Now Voted As One Most Likely To Succeed

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD, April 12. — (The Morning World Special News Service)—If you had asked almost anyone in Hollywood six months ago to name the actress least likely to succeed, he would have said Lana Turner.

She was never late for a night club show, but she often was tardy for her own work.

Her indifference was the talk of the studio. Cameramen shied away from Turner, photogenic as she is, because she was so un-cooperative. I asked a former M. G. M. cameraman what he best remembered about Lana. It was her laziness.

Yesterday she was a playgirl. She knew the words of all the popular songs, but seldom knew her dialog.

The first time she was in a picture with the hard-working Mickey Rooney, he shook his head and said to hard-working Judy Garland:

"That dame'll never amount to anything."

Lana confesses that, until recently, she had no particular ambition, no aim, was not career-conscious. She just wanted to have as good a time as possible, work as little as possible, get as much money as possible so she could buy as many things as possible. Preferably red things. Very red things!

Today Lana is eager, ambitious, hard-working. She wants to amount to something.

The change is truly astounding.

Lana is a little vague about the cause of her transformation. If she knows, she won't say. But she suddenly got next to herself. Maybe the break-up of her impulsive marriage to Artie Shaw had something to do with it.

"I decided to work," is the way she puts it.

"Things always came easy to me—too easy. This is the first time in my life I've worked and, no kidding, I like it."

COTTON

New York

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Cotton futures were steady and slightly higher today on trade covering and buying by mill interests.

The advances were held in check by spot house selling, however, as on only small bulges were such offerings increased. Some covering by trade interests was believed to be an anticipation of favorable congressional action next week on farm legislation.

Futures closed 3 to 6 higher.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Leading stocks shifted to a lower ledge in today's market as a little more apprehension over the battle in the Balkans apparently discouraged buyers.

Steels led the back-slide and a number of new 1941 lows were touched on the move. While losses for the most part were in fractions, a point or so was lopped off scattered issues. Numerous pivotals were unchanged.

Transfers for the two hours were around 300,000 shares.

New York Central was a resistant stock most of the time as the road revealed net income for two months ended February 28 was equal to 53 cents a common share versus 3 cents in the like 1940 period.

Oils occasionally contested the trend.

Leaders hitting bottom for the year included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler and General Motors.

On the losing end in the curb were Aluminum of America, Humble Oil, Dayton Rubber, American "Cyanamid B" and New Jersey Zinc. Bell Aircraft was an exception, getting up about a point.

PLAN PROGRAM ON PAN-AMERICA

Will Be Presented By Georgia Tucker Fourth And Fifth Grades

In observance of Pan-American day, the fourth and fifth grades of Georgia Tucker school will present a program at the school auditorium Monday at 8:30 a.m.

Pan-American day will be celebrated throughout the nation Monday.

Talk, "Meaning of Pan-American Day," by Tom Eubank.

Song, "The Owlet," by Joy James, Billie Harper, Betty Ann Cruthirds and Beverly Martin.

Song, "La Paloma."

Introduction of the Pan-American countries.

Song, "America, the Beautiful."

Countries which are included in the Pan-American union are being studied by Georgia Tucker classes, according to Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal, in connection with the observance of Pan-American day.

In connection with the celebration, articles concerning Pan-America and Pan-American countries were printed in the Georgia Tucker Mirror, student publication, by the following pupils:

THEATER PLAYERS INSPECT REAL ENGINE

Inspecting a real locomotive is an important assignment for Little Theater players in "The Ghost Train," shivery mystery play to be presented at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Northeast Junior college auditorium. Familiarizing themselves with the engine, above, are Mrs. Olan Black, seated in the cab, and Miss Christine Frost, Little Theater players, and Wayne Wamsley, Jr., sound technician who made recordings of various sounds produced by the locomotive.

'GHOST TRAIN' TO 'RUN' HERE

Will Be Presented Tuesday By Monroe Little Theater

The next production of the Monroe Little Theater, "The Ghost Train," a three-act mystery show, will be given at Northeast Junior college, Tuesday at 8 p.m., directed by Lorenzo Smith. There will be realistic train whistles, spotlights and all that go to make up the movements of a regular train, sound effects in this production requiring a maximum of skill.

Eleven people comprise the cast and they have been backed up by a hard-working production crew which has had Elroy Scruggs Smith as leader.

Wayne Wamsley as sound technician has had a most difficult and essential part to play and how well he has done it will be shown on Tuesday night.

Clifton Furlow will portray blase young Teddie Deakins; Mrs. Olan Black will have a feminine lead role as Julia Price; Mrs. Mollie Murdaugh will appear as the spinster, Miss Bourne; Noel Learned will assume the role of Stationmaster Saul Hodgkins; Joann Veach will appear as Miss Mary Price; Sterling will be impersonated by Jarrell Crow, while Detective Jackson will be well delineated by Philip Embanato.

Young married couples will be presented to theatergoers by Fred Culpepper and Virginia Dozier, who will assume the roles of Charles and Peggy Murdock; John Crow and Christine Frost will appear as Richard and Elsie Winthrop.

Altogether, those who have witnessed rehearsals are pronounced in their opinions that "The Ghost Train" is likely to prove the best show of the year for Monroe Little Theater patrons.

MORALE OF U. S. ARMY AT HIGHEST

TEXARKANA, Tex., April 12.—(AP)—The morale of the United States army "is at the highest after a hard winter," General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, said in an interview here today.

The chief of staff said he recently had seen the troops of the armored force at Fort Knox; the artillery at Fort Sill; the 45th division at Abilene, Tex., the 36th at Brownwood; the second division at San Antonio; the 32nd at Camp Livingston, La., the 34th at Claiborne, and the air schools and depots around San Antonio.

"They have made a fine impression on me," he said. "The morale is high. Nowhere are there finer men or better material than we have in our army."

ASSUMES DUTIES

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—Mrs. Mildred Ezelle has assumed her duties as assistant home management supervisor of the FSA in Lincoln parish, Miss Martha R. Whitaker, supervisor, announced today.

EXPERT ON WILD LIFE IS SLATED

Dr. H. N. Wheeler Will Lecture To Kiwanis Club Wednesday

The Monroe Kiwanis club has booked for its luncheon Wednesday noon, at Hotel Virginia, Dr. H. N. Wheeler, chief lecturer of the United States Department of Agriculture, forestry division. This speaker is considered one of the ablest in his line and an orator with a forceful message.

He graduated with the A. B. degree at Milton college, Wisconsin, in 1897; took the M. A. degree at the University of Colorado, in 1902 and received the D. Sc. degree from Milton college in 1932.

He entered the government service as forest guard in July, 1905; became an assistant forest ranger in December, 1905, and a forest supervisor in April, 1906. For 15 years he has been ranger and supervisor on national forests in Colorado and California. He was in charge of public relations in the regional office in Denver for four years. Before entering forest service, Dr. Wheeler taught in country and high schools. He has been lecturing on forestry since 1912 and has been occupied with this work almost entirely since the spring of 1923.

He has lectured in all states of the Union, in many cities of all states, and Canada and Hawaii. He has appeared before diversified audiences—clubs, colleges, universities, CCC camps, boys' and girls' camps, professional groups, and conventions.

A complete collection of colored slides has been secured by Dr. Wheeler to use in illustrating his addresses.

Members of the public who are interested in hearing this important speaker can arrange to attend the luncheon by making reservation at Hotel Virginia, or from any officer of the Kiwanis club.

NEGRO GETS DEATH

WEST POINT, Miss., April 12.—(AP)—Judge John C. Stennis today sentenced Mathew Douglas, 32, of Webster county, to die in the electric chair here May 23 following Douglas' conviction of criminal assault upon a young waitress. It will be the first execution in this county by electrocution.

American parachute troops can leave a plane at 750 feet and be on the ground, firing a .50 caliber machine gun, in 62 seconds.

CHIEF LECTURER

DR. H. N. WHEELER

FRANCE'S DIVORCE LAW MORE STRICT

VICHY, France, April 12.—(AP)—France's new law making divorces harder to get is designed to prevent such things as the scandals of millionaire "American divorces" in Paris several years ago, Justice Minister Joseph Barthelemy told the nation today.

The new law, Barthelemy said in a radio address, is part of the new French social code which puts the family above individuals.

Under it, the only grounds recognized for divorce are "repeated grave" reasons which "make continuation of married life absolutely intolerable."

TO HEAD UNIT

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—Dr. Emmett J. Young has been named director of the Lincoln parish health unit, succeeding Dr. N. P. Liles, returned to Morehouse parish as director of that parish unit. Dr. Young comes to Lincoln from Bienville parish, where he was director of the health unit for three years.

CITIZENSHIP DAY IS PLANNED HERE

D. A. R. Patriotic Program Will Be Held At Junior College

Plans for a "Citizenship Day" rally at northeast Junior college auditorium, Monday, April 21 at 8 p.m., are progressing satisfactorily, stated Miss Eleanor M. Faulk, regent of Fort Miro chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, sponsor of the program.

The purpose of the meeting is to stress the honor that comes to new citizens, those who have just arrived at the voting age of 21 years during the years of 1940 and 1941, and those who are newly naturalized.

The movement is sanctioned by the president of the United States, and the cooperation of the public is sought to make a complete success of the project. There is no admission charge.

"My dear New Citizen: Because you have either been recently naturalized or have recently become 21 years of age, we address you as a new citizen.

"We want you to be the guest of honor at a patriotic community rally on Monday, April 21, at 8 p.m. at the Northeast Junior college auditorium.

"Please come and celebrate your new status as an American citizen with us. We are arranging a short interesting program. We invite you to reply by being present with your family and friends. The public is urged to attend this program in your honor."

The letter is signed by the D. A. R. local chapter regent, Miss Faulk.

Easter and children are synonymous. It is difficult to associate one without the other. In the pictures today is a group of lovely children who have been anticipating the joys of Easter with all the enthusiasm of childhood. Jo Elizabeth Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bishop Johnston, to the left at the top of the page, found little baby chicks her greatest joy this Easter morning. In the center, top of page, is Kay Ethridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linton Ethridge, Jr., who joined the Easter parade in a new bonnet. Her sister, Lynne, center oval, sings lustily among the lilies. Kay Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Joy Steele Lewis, is confiding in her pet lamb who is her constant companion. She is seen to the right at the top of the page. Deep in the joy of coloring Easter eggs are Lind and Margaret Minard, lower right, granddaughters of Mrs. Jennie Thornton. In the lower left hand picture is seen Bill Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Allen, who found a basket of bunnies in the yard early this morning.

Glory Of Easter To Be Fittingly Celebrated In All Parts Of Monroe Toda

Charming Visitors To Spend Holidays Here

Jean Terzia, Winnie Graham Breard Entertain Guests; Biedenharns Take Tropical Cruise

By Eve Bradford

MUSIC, the voice of joy, will resound in church today. Lilies, symbol of purity, will adorn every altar and pulpit and speakers will search the treasure house of eloquence for words suitable to describe fittingly the glory of the first Easter morning and its meaning to mankind. Everyone who believes in the Resurrection will celebrate the anniversary of their Savior's victory over man's paramount enemy, not only by going to church but arraying themselves in bright colors and joining the traditional Easter parade.

Prominent in the sartorial picture today will be lovely Jean Terzia, home from Sophie Newcomb with her charming suite mates, Lucy Ward of New Orleans and Virginia Kyle of New Iberia. At five o'clock this afternoon they will dance at the Phi Kappa fraternity house, the mecca today for college students. The tea-dance is being given for their three sponsors, Evelyn Jane Smith, Jane Rhymes and Marcelena Hill.

Another young and lovely home from the State university is Winnie Graham Breard. She has in tow a charming classmate M'Adele Scott of Alexandria. They are being dined and wined lavishly and in manner befitting two such popular co-eds. They had no sooner arrived when Robert Breard, Winnie Graham's foster father, was playing host at a late supper at the Frances hotel. Louise Kellogg wearing a most becoming wide-brimmed brown straw hat and a smart brown ensemble, sat at the head of the table. Louise's coffee hour on Thursday, honoring Winnie Graham and her guest, was on the side of things charming.

Henry and Bessie Biedenharn are spending Easter on the bounding main. They are being rocked in the cradle of the deep enroute to Havana for a little vacation in company with daughter Elizabeth Haydn of Houston. Another such a happy family threesome would be difficult to find. Elizabeth has a handsome husband and two splendid children, yet, from time to time she craves the companionship of her father and mother; when the insatiable desire overtakes her a little trip like the one they are now enjoying is planned by the indulgent Henry.

Clyde and Anna Brown had planned to spend Easter with their son Randolph at Culver Military college but they decided to wait until later so that the colorful campus activities in connection with commencement could be enjoyed.

Grace Ingledue was torn between two desires—whether to spend her brief Easter vacation motoring to Mexico or to Florida, visiting the Bellingrath gardens en route. We trust she decided upon the Florida trip as the beauty of the Bellingrath gardens is really unsurpassed at this time when the wisteria hangs in great purple clouds in every section of the vast estate. It is true the azaleas have spent themselves but other flowers are constantly blooming to take their place and over all, at this time, is the magic spell of early summer.

Life is indeed a rosary of golden hours for those who are free to hop in their car and respond to the call of the open road whenever the spirit moves them. One turns quite green with envy when hearing of the marvelous trip Emma Louise Biedenharn and her house guest, Mariam Gordon-Frazer have planned. Leaving tomorrow with the Biedenharn chauffeur at the wheel, they head straight for the land where spring is sweeping over the countryside, mainly the Carolinas. They will visit the Magnolia Gardens, the Middleton Gardens and the Cypress Gardens and then motor liesurely through Virginia visiting historic old Williamsburg, recently restored. They will be in Washington in time for the Cherry Blossom Festival and then go on to New York City. If the gods have anything more wonderful to offer we can't at this time decide just what it might be.

The week before Easter, always a quiet one socially, was unusually so this year, A foursome of bridge and a little run to the movies was about the extent of one's frivolities. The need for things spiritual was felt this year as never before. It is due no doubt to teh uncertainty of the times and the dark clouds hanging over the whole world. At any rate, the great majority craved more of the spiritual and less of the material during the past Lenten season.

There was one event, however, that offered good substantial food for the soul. It was the Samuel Sorin piano concert last Wednesday night. When such a conservative as Mrs. H. H. Land praises in highest terms the performance of an artist you rest assured that he is really worthwhile. Mrs. Land is an accomplished musician, and an authority on things cultural.

This afternoon in the gardens at "The Cedars" you will be served a cup of tea or coffee, which ever you prefer, when you attend the exhibit of Clarence Millet's paintings in the spacious hall of Mrs. George Lowery's home. It will indeed be an hour of charm with the gardens of this antebellum home a beautiful setting for the tea hour. Wisteria now hangs like purple incense over the entire garden and the old oaks are putting forth tender green leaves—you will find this spot most enchanting today. Mrs. Lowery and other members of the Monroe Art Association who are sponsoring the art exhibit invite you to view the paintings and to enjoy with them a cup of tea.

If it is fresh, spring beauty you are looking for today, drive over in West Monroe along the Shreveport highway and feast your eyes on the purple phlox that forms a carpet of incomparable beauty on the lawns of several homes. It is one of nature's masterpieces and free for all to enjoy. Again we are reminded that the most beautiful things in life are ours for the taking—"there is no price set on the lavish summer."

The regular meeting of the Ouachita Parent-Teacher Association has been postponed one-week thus enabling delegates who attend the state convention to make their report of the meeting.

The Ouachita Parish High school band will give a concert at the April meeting, Thursday, April 24, at 4 p.m.

SELECTS EASTER BONNET . . .

Miss Jane Landry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Patrick Landry selects spring hats for a two-fold purpose. One was worn when she joined the Easter parade today and the others will complement her trousseau gowns. Miss Landry's marriage to Lieutenant Walter F. Schubert will be an interesting event of April 16 at the First Methodist church.

Mrs. Peterson Gives Review Of Cather Book

The Atheneum club of West Monmore held its regular April meeting in the home of Mrs. W. C. Feazel, with Mrs. S. D. Kennedy and Mrs. George A. Mercer, co-hostesses. Spring flowers from the hostesses' lovely gardens adorned the reception suite in a profusion of colors and formed the central decor of the tea table in the dining room. After the program, the guests were privileged to inspect the gardens, which are among the most beautiful in the Twin Cities.

The meeting was opened with the club president presiding over a short business session in which officers for the 1941-42 club-year were elected as follows: Mrs. W. C. Curry, president; Mrs. T. T. Howe, vice-president; Mrs. Harry Schroeder, secretary; Mrs. S. D. Kennedy, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Dale C. Cobb, treasurer; Mrs. D. L. Nicol, reporter; Mrs. Fred M. Grant, historian; Mrs. Louise Averette, parliamentarian. The program committee consists of Mrs. C. C. Miller, chairman; Mrs. Ernestine Ensminger, and Mrs. A. L. Dickerson.

Mrs. Miller gave a report on the fifth district meeting held in Ruston, March 29. She stressed the timeliness of Mrs. Leaming's address, which was based on "Realism in Americanism." She told the women of the fifth district to "go home and do the things we are doing but to do them a little better," and pointed with pride to the beauty in the word "Americanism." She also reminded her audience that it has bony ribs and joints of realism, and urged all club women to work toward "what is best for the greatest number," and to always remember to pray that "God grant, that we may rather serve than be served." She asked that each club woman write her senator urging the passage of Senate Bill number S. H.-60 which has to do with certain conditions existing around army training camps.

The program chairman, Mrs. Miller, introduced Mrs. F. H. Peterson, who reviewed the book, "Sapphira and the Slave Girl," by Willa Cather. She said in part: "In dealing with the question of slavery. Willa Cather's latest work is unique in that it depicts both the sordid and the sentimental side. If you are a person of chaste mind who shudders away from the sordid, you had best not read 'Sapphira.' The theme is the subtle persecution of a beautiful mulatto girl, Nancy, by her jealous mistress. The opening chapter at the breakfast table strikes the keynote of the whole story in which strong feelings and bitter wrongs are hidden under the warm atmosphere of good manners and domestic comfort.

"The story is peopled with unusual characters. The mountain people, the grim disapproving Republicans, and Sapphira's slaves, who are the most interesting figures, especially old Jezebel, who was captured in the wilds of Africa by a slave trader and brought to Maryland and was subsequently sold to Sapphira's family. All of these colored people are presented in an unusual way, some as attractive individuals and some in a sympathetic light, but the greater part of the story deals with the persecution of Nancy and her fight to preserve her integrity and her final victory over all obstacles."

The program closed with music by Miss Mack Fay Hammons and Mrs. Louise Averette. Mrs. Feazel invited her guests to the dining room, where tea was poured by Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Mercer and refreshments were served to the 23 guests and members present as follows: Mrs. Mack Hammons, Mrs. T. Houston Symphony To Appear Here This Week

One of the most brilliant events of the spring season will be the appearance in concert in this city of the Houston Symphony orchestra under the auspices of the Civic Music Association at Neville auditorium, April 17 at 8 p.m.

The 77 musicians of the orchestra are a sports-loving crowd, with baseball, football and swimming their chief outside interests. Fishing is probably sport No. 1. In fact, the nearness of the gulf is one of the lures which brought some of the eastern musicians to Houston to live.

Boston-born Ernst Hoffman, conductor, is an accomplished tennis player. Though physically slight, he is formidable with the tennis racket and gives burly opponents many a surprise drubbing. While at Harvard he was one of the school's best tennis players. Devotion to the sport, however, did not deter him from graduating at the age of 18 with "cum laude" honors. He is also a baseball enthusiast, and at summer music camps is a .330 hitter in softball.

For hobbies, you could hardly find a more interesting crew. Martin Anastasi, principal of the viola section, makes violins and violas. When Albert Spalding, the world-famed violinist, was in Houston for a guest-artist appearance with the orchestra, his delicate $50,000 Stradivarius needed repair, and Anastasi mended it to Spalding's satisfaction. Mr. Anastasi made his own violin and viola which he plays in the orchestra. Experts who have heard them declare they are exceptional instruments, with a rich full tone as fine as is found in many expensive older ones, for, as Conductor Hoffmann reminds skeptics, after all, Guadagnini, Stradivarius and Guarnerius instruments were once new. Anastasi is also a photographer of no mean talent.

Joseph R. Karcher, violinist, like his father before him, repairs and builds violins, and specializes in making guns. He is also an expert hunter and horseman. At rehearsals h usually seen in a big checked s and with his red, tanned face l more like a cowboy than a musi

Irving Wadler, violinist, is a con tent Little Theater actor, and cond a "learn to listen" course in mu appreciation. Louis Motto own small grapefruit ranch in the va and spends all his spare time stud the subject, or traveling down to how his crop is progressing.

Louis (Dude) Miller's interest in mechanics, and he once built h self an aeroplane, which he flew two years. Leslie D. Rupert, Fr horn player, likes target practice, John Sullivan, trumpet player, a dance orchestra.

A New SPRING HAT Won't Hide Gray Hair

If you have gray hair, just wet it with Canute Water. A few applications will completely re-color it, similar to its former natural shade . . . in one day, if you wish. After that, attention only once a month will keep it young-looking.

Your hair will retain its naturally soft texture and lovely new color even after shampooing, perspiration, curling or waving. It remains clean and natural to the touch and looks natural in any light.

Safe! Skin Test NOT Needed

Canute Water is pure, colorless and crystal-clear. It has a remarkable record of 25 years without injury to a single person. In fact, scientific research at one of America's greatest Universities proved Canute Water to be perfectly harmless.

No Other Product Can Make All These Claims

Is it any wonder that we sell more Canute Water than all other hair coloring preparations combined?

GOLDEN WREATH

Lenox foresaw the recent trend to Gold, as a color, as being most fashionable this season. The new Lenox "Golden Wreath" pattern now being shown is one of simplicity and elegance. The modern bride now has a distinctly different gold service, from that of a few years ago. Instead of a plain flat gold border, or an etched gold border, Lenox has created a neat, simply designed gold laurel wreath motif, which has been smartly styled and placed in the middle of the rim of the plate, instead of on the outer border.

Governor Jones Will Address Annual P.-T. A. Convention In Baton Rouge

Prominent Persons Are On Convention Program

Theme Of Eighteenth Annual Affair Will Be 'Protecting Childhood In The World Crisis'

The eighteenth annual convention of the Louisiana P.-T. A. will be held in Baton Rouge at the Heidelberg hotel, April 17, 18, 19.

The convention theme will be "Protecting Childhood in the World Crisis."

The speakers for the convention will be Governor Sam Jones, who will speak on "Good Citizenship in Louisiana"; Mrs. Dagmar LeBreton, Newcomb college, whose subject will be "The Home and Good Citizenship"; Dr. John E. Anderson, University of Minnesota; Dr. Harriet Daggett, Dr. William Carr, Miss Marian Telford, Dr. H. O. Dresser, Miss Essae M. Culver, Miss Elizabeth Bethea, Mrs. W. L. Youngblood, Dr. Paul Hebert, Dr. Hosea Phillips, Myron Falk, G. T. Owen, Miss Mila Schworzbach, Father Joseph Jacobi, Alvin Good, Dr. W. A. Dodd, and John E. Coxe, state superintendent of education.

Walter Purdy will direct community singing for a half-hour before each session, which promises to be one of the enjoyable features of the convention.

Presiding officers during the session will be: Mrs. Paul Blanchard, state president, Baton Rouge; Alvin Good, Natchitoches; Mrs. Fagan Cox, Monroe; Miss Myrtle Rodgers, Monroe; and Miss Mary Bains, Shreveport.

The first general session will be held Thursday afternoon, April 17. Addresses of welcome will be made by Fred LeBlanc, mayor of Baton Rouge; C. B. Turner, superintendent of East Baton Rouge parish schools; Mrs. Earl Bradsher, 11th district director; and Mrs. Cecil Brown, convention chairman. The response will be made by Mrs. Erick Gebsen, Lake Charles.

Reports will be made by Mrs. Ralph Levey, chairman of the convention program; Mrs. J. C. Lowery, credentials committee; Miss Myrtle Rodgers, nominating committee; and Mrs. Paul Blanchard.

Awards will be presented by Mrs. Nell Grigsby, publicity chairman; Mrs. J. B. Wilson, safety chairman; and Mrs. A. E. Montgomery, chairman of goals.

A tea for the delegates and visitors will be given at the governor's mansion by Mrs. Sam Houston Jones, Thursday afternoon, and on Friday afternoon a tea will be given at the faculty house, L. S. U.

Breakfasts will be given by Mrs. C. Fay Walter, summer round up chairman, and Miss Clyde Mobley, chairman, parent-education, Friday morning; and Mrs. P. H. Griffith, council chairman, and Mrs. Fagan Cox, district chairman, Saturday morning.

Mrs. J. B. Best, Shreveport, will preside at a luncheon Friday in the Venetian room, L. S. U.

In addition to the community singing directed by Mr. Purdy, music will be contributed by the A Capella singers of Baton Rouge, the Verse Chorus of the parish schools, the public school chorus of Baton Rouge, the Mother Singers of the New Orleans council, and the Lake Charles Mother singers.

Iceland Draws Attention Of Review Club Members

Leaving the heart of the tropical islands studied at the last meeting, the members of the Review club traversed, in imagination, the vast continent of North America to some generally unfamiliar spots of the Arctic regions.

With Mrs. D. M. Moore who reviewed "Iceland a Land of Contrasts," by Hjalmar Lindroth, the members visited that interesting country. Little was said in the book concerning its political and geographical background, but much was told of its interesting people. Particularly stressed was their intellectual and cultural life.

Mrs. Moore said, in part:

"The most remarkable monuments of Iceland's past are, and always will be, its ancient works of literature. Even during the days when Iceland had to fight for mere existence, efforts were made toward collecting, preserving and even publishing classical literature. They are so poetically minded that there were those among them who fought the building of railroads because the latter were unpoetic.'

"Due to the effect of glaciers, transportation is difficult. Flying is the favorite means of getting about. Fishing is their leading industry. Though considered a possession of Denmark, they are practically an independent people having secured their greatly valued freedom from the Danes in most important measures."

With Mrs. Fred Fudickar reviewing Will E. Hudson's "Icy Hell," the club came a little further south to the Aleutian Islands and the Alaskan coast.

Mrs. Fudickar said, in part:

"With only the narrow Bering strait separating Russia from America, these islands are truly stepping stones between our country and a possible enemy. While Mr. Hudson found the social conditions in all these islands deplorable and much in need of missionary effort in the broadest sense, life on the American side was on a higher level. The town of Petropavlask on one of the islands is the New York, Paris and Leipsic for the fur-traders and trappers. On one of the islands, noted for fur seal industry, the cows eat fish in lieu of grass or hay.

"Some of the places visited along the Alaskan coast were Nome, famous for its whaling industry, and Pt. Barrow, the most northerly settled point on the American continent. Here the United States board of education maintains a navy school for natives. It is also the largest Eskimo village, with a population of 350."

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Roy Hale. Members present were: Mmes. C. B. Braun, B. J. Breard, Henry Colbert, E. P. Cudd, Tom Davis, A. M. Freeman, Fred Fudickar, Allen Givens, W. R. Hatchell, DeWitt Henry, A. R. Holloway, Reese Major, B. W. Wright, D. M. Moore, C. E. Nenny, Walter Rhodes, the hostess and guest, Mrs. U. C. Barnett.

Cultivation Of 'Mums' Is Garden Club Topic

Mrs. Gibson Gives Directions To Local Group; Mrs. Kite Talks On 'Spring Suggestions'

Members of the Welcome Garden club, due to the inclement weather, had to forego the pleasure of the outdoor meeting in Bernstein park, as planned, recently. However, members, after inspecting the work done at the park by the beautification committee, met for a splended meeting at the home of Mrs. F. E. Black, 709 Georgia street.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Charles S. Swain, president. Reports were made by various committees. The beautification committee reported the purchase of 40 crepe myrtle trees by the club. These, through the ever splendid cooperation of the city department, were planted on Jackson street.

A report was given by Mrs. H. V. Collins, chairman of the program committee, that her committee had completed programs for the next year. Mrs. J. R. Wooten and Mrs. Jack Bagwell are the other members of the committee. A committee of Mesdames L. C. De Masterson, V. S. Garnett and H. R. Saenger was appointed to compile the year books.

Membership committee members are: Mesdames A. C. Ransom, J. L. Dennis, and C. E. Wadley. Convention attendance committee, Mesdames M. C. McDonald and Harry Schroeder.

Mrs. V. S. Garnett, chairman of the flower show and tea to be held in May, told of tentative plans of which more will be heard later. At the conclusion of business, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Henson Coon, program chairman.

The first number was, "The Cultivation of Chrysanthemums," by Mrs. Ralph H. B. Gibson, who said, in part:

"The chrysanthemum, one of the world's oldest cultivated flowers originated in China, where centuries ago they were tiny pink and yellow daisies. Through the centuries of breeding and selection the present day 'mums' has been developed.

"Chrysanthemums are the most valuable of all flowers for beauty and color in the fall garden, and if properly selected one can have a long-range blooming period and a variety of colors.

"'Mums' can be planted in a perennial border, in front of shrubbery, against the house, or in a bed by themselves where extra care may be given. They do require a sunny, well-drained location.

"The first consideration is the preparation of the soil, which should have an abundant supply of well-rotted manure worked into it. In small beds a good method is to work a shovel full of manure into the spot where each plant is to be set. The value of sufficient fertilizer cannot be overemphasized in the growth of 'mums,' for they are plants which must not be checked by lack of food or moisture in their growth or flowering. Peat moss worked into the top soil will increase its water holding capacity. Commercial fertilizer may be used.

"Early April is the time to set out the plants, giving them time to develop a splendid root system before hot weather sets in."

An exceptionally splendid talk was given by Mrs. A. M. Kite on "Spring Suggestions." First, she said, the early-flowering shrubs should be pruned after they have bloomed. Some of these are spirea, wigelia, forsythia—in fact, most of those on which the flowers have faded. Do not prune the summer flowering shrubs yet.

Another timely suggestion was the names of plants suitable for shade to be set out now. Some of these are red salvia, fever few, nicotiana and Chinese forget-me-nots. A list of drouth-resisting plants followed: gaillardia, marigold, zinnias, bachelor buttons and periwinkle.

Mrs. Kite also discussed, "Rock Gardens," saying, in part:

"Rock gardening is gardening in miniature, creating a picture with small plants in small places—plants that would be smothered by bolder growth in the regular garden. A slope, which always has proven a problem for the gardener, is the ideal spot for a rock garden, and not the man-made hump of dirt behind your lily pool.

"Rock gardens have been disgraced in recent years because they haven't solved a problem but were piled up in the corner of a yard in the shape of a heart and planted with petunias. If well-conceived, your rock garden will look as though created by some natural force, by a stream, a glacier or an earthquake which exposed some underlying rock years and years ago. This means that it must have a setting, not just a pile of rocks. Go hiking and use a camera if necessary so as to get ideal plans.

"Stones must be properly selected, all of one kind and of interesting shape and contour—those with intriguing form and well-rounded edges, having that age-old look. Stones with moss are as choice as cheese with mold. Never use concrete and always use native rock—not a collection from every state. Use large stones or group smaller ones to appear so.

"In planting try to create a scene of all-season value. Use some evergreens that turn bronze or silver in the winter. Use hen and chickens, running sedum, small quantities of bulbs, verbena, sweet alyssum, portulaca, dwarf petunia, pansies, violets, Christmas rose, primrose and many others. Watch your background and, if desiring a pool, use a simple shape with few plants in it, as you want the water to show.

"Your rock garden should look untouched by man. Let your rock garden go native."

The following members were present: Mesdames Jack Bagwell, F. E. Black, H. V. Collins, Henson Coon, L. C. De Masterson, J. L. Dennis, V. S. Garnett, Ralph H. B. Gibson, F. L. Jones, R. M. Kite, E. H. Martin, C. C. Miller, C. G. McCleary, M. C. McDonald, E. R. Norton, D. L. Nicol, A. C. Ransom, C. S. Swain, Harry Schroeder and Ralph Thompson.

Miss Frances James And John T. Folk To Marry

An announcement of widespread social interest is that made by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis James of Ruston of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Frances James, to Mr. John Thomas Folk, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Folk of Ruston.

The wedding will take place Wednesday evening, April 30, at the Trinity Methodist Church with the Rev. Guy H. Hicks, officiating.

Miss James, member of a pioneer Louisiana family, is prominent in civic, cultural and social activities of this section of the state. She graduated from Ruston High school, received her B. A. degree from Louisiana Tech and attended University of Tennessee and is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Folk, member of an outstanding family in Ruston, graduated from Ruston High school and received his B. S. degree in engineering from Louisiana Tech where he was active in campus affairs. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Mr. Folk has been in Jacksonville, Fla., for the past year where he was a junior engineer for the federal government. He is now with T. L. James and Company of Ruston.

Patricia Ann Johnson of Bunkie, La., and Louise Ann Walden of Alexandria had a rendezvous with the Easter bunny in the home of their grandparents, Mayor and Mrs. H. H. Benoit. They are spending the week-end in the Benoit home.

Mrs. McQuiller Makes Talk On 'Beautification'

The Civic League of West Monroe met in the community center for the regular meeting.

Mrs. D. C. Harper, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, who spoke on "Beautification."

Mrs. McQuiller said in part:

"There are several points to remember in planning and developing a garden. First, strive for a color scheme, and plan according to your own initiative. Begin with the primary colors, yellow, blue and red, and then the beds can be toned down with the secondary colors. Second, heights of plants should be considered. Place tall plants in back and follow color harmony. Third, get away from straight lines or rows—plant in curved beds. A good way to get a graceful curve is to use the garden hose curved in and out and used for the bed outline.

"Next, consider the dates of bloom and group those that bloom at the same time, together. After blooming, these beds can then be retransplanted with later blooming flowers.

"Remember the texture of the plants and do not group the heavy type plant with lacy, fragile type.

"The influence of planting is well worth the effort. Gardening is contagious and when one starts beautifying, it isn't long before your neighbors will be doing the same.

"Clean up and beautify public places and do not forget individual yards. Many citizens do not clean up and beautify their yards because they do not know what to do. Get material and information to those interested and it will be a big step towards a more beautiful city.

"Do not use concrete blocks, bricks or white wash trees, as this is contrary to nature.

"In conclusion, everyone should create a desire to want finer things, keep up the morale and do our best to urge harmonious undertaking among people."

At the conclusion of Mrs. McQuiller's talk, a short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. W. C. Curry. Minutes of the past meeting were read by the treasurer, Mrs. N. D. Gaughey, in the absence of the secretary. The treasurer's report was also read. Short reports of the various committees were made. The finance committee meeting was reported by Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, who announced that the Civic League will sponsor a play next month. Local talent will be used and tickets will be 15c and 25c. Members were urged to cooperate in making this a success.

Miss Kate Morrice spoke on "Control of Cancer" and asked support of the women's field army for the control of cancer.

First Grade Pupils Give Program At Group Meet

The Crosley Parent-Teacher Association met in regular session Wednesday afternoon, April 9, with the president, Mrs. W. K. Hunt, presiding. The program was given by the first grade pupils of Mrs. Herbert Rinehart, Mrs. Linton Culpepper, and Miss Sara Hair, and consisted of music by the rhythm band and songs by the boys and girls, closing with both girls and boys singing "America," with the mothers joining them on the last verse.

Business to come before the body at this time was election of officers for the 1941-42 school year. Mrs. C. C. Miller was elected president, and Mrs. Leon Fife, vice-president; secretory, Mrs. John Lewis; treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Welch. Mrs. C. C. Miller and W. K. Hunt were elected delegates to the convention of parents and teachers to be held in Baton Rouge, April 17-19.

In asking the parents and teachers of Crosley school to give their wholehearted support to the incoming officers, Mrs. Hunt said:

"This is your P.-T. A. and we are spending our time and efforts to make it a better P.-T. A. and a better school for the benefit of your children and mine. As parents and teachers we have a special, almost holy need to conserve the childhood of this nation and to protect them from the hate and intolerance rampant in the world today. We need courage as well as work to prepare our children for the building of a better world. Since this is the only national body devoted solely to the interests of children and young people, it becomes the supreme duty of the individuals of the body to carry that program to the highest level and cooperate fully in developing a profound, intelligent, active loyalty to our democratic way of life."

Will Observe 60th Year Of Young People's Work

"The Y. W. C. A. is observing the 60th anniversary of its work with younger girls, April 20-26. Sixty years ago the Young Women's Christian Association started a program to entertain some younger girls who came with adults to the Y. W. C. A. Today that group has grown into a world-wide, national movement of hundreds of thousands of younger girls who come to the Y. W. C. A's and make their own programs and share in the life of the association that includes 12 to 60-year-olds in working partnership.

"Such a partnership is of special significance in a day when democracy as a way of life demands that both old and young must accept responsibility as well as expect advantage, where one must learn to give as well as take, where differences of contribution are respected and used. The Young Women's Christian Association is proud to include in its membership the Girl Reserves, who find in it resources for enriching their lives and who in turn contribute to the life of the association that eagerness and insight which is the unique contribution of youth."

The above statements are given by Mrs. Grace Loucks Elliott, president of the Young Women's Christian Associations of America, as a message to the girls as they celebrate the 60th anniversary of younger girls' work of the Y. W. C. A. The Girl Reserves of Monroe are observing this anniversary, too, April 20-26. The observance will begin with a vesper service April 20, and close with the birthday party, April 26. Each club will have some special program during this week.

There are six Girl Reserve clubs: The senior and junior clubs, who have as their advisors Mrs. Merrill Bush and Mrs. W. J. Zeazey; the sophomore club, which has as its advisors Miss Dorothy Calvert and Miss Zelda Moss; the freshman club, which has as its advisor Mrs. T. H. Scott; the Blue Triangle club, which has as its advisor Miss Lucyle Godwin; and the Triad club, which has as its advisor Miss Geneve Castles.

Mrs. J. B. Thornhill is chairman of the Girl Reserve committee, which has the following members: Mrs. DeWitt Milam, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Mrs. William Rodriguez, Mrs. W. J. Veazey, Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Mrs. Eugene Flournoy, Mrs. R. L. Kellogg, Mrs. C. C. Boardman, Mrs. C. W. Williams and Mrs. H. K. Touchstone.

Beautiful Homes, Old And New, Provide Opportunity For Pilgrimage Here

omance And Color Of Monroe Homes Retold

storic Background And Beautiful Flowers And Trees Make Monroe Buildings Outstanding

By Eve Bradford

All nature is conspiring today, Easter Sunday, to make nroe more beautiful than it has ever been before. Why put on your new Easter bonnet, hop in your car and ke a tour of Monroe's homes and gardens?

order, however, to really enjoy a pilgrimage it is necessary to nore than just admire the flowers, homes and the skyline. You have now the city's past, the changing s and the rich background of a dred and fifty years of history, romance and color and glorious itions, heroic deeds of brave men, struggles and the tragedies. This is the setting of one of the most oric places in Louisiana, and dates k to the year 1785 when Don Juan iol, armed with the commission of king of Spain, landed at Prairie Canots, the present site of Mon-ost of the early landmarks have n sacrificed for the ruthless march rogress but if you lift the gossamer that seprates the Monroe of today n yesterday, many things of int are revealed. When you drive he court house square today you see one of the oldest buildings Monroe. It is the D. A. R. chapter se in one corner of the square. as built in the year 1830 and saved n destruction by a handful of gal- women, members of Fort Miro pter, Daughters of the American olution, who petitioned the police to turn the building over to them chapter house. It is now one of few historic structures remaining this city and will no doubt endure ver as it is made of hand hewn ress logs. It contains many price- possessions including the sword Don Juan Filhiol. It was this little nchman who donated the public are to the Ouachita Parish police in the year 1816. The D. A. R. pter house was used for filing rds until the old court house was down and the present new one ted.

ver on North Sixth street is an- er historic structure that links terday with today. It is the O'Kelly ne and was built during early onial days of hand hewn cypress. was remodeled in antebellum days Colonel Henry O'Kelly. The old t of this home known as "The derness" is 150 years old. Architec- ally it is the old Louisiana planta- type with spacious rooms, high ings and open fireplaces.

he present owners, Mrs. Charles chell and Miss Mary O'Kelly, have efully preserved the antique rose- od and mahogany furniture that kes their home a regular treasure ve. Not a single piece of furniture ever been for sale despite the uring offers made by collectors who eted the priceless articles.

he camellia bushes blooming pro- cally year after year were planted re than fifty years ago. The cle- tis and yellow jasmine still creep- over the trellises, created a tangl- wildwood from which the name ie Wilderness" originated.

here was a time when flowers in nroe were born to blush unseen homes were forbidden temples strangers. High board fences were t recently removed from the Kelly premises.

The Cedars" on Riverside, ancestral me of Robert Layton, is another k in the chain that connects Mon- with the almost forgotten yester- s. It was built before the Civil r and the style of architecture has n preserved by the present owners. ny handsome pieces of massive ma- gany and rosewood furniture are l in possession of Mr. Layton. nily portraits bearing the imprint saber thrusts made by Northern diers are grim reminders of the truction of valuable possessions at t time.

Layton Place, on South Grand, fac- the Ouachita river is still another old landmark. The house proper was built before the war between the states but it has been remodeled and the general style architecture has been changed. The old floors of inlaid wood which came from France, are still in a wonderful state of preservation and seem to grow more beautiful with the passing of time. Until twenty years ago when Mr. Layton sold the land stretching far beyond St. John Drive, the atmosphere of other days hovered over this peaceful home set in among the oaks and magnolias.

Out on the Loop Road, where a few years ago the Cherokee roses formed a solid wall along the river's edge, is another antebellum home, Hardtimes Plantation. It was built one hundred and fifteen years ago and the original style of architecture has never been changed. It was originally part of the Spanish grant and was owned by Baron de Bastrop who initiated a plan for the cultivation of wheat and established a small grist mill at the mouth of Bayou DeSiard. It was not until after the Civil War that the name Hardtimes was given to this plantation. It seemed most apropos as the days of reconstruction were indeed difficult ones in this section of the South.

The Melville Hunters, owners at the present time of Hardtimes Plantation, have succeeded admirably in preserving the atmosphere of antebellum days in this beautiful old home with its spacious, high ceilinged rooms beautifully furnished with early American furniture. The house is almost hidden from view from the busy highway by century old oaks and a tangle of shrubbery. Peace and quiet reminiscent of those dear, dead days beyond recall hover over this idyllic spot that knew the spaciousness of life as it was lived in Monroe before the war. One of the reminders of other days is the plantation bell in the rear of the "big" house that was used to call the slaves from the far distant cotton fields.

There are many beautiful homes in Monroe that have been built during the past twenty years. The Henry Bernstein home on Riverside is one of the most beautiful in the city. The A. G. McHenry home on Riverside is still another hospitable home. It should be included in today's pilgrimage as it is now encompassed about with flowers of every hue. The McHenry gardens are now noted for the great variety and exceptional beauty of camellias.

The M. C. McDonald home, "White Columns" on the West Side is one of the most beautiful homes recently erected. It is situated in a grove of towering pines with a wide expanse of meadows land as far as eye can reach.

We are reminded today when the old oaks have donned their vibrant green garments, that the trees are our most precious heritage. Man can make modern homes, paved streets and shining new automobiles but only God can make a tree. Many of them have been saved despite the march of progress and that is why Monroe differs from the average city of today. The giant oaks and magnolias lining many streets and the old homes where the trees still stand, make Monroe a city of trees in every sense of the word.

As a nation we have been singularly careless with this heritage of our great country. Talking about trees it was Theodore Roosevelt who said: "Here is your country, do not let anyone take it or its glory away from you. Do not let selfish men or greedy interests skin your country of its beauty."

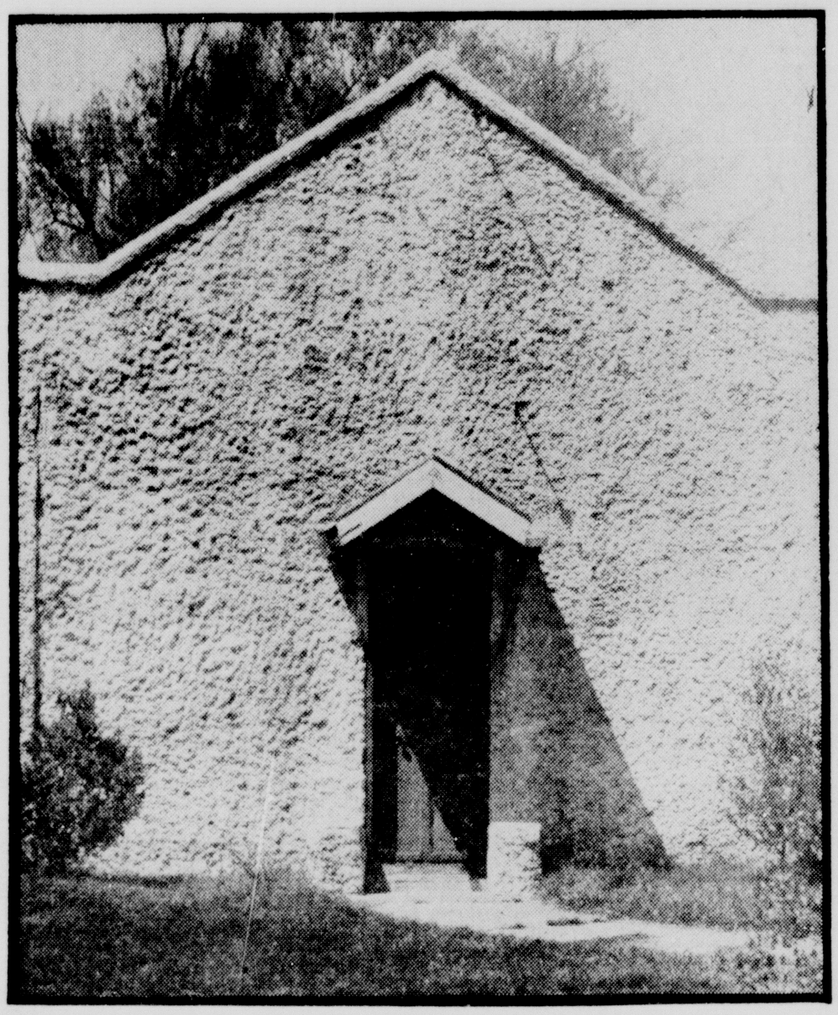

That was 30 years ago. Today his kinsman, President Roosevelt, preaches the same doctrine.

At this time of the year always, we are reminded of the words of John Greenleaf Whittier: "Give fools their gold and knaves their power, let fortune's bubbles, rise and fall: Who sows a field or trains a flower, or plants a tree, is more than all."

The "You-Wo-Ca" club of the Y. W. C. A. held their regular meeting at the "Y" on Wednesday evening. Marie Winkler, president of the club, presided at the meeting. Margaret Jefferies gave a lovely devotional on "Easter and Its Meaning in Our Lives." Mrs. J. Norman Coon delightfully entertained the club with several readings: "Hello," "Horses" and "The Youngest in the Family" and with two vocal numbers: "Believe Me, If All These Endearing Young Charms" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." The group enjoyed singing several songs which were played by Mrs. P. A. Poag and led by Mrs. Coon. The club welcomed several new members. After the business was presented and discussed, the meeting was adjourned.

The Freshmen Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. held their regular meeting on Thursday afternoon. Plans for Girl Reserve Anniversary Week were discussed. The group enjoyed singing Girl Reserve songs. The program consisted of a most interesting and entertaining talk on "Hobbies" by Glenadora White. A discussion by the group, followed and each girl told about her particular hobby.

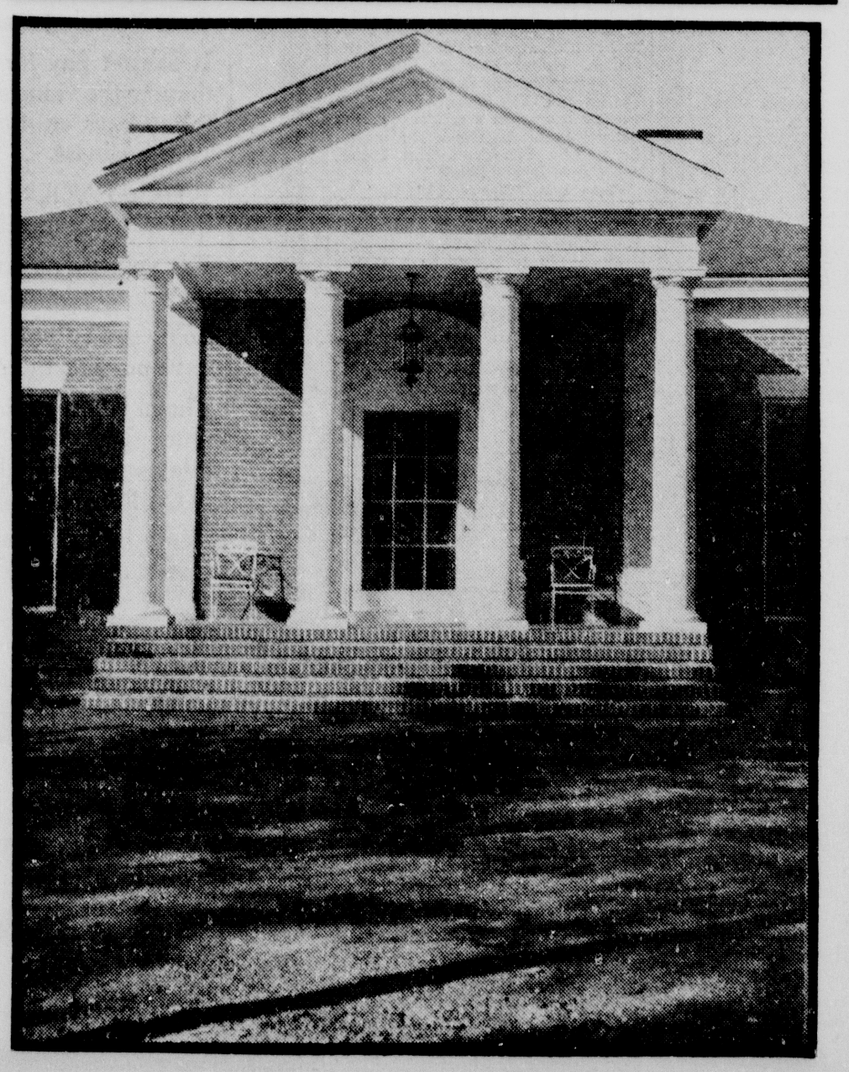

When you start on your tour of Monroe homes and gardens today drive by the court house square where the oldest structure in the city, the D. A. R. chapter house stands. The house is seen at the top of the page to the left.

The Travis Oliver home, top right, is on Riverside drive and is of Colonial architecture. In the rear of the home is a court yard where azaleas are now blooming in charming profusion. Dutch blue iris encircle the rose garden where a blue sun reflector stands on a white marble pedestal. A pink flowering peach tree, now at the height of its glory is reflected in the pool fringed with deep pink azaleas and ferns.

The M. C. McDonald home, "White Columns," is one of the newer homes and the natural beauty of landscaping couldn't be improved upon. You will enjoy driving down the quiet country lane leading to this beautiful home. It is seen to the left in the lower picture. To the right in the lower section of the page is seen Hardtimes Plantation, one of the oldest houses in Monroe. It was built before the Civil war.

Mrs. Cook Makes Talk On Inalienable Rights

'Life, Liberty, And The Pursuit Of Happiness' Discussed Before Crosley P.-T. A.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. . . ."

Mrs. Aimee Cook selected passages from the Declaration of Independence for the subject of her talk before members of the Crosley school P.-T. A. when they met last week.

Speaking on the subject of "Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness," Mrs. Cook said:

"In too many places liberty is something unknown or forgotten. And now we are going to be brave enough to talk of the pursuit of happiness. Why not, since we still have life and liberty, which must precede happiness? To a certain extent happiness depends on material things. We must be well fed, fairly well clothed, moderately well housed and have some assurance of security to even be able to think of any sort of happiness. That we have these things that are so necessary to life, we have to go back to those who made a brave struggle of one kind or another so that their posterity might enjoy these necessities in the form in which we have them today.

"However, these things and many more, do not make us happy but only comfortable. There have been times recently, in this land of plenty that our forefathers handed down to us, when many have not had these things. But that common welfare has not been forgotten. Through many agencies, governmental and otherwise, work has been provided for youths and adults that they may keep their dignity and sustain life in an individual way.

"Not all of this aid and these opportunities have been condoned by us but we have come to a better understanding of conditions under which some have had to live and pursue their individual happiness than ever before. For, in the larger sense, the pursuit of happiness means the pursuit of life on a higher level, because happiness is a by-product of noble living and it comes from work well done, service rendered and spiritual compatibility with God. We were all put here on earth to work, to produce and to serve in our several capacities. The state of mind while we are performing our duties constitutes happiness. Our attitudes toward that work—that service whatever it may be, is life here and now. Those who make an occupation of seeking merely for happiness never attain it, but the unselfish who strive to bring happiness to others are never found among the discontented mis-fits.

"The question confronting us today is: 'How are we going to give to the boys and girls of this generation the foundation that will enable them to keep life and liberty, to say nothing of happiness?'

"Our educational system as it is now constituted is one way we can do it. It has provided the very best with the funds at hand. The curriculum is broad enough to take in preparation for life, yet narrow enough to be comprehensible. This great organization has helped the youth of our land step by step in all things pertaining to safety, health, guidance and protection from ruthlessness in all forms. In training future citizens to meet the problems that will confront them in the pursuit of their happiness, we need to become more sensitive to the virtues of the democratic ideal of our government and more appreciative of its efforts. We need to become more aware of our responsibilities to the younger generation and take extra precautions to protect them against subversive ideas. If Germany has taught us anything, it is what can be accomplished along these lines in one generation.

"Whatever effort it takes now, we must make that effort to give to this generation the opportunity to develop into men and women who can keep that great, special faith of our forefathers, as it has been called, and forge the experiences they have had into the finest and freest government in the world. Let us hope that our posterity will find their happiness in seeking to perpetuate that life and that liberty."

'Defense Begins At Home' Campaign Is Launched

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers today launched a "Defense Begins at Home" program for the 2,500,000 P.-T. A. members throughout the United States as "a first-line of defense for the nation."

Outstanding specialists in education, sociology and economics will be enrolled as leaders of schools of instruction, seminars and conferences which will be arranged for America's 28,000 parent-teacher associations, according to Mrs. William Kletzer, of Portland, Ore., president of the National Congress, who announced the move at the organization's Chicago headquarters.

"No nation is stronger than its weakest home," Mrs. Kletzer declared. "To insure healthier generations who will be able to participate actively and intelligently in a democracy, parents and teachers must work hand in hand to strengthen the home. In so doing they will build a first line of defense for the nation.

"The study course, 'Defense Begins at Home,' is presented with the conviction that it will lead parents and teachers into a greater understanding of the problems and values involved in making democracy a real and dynamic way of life for themselves and their children."

The specialists who will contribute to this year-long course will be announced in Boston next month at the National Congress' 45th convention (May 19-22) by Dr. Ada Hart Arlitt, head of the University of Cincinnati department of child care and training, who will direct the course through the official P.-T. A. publication, the National Parent-Teacher.

"Some new skills which the homemaker will need in war and in preparation for defense" under the title, "The Home Maker Takes Over," is one of the topics included in the outline of the course.

Others are: "Planning meals. What is a normal diet? When and how should we use substitutes?" "How fears grow up. Ways of building a solid morale. Points to keep in mind in rearing children under war conditions." "Planning for marriage under a defense program. Points which each parent of the engaged couple should keep in mind in order to secure good family life for their children."

"Housing needs of communities" and "Ways in which the home and school may cooperate to develop strong citizens who can meet adversity if it comes and re-build the world after the destruction of war" are also included.

Mrs. Kletzer pointed out that the launching of the course, "Defense Begins at Home," puts into action the recent statement of the executive board of the National Congress setting forth P.-T. A. responsibilities in the national defense program.

Dr. Arlitt is widely known as an authority on parent education and child development. She has been associate editor of the National Parent-Teacher since 1925; has been parent education chairman for the National Congress since 1927, and has written numerous books which are accepted as standard works in child psychology.

Music Guild Discusses Contemporary Composers

The Music Guild met last week at the home of Mrs. Paul Newman. Most of the business session was devoted to the discussion of the plans for sponsoring the young artist, Samuel Sorin, in concert at Northeast Junior college.

A program on "American Contemporary Composers" featured Mrs. B. B. Martin's introductory talk.

She said, in part:

There are hundreds of composers today where there were but a few dozen yesterday. The majority of them, well-equipped technically, are able to speak their musical thoughts with fluency and ease. Conductors of orchestras will tell you that 25 years ago most of the American scores that were submitted to them were so faulty in their orchestration that they either had to be returned or edited and revised. Now, the conductor can hardly choose between the large number of ably-written works, all very clever in their scoring and colorful in their instrumental combinations.

"This is not an automatic development that has just happened. Conditions have changed and the composer has something of an outlet for his talents. Before 1900 there were very few orchestras in the country, and only a few American works could be played each year. The composer had little opportunity to hear his music and to get experience in writing for orchestra. There are today 73 permanent symphony orchestras in America. The most important of which are the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony, the Chicago orchestra, Cincinnati orchestra, Los Angeles Symphony, and Philadelphia Symphony. There are over 35,000 public school orchestra in America.

"So, with all these active groups, there is a great field for composers of orchestral music. Among the composers of note are Edgar Stillman Kelley, Frank Van de Strecken, Frederick Shepherd Converse, Henry Kimball Hadley, Charles Tomlinson Griffes, A. Walter Kramer, Alexandria MacFadyen, Walter Damrosch, Deems Taylor, and Oley Speaks. Among the women composers are: Mary Turner Salter, Jessie L. Gaynor, Margaret Lang, Lily Strickland, Fay Foster, and Carrie Jacobs Bonds."

Piano solo: "Roman Sketches" by Griffes, played by Mrs. Dallas Goss.

Voice: "Cradle Song" by MacFadyen, sung by Mrs. Thomas Pugh.

Violin: "Chant Negre" by A. Walter Kramer, played by Mrs. J. L. Cheshire.

Piano solo: "Night on the Levee" by Charles Repper played by Mrs. R. Spence.

The hostess served refreshments to the following members: Mrs. C. G. Bennett, Mrs. J. N. Coon, Mrs. R. W. Cretney, Mrs. J. L. Cheshire, Mrs. Dallas Goss, Mrs. H. M. James, Mrs. E. E. Lawson, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. R. McWilliams, Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. C. R. Pedigo, Mrs. R. Spence, Mrs. W. W. Watson, Mrs. H. K. Kent, Mrs. Willys Hopkins, and Mrs. Thomas Pugh.

The Senior and Junior Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. met at the "Y" with Merilyn Bush presiding. She gave the devotional on "Easter." Blanche Ferrington read a paper on "The First Easter." Mary Ruth Hawkins read "Easter . . . The Old, Old Story." The meeting was closed with the Girl Reserve code, slogan and purpose. After the meeting the group received instruction on "First Aid."

Book Club Members Make Imaginary Visit To Cuba

In their imaginary tour of the Latin Americas, members of the Welcome Branch Book club visited the small republic of Cuba, "Pearl of the Antilles," when they met Wednesday at the Y. W. C. A., with Mrs. J. E. Kersh, Mrs. Joseph Winkler, Jr., and Mrs. Paul T. Wright serving as hostesses.

Mrs. Dean Selig read a paper on "Latin American Women Freer." She read in part: "A decade or so ago it was hardly possible for a South American girl to be on the street alone, at least in the evening. Sports for women were unknown, and swimming was even regarded as improper." She added, however, that these restrictions on women are fast disappearing.

Mrs. Adair Smith presented a paper on "Cuba, The Pearl of the Antilles." She read in part: "The Republic of Cuba, justly called 'The Queen of the Tropics,' and The Pearl of the Antilles,' according to legend brought to the lips of Admiral Christopher Columbus, when for the first time he stepped upon its fertile shores in 1492, the pharse: 'It is the most beautiful land that man's eyes have ever beheld.' " One has only to travel through Cuba by means of the central highway to appreciate this phrase, she added.

Mrs. Harvey Callender gave a paper describing "A Visit to a Sugar Plantation" in which she outlined the steps in the manufacture of sugar and molasses. A lone plantation may embrace 30,000 acres of sugar cane, she said.

Mrs. E. C. Gibson described her experiences in Havana during the Lions' convention. Mrs. Gibson was alarmed to find no screens in her hotel room, but learned later that no screens are necessary since there are no insects. Outside her room was a large patio, where a group of musicians serenaded every evening and furnished music during the meals. Mrs. Gibson was impressed by the modern public buildings, and especially by the club houses. One club boasts a membership of 4,500 with a monthly fee of two dollars per member. Their club house is a veritable mansion, she said. "I am a Druggist"—

"To best serve the people of this community I maintain a stock of carefully selected merchandise. To be able to recommend the best product for every need, it is part of my training to know the definite standards of quality and measures that have been established by science and experience. When I order goods my selection is based on the known value of these widely recognized standards.

"Then I advertise to give people the news of my store. Because I know that nearly everybody reads a newspaper I use newspaper advertising regularly. When people pay for newspapers they read them carefully for all of the news that is interesting to them. When my ads are newsy and contain useful information I know that people will read them because they are news."

ANOTHER thing that merchants like about newspaper advertising is that they can buy it on the basis of known values that are just as definite as the measures of weight and quality that apply to merchandise which they handle.

Business men can not afford to speculate with advertising. When they buy newspaper space they can make their investments on the strength of circulation facts and figures that are verified. It is good business practice to buy advertising by such methods just as it is good business to select merchandise of known value.

This helpful information is available from reports issued by the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a cooperative organization of more than 2,000 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies.

This Bureau makes an annual audit of the circulation records of all publisher members. The verified reports based on these audits tell, for instance, how many copies of a newspaper are printed, just where they go and how distributed.

These and many other audited facts found in A. B. C. reports are the advertisers' assurance that they get what they pay for.

HERE'S WHERE THE "PACK" COMES IN

RIGHT THERE is where it happens and right there is the thing to look out for when you buy a new car.

That's where prices are "packed"—where something extra can be slipped in for no reason at all except to allow the dealer more "trading margin."

It doesn't pay for any additional equipment, doesn't add anything to the value of the car—simply gives the dealer a "cushion" to fall back on if he has to make a fat trade-in allowance to get your business.

What do YOU get out of this? At best, what seems to be a better trade-in allowance but what is actually no such thing.

For you still pay out just as much in cash or time payments and maybe a little more!

So be smart when you buy and pick a car that is guaranteed to have no pack in its price.

That's what we do—quote rock-bottom delivered prices, guarantee them to be No-Pack prices, give you a generous trade-in allowance, and deliver to you the biggest dollar-for-dollar value in the field.

Come in and drive this 1941 Buick, look at our fully itemized prices, and see for yourself.

Come to Church for Easter Services

The CHURCH of Your Choice WELCOMES YOU

Perhaps as a youngster, with so many other things to do, regular church attendance was an allegiance not of your own choice. Now, you are far enough along the highway of life to realize more clearly the comfort and peace to be found in HIS word. There is strife and hatred on other shores. Your own responsibilities and cares may have increased many fold. Find the hope, the composure you seek in your church this EASTER SUNDAY. No doubt you were planning to attend but we would like this message to achieve another purpose too. . . . More frequent attendance at your church to find the guidance and encouragement you want.

Hays-Martin Marriage Announcement Is Made

Members Of Prominent Families United In Ceremony In Shreveport, April 5

Of paramount social interest to friends in this section of the state is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. James Lyon Martin, Sr., of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Wilhelmena Frances Martin, to Mr. Theodore Hays, son of Mrs. J. C. Hays and the late J. C. Hays, Saturday, April 5, in Shreveport, La.

Mrs. Hays, a general favorite in Ruston where she was reared, is a member of one of the most prominent and influential families of that city. She studied art at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and for the past year has been engaged in commercial pursuits in this city, where she made her home with her sister, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds of West Monroe. For the past several months she was a student at Bish Mathis Institute.

Mr. Hays is a member of a well-known Ruston family whose history is linked with the growth of Bienville and Lincoln parishes. He attended L. P. I. at Ruston. For the past several years he has been associated with the Lewis Company of Ruston where he and his bride will make their future home.

Several distinctive social affairs are being planned for Mrs. Hays this week.

Readers' Clique Members Continue Gardening Study

Members of the Readers' clique met Thursday in the home of Mrs. E. L. Marchman, 1919 Pargoud boulevard, to continue their study of gardening.

Mrs. Merrell Williams, speaking on the subject of "Gladiola," gave excellent advice for the selection and care of gladiola bulbs.

Mrs. Clay Albright presided over a short business meeting, during which the following committees reported progress: Program, Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, chairman, Mrs. J. S. Harbuck, Mrs. Merrell Williams, Mrs. Cecil Blanchard, Mrs. Raymond John, and Mrs. W. F. Hemler; book: Mrs. Mike John, Jr., chairman, Mrs. Clay Olbon, Mrs. Burl Hollis, and Mrs. J. L. Ivey; gift: Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, chairman, and Mrs. J. S. Harbuck; yearbook: Mrs. X. Holt, chairman, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. Wesley C. Ekholm, Mrs. Clyde C. Blanchard, Mrs. G. L. Morgan, and Mrs. R. M. Cook; banquet: Mrs. E. L. Marchman and Mrs. Henry Loeb; scrapbook: Mrs. R. M. Cook and Mrs. Mike John, Jr.

Mrs. G. L. Morgan spoke briefly to the club on the desirability of well-prepared programs. Mrs. Wesley C. Elkholm read a short paper on cancer control. The club voted to contribute $5.00 toward cancer control. Mrs. Estelle Parrett spoke briefly to the club, giving pointers on baking.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following members: Mrs. Clay Albright, Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, Mrs. Wesley C. Ekholm, Mrs. J. S. Harbuck, Mrs. W. F. Hemler, Mrs. X. Holt, Mrs. Mike John, Jr., Mrs. E. L. Marchman, Mrs. Henry Loeb, Mrs. G. L. Morgan, Mrs. R. C. Kester, Mrs. R. O. Ware, and Mrs. Merrell Williams. Mrs. Estelle Parrett was a visitor.

The Readers' Clique, a study club of twenty members, has volunteered 100 per cent to work for the Red Cross. The club has been divided into three groups, each having a captain. Once a week each group will meet in some home, where they will sew on baby clothes and hospital gowns. At intervals, the groups will report their progress to the club.

Altrurian Book Club Meets With Mrs. Stinson

Members of Altrurian Book club enjoyed the hospitality extended by Mrs. Edward Sinson in her country home, with Mrs. C. H. Tait, co-hostess.

Beautiful flowers from the gardens of friends, including a bowl of lovely white carnations and white stock, were arranged throughout the reception suite.

The program, one of the most interesting of the year, featured a talk by Miss Eleanor Faulk on "Changing Maps of Europe." Having encircled the globe, Miss Faulk was well prepared to talk on the subject of foreign travel.

Mrs. Aimee Cook talked on the subject of "perpetuation of Personal Liberties."

During the social hour, following the program, the hostesses served delicious refreshments to: Mr. W. R. Hatchell, Mrs. King Hunt, Mrs. Herman McGuire, Mrs. Jack Willis, Mrs. W. D. McGaughey, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, Mrs. C. K. Smith, Mrs. Kate Morrice, Mrs. Aimee Cook, Mrs. R. B. Henry, Miss Eleanor Faulk, Mrs. George Welch.

Current events were discussed during the conversational hour.

'Y' Scene Of Meeting Of Sophomore Girl Reserves

The Sophomore Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. met at the "Y" Thursday afternoon. The meeting was opened by group singing, with Miss Calvert, accompanist, and led by Rita Church. The meeting was called to order by the president of the club, Patty Lee Padgett. Several items of new business were presented and discussed. Joy Guice was elected sergeant at arms and Betty Lou Farrow was elected to serve as an usher at the D. A. R. citizenship program, April 21.

A lovely program on "Easter" was given. Patty Lee Padgett read the Scripture lesson and Rita Church talked on "Easter," saying in part:

"Easter is observed in many branches of the Christian church. Many beautiful and quaint customs are observed. White flowers, representing purity and light, decorate the altars. The sending of Easter eggs is thought to have been originated by the Persians, the eggs being symbolic of new life. The name Easter comes from the Anglo-Saxon 'Eastre,' the goddess of light and spring, whose festival was celebrated in April. The name of this festival in the Greek, French and Italian church and several others is 'Pesack,' meaning 'Passover.'"

The meeting was closed by the group repeating the Girl Reserve code.

Parent-Teacher Group Of Smith School In Meeting

The April meeting of the A. L. Smith school Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school auditorium.

The devotional was given by Mrs. M. E. Perry. Olan Black gave a talk on "The Cubs," of the Boy Scout organization.

The craft demonstration was presented by Mr. Horace Carpenter's craft class.

A quiz program resulted in Mrs. H. D. Matkins winning the prize, which was a serving tray made by the craft boys.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. H. D. Matkins. The following officers for next year were elected: Mrs. L. B. Hearne, president; Mrs. H. D. Matkins, vice-president; Mrs. J. C. Warren, secretary; and Mrs. Carter, treasurer.

The second grade won the prize for having the most mothers present.

Marriage Of Iris Nunn To W. C. Reynolds Told

Miss Jeannette Ziegler Honored At Reception

Miss Jeannette Ziegler, wearing a flower sprinkled model of purple and white with a lovely corsage presented to her by her hostess, stood with Mrs. D. C. Black to receive the guests who were invited to call between the hours of 4 and 6 to meet Miss Ziegler.

Mrs. Black's home with its spring flowers in colorful profusion offered a charming background for the hostess, her guest of honor and the seventy-five or more guests.

Mrs. J. C. Ziegler assisted Mrs. Black in receiving. Courtesies were extended in the dining room by Mrs. L. W. Wilkinson, Mrs. Forrest Seaman and Mrs. A. S. Aswell.

The coffee table, overlaid with handsome lace and radiant with candlelight, was developed in white with a central decor of white stock, white flowering peach and white lilies.

Luscious confections were passed among the guests.

Of interest to friends was the marriage of Miss Ola Syble Farmer, daughter of Mrs. Fannie Glass of Swartz, La., to Mr. William Woodrow Lewis, of Tioga, La. The marriage was solemnized at the home of Rev. A. E. Prince on the evening of April 5 with close friends and relatives attending. The attendants were Miss Fleta Davidson and Mr. W. F. Latham. Miss Farmer has for some time been associated with Sears, Roebuck and Company in the capacity of division manager . Mr. Lewis is a former student of B. M. I. and is now associated with the Chicago Bridge and Iron Company of Houston, Tex., in the capacity of traveling auditor.

CHERISH AN AMERICAN TRADITION . . .

Be In Church On Easter Sunday . . .

There are so few things to hold on to these days---material values, mental conditions change rapidly . . . affected directly and quickly by the strife, turmoil and economical upheavals of recent years. There is one thing left unshaken---the solace and peace to be found in church. Be in church Easter Sunday---find stable spiritual values which, in the last analysis, are enduring in peace or war, or times of sadness. Go to the church of your choice . . . Easter Sunday and every Sunday---you need the comfort and companionship to be found there . . . the churches need your support. Go to church Easter Sunday in the traditional American way . . . to celebrate this great day in accordance with your beliefs. It's a perfect way to begin the day---and you'll enjoy the Easter parade more afterwards. You will find a warm welcome at any of Monroe's and West Monroe's many fine churches---and you'll find great benefit in the special Easter Sunday services planned by each. Be in church Easter Sunday!

'Road To Zanzibar' Opens Engagement At Paramount

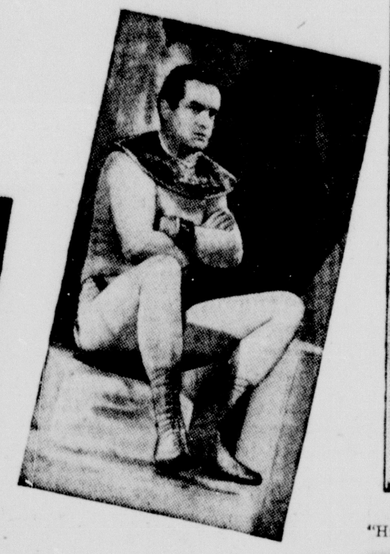

The great Bette Davis is co-starred with George Brent in "The Great Lie," which opens Wednesday at the Paramount for a three-day engagement. With Mary Astor as the illegal wife, Brent with Bette proves that true love triumphs.

Totally unaware of civilization are the three lyrical madcaps. To the right is Bop Hope, sitting on a cake of ice. He has to, for next to him (center) is the jungle slave girl, Dorothy Lamour, sans sarong. On the extreme left, waxing vocal with larynx and twanging guitar is Bing Crosby. These three stars of comedy are co-starred in their latest and newest laugh fest, "The Road to Zanzibar." Opening today at the Paramount and playing through Tuesday.

Ida Lupino and Humphrey Bogart star in today's attraction-thriller, "High Sierra," playing at the Capitol theater.

Hollywood Hands

Bette Davis has hands as sensitive as the face which is able to register the all but uncapturable emotions and transfer them to the minds and hearts of her audiences. Delicate as her hands appear, they are strong, as those who have seen her play tennis, or work in her garden, can attest. Bette is starred with George Brent in "The Great Lie," opening Wednesday at the Paramount for a three-day engagement.

In "The Monster and the Girl," playing Saturday only at the Paramount theater, a marauding monster, a gorilla with a human brain, holds an entire city in the grip of terror in this thrill-drama. Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Paul Lukas and Joseph Calleia provide a series of shocking super-thrills and super-chills.

Crosby And Hope Star In New Hit

Hilarious Antics Of Comedy Team Make Highly Pleasing Picture

LADEN with sparkling comedy, witty gags and a wealth of brand new song hits, Paramount's new mirth and melody film, "Road to Zanzibar," opens today at the Paramount theater.

That it ought to be swell entertainment is practically a foregone conclusion. Starring Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, reunited for more merry-making after their hilarious and romantic adventures in the recent "Road to Singapore," the picture is an even funnier show.

Not only was "Road to Zanzibar" directed by the director of "Road to Singapore," but it was written by the same two clever comedy writers who sioned the earlier Crosby-Hope-Lamour hit.

The songwriters Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen have turned out several new tunes to beguile us for the new film. Among them are "It's Always You," "Birds of a Feather," "You're Dangerous," "You Lucky People You" and "African Etude."

Bing and Bob in "Road to Zanzibar" are a couple of carnival men barnstorming their way through Africa trying to raise enough money to get back to the states. As Fearless Frazier, Bob has the job of carrying out all the hare-brained ideas Bing gets for new sideshow stunts. And how Bing can invent them! He has Bob soar through the air as a "Bat Man," has him frozen alive in a cake of ice, electrocuted, wrestling a bear and shot out of a cannon! And when you see Bob Hope performing in all of these scenes, you'll know you've seen the tops in comedy.

Dorothy Lamour and Una Merkel, as stranded vaudevillians, manage to pull a couple of fast ones on the boys. Bing and Bob fall for Una's story that Dotty has been captured by slave-traders and that she's on the auction block. The boys buy her for one hundred and fifty kolaks, without knowing that Dotty and Una are working a little racket of their own. Then the girls persuade Bing and Bob to use the last of their hard-earned money on a safari to take them through the jungle to Zanzibar, where Dotty's "father" is ill. The "father" turns out to be a rich lad Dotty intended to marry. All this is too disillusioning to the boys who decide to brave the jungle alone after leaving the girls with the safari equiment and guides.

Bob Hope and Bing Crosby go native in the jungles of Africa in "The Road to Zanzibar," with Dorothy Lamour as the slave girl in a phony slave auction. Opening today on the Paramount screen. Songs, comedy, and fun galore.

Bogart And Lupino Are At Capitol

Pair Have Outstanding Parts In 'High Sierra,' Thrill Film

ONE OF THE YEAR'S most outstanding productions, "High Sierra," co-starring Humphrey Bogart and Ida Lupino will be the next feature attraction at the Capitol theater, starting today. Written by W. R. Burnett who authored "Little Caesar," "High Sierra" was produced by Warner Bros., the same company which presented the earlier film.

Roaul Walsh, the picture's director, is noted for the deft balance between romance and hard, blunt "punch" that he has delivered in many hit pictures, since his initial success with "What Price Glory." Another guarantee of "High Sierra" being top-drawer entertainment is that fact that Mark Hellinger acted as associate producer of the film.

Headed by Bogart and Miss Lupino, the cast of "High Sierra" also includes such notable names as Alan Curtis, Henry Hull, Henry Travers, Barton MacLane, Arthur Kennedy (remember him as Cagney's brother in "City for Conquest"?) and Joan Leslie, 16-year-old making her film debut, and hailed by preview audiences as a sensational discovery. A small wire-haired terrier called "Pard" is also said to walk off with more than his share of the picture's honors.

"High Sierra" tells the story of Roy Earl, termed by the authors as "the last of the Dillinger gang." It is the sensational tale of a man who is overtaken by his inexorable doom just as he finds happiness for the first time in finds happiness for the first time in his sordid life. When Roy Earl is released from prison on a pardon, he dreams of going to live on a farm. But first he must repay his gangster boss for winning him the pardon. This job takes him to California, and a mountain camp in the High Sierras, where he is to hide out until the time is ripe for him to pull the "caper" that will pay for his freedom. There is a desert resort at the foot of the mountains, and a hotel safe, laden with the jewels of wealthy patrons. It's just the sort of job that Roy Earl is best at and all he has to do is lay low until he gets the o. k. from the hotel clerk, who is also "in" on the job.

There's a girl at the mountain camp, a girl to whom life has shown only the seamy side. And there's a dog, a little mutt of uncertain ancestry. Both immediately attach themselves to Earl, and against his better judgment he takes them both along when he goes after the jewels. Although he makes a clean getaway, the clerk is caught, and squeals. It's pretty easy for the police to get on the trail of a man who's travelling with a girl and dog. But before they catch him, Earl barricades himself in the rocky heights of High Sierra, thereby providing one of the most thrilling film climaxes of all time.

COSTLY THRONE

Of all the costly wonders that the palace of Mogul emperors at Delhi has contained, the most wonderful and costly was the peacock throne, constructed during the reign of Shah Jehan, and valued at more than $30,000,000. It was in the form of two peacocks and was inlaid with valuable jewels.

The Pacific Coast's aircraft production in 1940 was 32 times more than of 1929.

Australia is three and one-half times the size of Greenland.

"Little Men," from the famous novel by Louisa May Alcott, read by millions of people, at last comes to the Capitol theater screen for a one-day premiere Tuesday. In the above exciting scene, Dan, the waif, gets a rough reception at Plumfield school, when the tomboy, Nan, sails into him. It's part of Jimmy Lydon's initiation into the temperament of Ann Gillis. Jack Oakie and Kay Francis head the starring cast, with George Bancroft and Charles Esmond turning in admirable performances.

RUSTON STUDENTS TO ENTER NATIONAL EVENT

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—Harrell Harrison, Ruston High school band baton-twirler, and the school's junior girls' glee club, winners of honors at the recent state high school music festival at Natchitoches, will compete in the national music festival in Jackson, Miss., next month.

Harrison won first place in the baton-twirling contest and the girls' glee club received a silver plaque for a superior rating at the festival. The Ruston band, under the direction of Harvey M. Nelson, was judged good, while the mixed chorus was given a rating of excellent in class B. Mrs Marvin Corley is director of the glee clubs and choruses.

For Canada's wartime pilot training schools, approximately 10,000,000 square yards of highway runway surface, equal to 800 miles of standard highway, are being paved in new airports.

Alice Faye, Don Ameche, and Carmen Miranda vie for musical honors in the technicolorful "That Night in Rio," which will have its premiere Saturday at the Paramount theater midnight show. This is a musical treat with new zipzing songs.

TECH WILL BE HOST AT RALLY

High Schools To Participate In 18th Annual Events In Ruston

RUSTON, La., April 12.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech will be host Friday and Saturday to hundreds of high school students who will participate in the 18th annual North Louisiana High School literary, track and baseball rally, according to M. H. Folk, Jr., secretary of the North Louisiana Rally association.

Schools with an enrollment of 130 or more are classified as class A. Others are in class B, it was explained. The participating schools and the events which they have entered are as follows:

Literary — Class A: Farmerville, Homer, Arcadia, Bernice, Ouachita Parish High school of Monroe, Haynesville, Jonesboro-Hodge, Columbia, Plain Dealing. Class B: Simsboro, Wisner, Calhoun, Lisbon, Downsville, Weston, Grayson, Bonita, Athens, Summerfield, and Gibsland.

Baseball—Class A: Spearsville, Farmerville, Minden, Ruston, Neville High school of Monroe, Bernice, O. P. H. S., Marion, Haynesville, and Jonesboro-Hodge. Class B: Simsboro, Doyline, Mer Rouge, Downsville, Elm Grove, Lisbon, Linville, Dubach, and Bonita. These 19 teams represent a record number of baseball entries. Last year only 14 teams played.

Track — Boys', Class A: Rayville, Winnsboro, Homer, O. P. H. S., Haynesville, Jonesboro-Hodge, Plain Dealing. Girls', class A: Arcadia, Rayville, Jonesboro-Hodge. Boys', class B: Harris, Wisner, Elm Grove, Choudrant, and Summerfield. Girls', class B: Calhoun, Lisbon, and Athens.

Literary contestants will report to Howard auditorium at 8:30 a. m. Friday, when they will be given their numbers prior to their participation in the events.

Baseball teams are to report to Coach G. B. (Blue) Hogg at the men's gymnasium at 8:30 a. m. Friday. Brackets will be drawn up at that time.

Preliminary baseball games will be played on three fields, Tech, James, and Fraser fields, Friday, beginning at 9 a. m. The class A final, which will be played at Tech, will begin at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. The class B final baseball game will be played on Fraser field at Woodlawn park, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

The track meet will get under way at 1 p. m. Saturday. All contestants will report to Coach E. M. Shirley at the Tech track at 12:30 p. m., when they will be given their numbers.

SPAN GAP OF 5 GENERATIONS

Mrs. Annie Pool, Kelly, La., who on Friday celebrated her 86th birthday anniversary, is shown above holding in her lap her great-great-granddaughter, June Arlene Spicer, five months, 515 1-2 Ouachita avenue, Monroe. The baby is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Spicer. Mrs. Pool is strong physically despite her age, and is the mother of a number of children, of whom only one is living. The five generations are as follows: (1) Mrs. Poole; (2) Mrs. E. B. Cottingham, Kelly, La.; (3) F. M. Cottingham, Monroe; (4) Mrs. R. B. Spicer, Monroe; and (5) Baby June Arlene Spicer, Monroe.

making, but a considerable number of the production chiefs believe that when the inventories of the nation's supplies of various metals ordered by the office of production management have been completed it may be found the scarcity is not so great as at first indicated.

If that view is borne out, it may be that an anticipated reduction of production schedules may be delayed beyond the end of the present calendar year.

There have been many mechanical advances in designing of automobiles over the last decade, but in the effort to swing buyer interest to new models from year to year, the car manufacturers have relied to a great degree upon the "machinery" or "eye appeal" aspect of their tasks.

Barring something wholly unforeseen at this time, the 1942 models will not be lacking in those attributes and you'll never know whether the pistons are made of aluminum, cast iron or steel alloy or what kind of basic raw material was used for your radiator grille.

LOG ROLLING TO BE CONDUCTED

Important Event Will Be Held By W. O. W. April 22

The Northeast Louisiana Log rolling of the Woodmen of the World will be held in Monroe, Tuesday, April 22, at which time the following state officers will be present: W. B. Clark, Lafayette, head consul; W. E. Carroll, Bastrop, head escort; U. W. Pickens, Monroe, sentry; Ray Ferguson, Winnsboro, head auditor; J. L. Treadway, Alexandria, past head consul; John Murphy, Alexandria, head publicity director; and Joe Brown, state manager.

The Urania degree drill team, headed by Captain C. W. Harris, will put on the floor work. The Woodmen's circle, the ladies' branch of the order, will be in charge of the refreshments.

Several interesting speakers will be on the program, which will include Mayor H. H. Benoit and James A. Noe. The meeting will be an open one for all Woodmen and their families.

SAYS RECORDS SHOW DISEASE IS CURABLE

Records of 36,087 cured cancer cases recently reported by the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons were cited here Saturday by Mrs. W. Holloman of the women's field army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, as "conclusive evidence of the fact that cancer in its early stages is curable." To be considered a cured cancer case, a patient must have remained entirely free of any signs of recurrence of the disease for at least five years af the successful conclusion of treatme

In connection with the present pr gram to acquaint the public with facts about cancer, Mrs. Hollon stated that "we are determined t every person in this district le protective facts on cancer. Continu education is essential. Compet physicians agree that between 50 and 75,000 lives should be saved e year from cancer by early diagno and prompt, proper treatment."

In cooperation with the state vision of the society, local memb of the field army are sponsoring essay contest for students of pub and parochial schools here. Also connection with the education dri Dr. Joseph H. Farrow of Memo hospital in New York City will spe Thursday night on "Cancer Contr at a public meeting at Hotel V ginia.

U. S. To Have Its Defense And '42 Model Autos, Too

And The New Cars Will Have Just As Much 'Oomph' As Before

By David J. Wilkie

DETROIT, April 12.—(The Morning World Special News Service).—If you have been led to believe there may be no 1942 model automobiles or that if there are, they will be drab-appearing vehicles of uncertain quality, with no "oomph" and almost prohibitive in price, just consider a few facts concerning the making and merchandising of motorcars.

To begin with, there very definitely will be 1942 model automobiles. There may be some curtailment of output volume and there may be intermittent interruptions to production during the 1942 model year because of materials difficulties from time to time, but new models will be made.

And so far as appearance goes, consider the excessive amount of plating, for one thing, that has featured the 1941 types. Most of the automobile engineers frankly admit that they believe too much chromium plating has been used this year.

There will be bright surfaces on the new models; the plating may be somewhat thinner than heretofore but it will serve the same purpose.

Prices probably will go up, but they won't go to prohibitive levels for the very reason that the motorcar industry can't do business on "prohibitive" price schedules. Moreover, consumer demand ever since the present models were introduced has been on a basis equaled on only one or two occasions in the past.

Then it should be remembered that car manufacturers will reach July 1, the approximate end this year of the present model production period, with a stock of unsold new cars on hand aggregating more than 600,000 units.

Most of the car manufacturers believe that the likelihood that certain "substitute" metals will be used in the 1942 models has been given entirely too much emphasis.

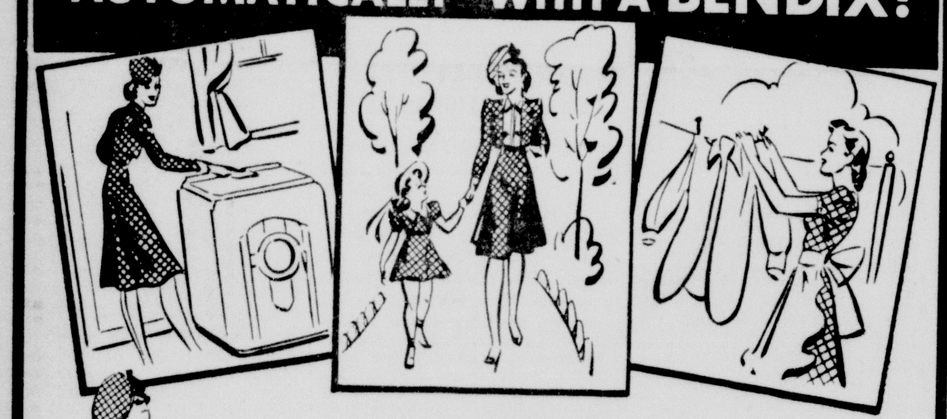

"The practice of finding 'substitute' metals has been a continuing one in the industry almost from the beginning of automobile manufacture," said one engineer this week. "Each year our engineers have found new metallurgical processes; one variety of metal has been replaced with another.

"That's what is going to happen with the 1942 models and it is a fair guess that the amount of 'substitutes' to be used will not be nearly so great as many laymen believe."

Packard had no new machine tools with which to bring out its new "Clipper" model; neither did Buick to introduce its supplemental series "40" models. Yet both those new cars presented noticeably different styling and they were tested for sturdiness and driving comfort before they were released to the merchandising division of the industry.

There may be some modification in adornment of new models now in the
